House Committee Immediately to Inquire Into Efforts to Hamper Work for Pure Food.

DEMAND FOR PAPERS MADE

Experts Believe High Government Officials Have Planned to Drive Competent Men from Inspection Posts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The latest attempt to oust Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the pure food expert, from the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, is to be the subject of another Congressional investigation. The House Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture to-day after a conference between Dr. Wiley and Mr. Moss, the Chairman, voted unanimously to explore the scandal to the uttermost limits—as a member of the committee tersely put it—to "find out who wants Dr. Wiley fired, and why."

The members of the committee are disposed to regard the technical matter of fixing Dr. H. H. Rusby's salary in the manner which evoked the condemnation of the Committee on Personnel in the Department of Agriculture as only an incident in the case. The main thing, they believe, is to find out what interests are fighting Dr. Wiley, and to get evidence of how these interests are working to accomplish their ends.

The committee spent several hours mapping out a programme for the investigation, and the last afternoon mail carried with it a letter from Chairman Moss, calling on the Secretary of Agriculture for all papers and documents of every description bearing on the case. The list of witnesses to be called will be a long one, and will certainly include Secretary Wilson and probably Attorney General Wickersham, as well as Solicitor McCabe, Dr. F. L. Dunlap, and other officials of the department.

The committee desires to know on what authority and for what purpose the Attorney General went beyond the purely legal opinion sought of him as to the legality of the method of payment arranged by Dr. Bigelow, Dr. Kebler, and Dr. Wiley, and recommended disciplinary action in regard to these officials, and that Dr. Wiley be permitted to resign. It was learned by the committee that less than $100 had been paid to Dr. Rusby under the arrangement which has been made the basis for the demand for the removal of Dr. Wiley, and the affair at once assumed at most the proportions of a more or less unimportant peccadillo in official administration. In fact, so many more and such greater violations of law were known to most of the members of the committee that the affair seemed more like a joke than a serious event.

The conference between Chairman Moss and Dr. Wiley was not public, and the meeting of the committee was secret. It is understood that Dr. Wiley will not discuss the pending case, and for the most part confined his statements to answering questions that Mr. Moss thought necessary in order to know how to order the investigation.

Referee Board Under Fire.

The long struggle that has been going on over the enforcement of the pure food and drugs act will be thoroughly thrashed out. Dr. Wiley will be asked to make the investigation the arena in which he may summon every foe into the open. It goes without saying that the committee will subpoena the Department Committee on Personnel and get every fact its members can contribute. Many things that have occurred in connection with the operation of the pure food law and Dr. Wiley's efforts to make it a terror to evildoers will be brought out. Among these will be the creation and acts of the so-called Referee Board, created by the executive order of President Roosevelt. This board consists of Drs. Ira Remsen, Russell H. Chittenden, John H. Long, Alonzo E. Taylor, and C. A. Herter. It has no authorization in existing law, and its principal function has been to oppose and restrict Dr. Wiley's efforts to enforce the law as he sees it. It was chosen at the instance of manufacturers and as a compromise with business interests.

Dr. Wiley and Secretary Wilson have always differed in their views as to the enforcement of the law. Dr. Wiley believes in crushing out all adulteration because of its effect on the health of the public, and he would make no compromise with business. If millions of capital were to be jeopardized by his administrative action he would go straight forward and let the capital suffer. Secretary Wilson has always taken the view that the manufacturers of staple foods and drugs gave employment to many thousands and investment for much capital, and these had rights which must be regarded, and that care should be taken not to apply the law too radically.

Besides the Referee Board, there is also the Board of Food and Drug Inspection within the department, of which Dr. Wiley is Chairman, and Solicitor McCabe and Dr. Dunlap, both of whom are alleged to be opposed to Dr. Wiley, are members. The working of this board will be inquired into thoroughly, and its value in the practical execution of the law determined.

Dr. Wiley has been interrogated repeatedly when he has appeared before committees of Congress as to the work of the Referee Board and his opinion of its findings. He has uniformly declined to discuss them. The medical profession throughout the country has refused to accept the position of the board on the greater part of its work, and is overwhelmingly against it. It was on the recommendation of this board that benzoate of soda was permitted to be used in various manufactured products, provided the fact was stated on the labels. Dr. Wiley, before the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture last Winter, was asked by Chairman Graham in regard to this sanction of the use of benzoate.

"Do you not think that the health of 90,000,000 people is more important than the moneyed interests of certain manufacturers?" was the question.

"It looks so to me," replied Dr. Wiley. "My personal view—and I may say this without any criticism of those higher in authority—would be that, pending the solution of a doubtful problem like this, the consumer should have the benefit of the doubt, and not the manufacturer. That is my personal opinion."

It is by such frank and uncompromising statements that the rank and file of Congress has made its estimate of Dr. Wiley, and in the present situation it will prove a powerful advantage to him.

Larger Room for the Hearings.

It was not decided to-day just when the investigation will begin. Chairman Moss said he thought there need be no great delay in getting the papers in the case in shape to forward them to the committee and that it could get down to work early next week. The first thing will be to get a large room. Being a rather unimportant body hitherto, the committee has been housed in a small room in the basement of the old Capitol. It will now require one of the largest rooms available, and probably it will get quarters in the new office building. The GIRL AT PLAY FELL ON KNIFE.

Fifteen-year-old Helen Wineman of 1,646 Third Avenue was helping her mother prepare supper in the basement kitchen last night when three dogs owned by William Baum, the proprietor of a saloon on the ground floor, ran into the room. The girl began playing with them. She seized a thin bladed potato knife, and climbing on top a kitchen table assumed a threatening attitude.

She was warned by her mother not to play with the knife and a moment later Mrs. Wineman left the basement and ascended to her apartment, which is on the fourth floor of the house. When she returned to the cellar she found her daughter lying upon the floor on her face, the upper part of her body partly supported by the potato knife, upon which she had fallen.

The girl was conscious and Mrs. Wineman turned her over and asked her if she was hurt.

"No, I'm not hurt," replied the girl, "but mother please take this knife out of my heart," she added.

Mrs. Wineman drew out the knife and ran screaming up the stairway to the saloon. Patrolman McGrath of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station called an ambulance from Reception Hospital.

When Mrs. Wineman returned to the basement her daughter had disappeared. A trail of blood leading to the basement stairway was followed and Mrs. Wineman found the girl dead, lying half way up the stairway, where she had dragged herself.

NO SALE TO TEXAS OIL.

Lord Cowdray Says He Has Not Even Been Negotiating a Sale to Gates.

Lord Cowdray denied last night at the St. Regis Hotel that there was any truth in the Wall Street rumors that the syndicate of which he is the head is considering the sale of its oil lands in Mexico to the Texas Oil Company, which John W. Gates controls.

Since his arrival in this city Lord Cowdray has been in consultation with the executive officers of the Texas Oil Company, and it was said that he was negotiating for the disposal of his syndicate's large holdings near Tampico and at Minatitlan.

Both the Pearson syndicate and the Texas Oil Company have been in active competition with the Waters-Pierce Company, but the relations of the Texas company with the Waters-Pierce people were more friendly than those of the English company, and Wall Street believed that the transfer of the Pearson holdings to them was contemplated in order to place the competition to the Waters-Pierce Company on a more profitable basis.

"I have not sold my holdings," said Lord Cowdray last night, "and I have not been negotiating for the sale of them. Both the Texas Oil Company and my own syndicate are in the same business, the selling of oil, and we have had certain matters to talk over which were profitable to both of us. That is all that there is to it."

BLEASE REMAKES HISTORY.

Insists That Sherman Burned Columbia, and Book Is Changed.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 14.—As a result of Gov. Blease's refusal to approve the adoption by the State Board of Education of Thompson's History of the United States because the text book left the responsibility for the burning of Columbia in 1865 in doubt, Waddy Thompson of Atlanta, the author, has consented to change the history so as to place the blame for the destruction of the city on Sherman, who, Blease insists, was responsible, although it is a mooted point.

Gov. Blease said to-day that with this amendment the story was acceptable, and he would withhold his opposition. The book will be used in all the public schools of South Carolina during the next five years.

The statement which Gov. Blease took exception to was:

"The route of the army was marked by the destruction of property. Columbia, the capital of the State, was laid in ashes."

As amended, the statement is as follows:

"The army marked its route by the destruction of property, and laid Columbia, the capital of the State, in ashes."

Mr. Thompson is a son of the late Hugh S. Thompson, who was Superintendent of Education and Governor of South Carolina and later Assisatnt Secretary of the Treasury under President Cleveland.

ASKED BASEBALL NEWS FIRST

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—"What is the standing of the clubs of the National and American Leagues?" was the first question of inhabitants of the Pribilof Islands when they gained close touch with the outside world for the first time through the new naval wireless station.

The United States supply ship Homer, which arrived from Alaska yesterday, brought word of the successful installation of the wireless station on St. Paul Island by the United States cruiser Buffalo. The islanders gathered to celebrate. When the naval operator tuned up his instrument he said: "I have Honolulu now. What news do you fellows want?"

"All the baseball news you can get," the islanders answered in chorus.

After sending the club standings the Honolulu operator attempted to send news of he coronation of King George.

"Ditch that," exclaimed one of the islanders, "ask him for Cobb's batting average, and all about Eddie Collins, Honus Wagner, and Red Dooin. The coronation can wait."

Arrangements have been made to transmit to St. Paul Island daily scores of the big leagues.

NO MORE BEEF TO EXPORT.

J. Ogden Armour Says Home Consumption Demands All Our Product.

Shortage of beef supplies here has compelled the American packers to go to South America for their beef, according to J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, who, with his wife, returned from England yesterday on the Lusitania.

"The invasion of South America by American packers means that they have found it necessary, in order to fill their foreign contracts, to go to Argentina for their produce," said Mr. Armour. "The United States needs all its supply for home consumption. We can no longer afford to export beef."

NAMES WICKERSHAM IN ALASKA SCANDAL

Delegate Says Perjury Involving $50,000 Was Ignored Until Statute of Limitations Ran.

COMMITTEE TO ASK FACTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—A wholesale investigation of the activities of the Department of Justice and its agents in Alaska is promised in a resolution offered by Delegate Wickersham, which the House Judiciary Committee has decided to report favorably. The resolution followed correspondence between Delegate Wickersham and Attorney General Wickersham, in which the Delegate accused agents of the Alaska syndicate of a whole string of crimes—for instance, that a "Grand Jury was packed and a Deputy United States District Attorney was bribed."

Attorney General Wickersham is involved in a charge by the Delegate that he ignored plain evidence of fraud that cost the Government about $50,000, until the statute of limitations had run, and evidence that an agent of the syndicate had tampered with Grand Jurors and Government witnesses in a murder case growing out of a clash of railway interests.

Delegate Wickersham's resolution calls on the Department of Justice for information and documents bearing on the string of cases. As a matter of fact, however, he has what purports to be proof of many of the itemized charges concerning the department's agents in Alaska, and the real object of the resolution is to draw forth an explanation of what he considers the inactivity of the department heads here in regard to the matter. He is on the trail of "men higher up," and while his resolution does not order an investigation it does ask for information upon which, if it comes up to expectations, an investigation will be ordered.

The Delegate particularly wants to know why it is that of all the department's agents in Alaska the two who were successfully prosecuting the wrongdoers were expelled from the service. These two men were District Attorney J. J. Boyce, at Juneau, and Marshal Daniel Sutherland. They were removed a year ago after obtaining the conviction of Edward C. Hasey for homicide committed, according to the Delegate, in the interest of the Copper River Railway Company in its efforts to open a right of way.

Charged $50,000 Fraud by Perjury.

In making his attack on the Attorney General the Delegate presented to the committee an affidavit sworn to by H. J. Douglas, auditor of many individual Alaska corporations and general auditor of the Alaska Syndicate Companies, of which the corporations are subsidiary. In the affidavit Mr. Douglas recites that when the War Department in Alaska advertised for bids for coal for Fort Davis and Fort Liscum, D. H. Jarvis, Treasurer of the Syndicate Companies, and John H. Bullock, manager of the John J. Sesnon Company, a competing concern, met together, arranged identical bids for the 4,000 tons of coal at about $28 a ton—nearly twice the commercial price—and identical bids on lighterage and other charges, submitted the bids, and when the award was made to the Sesnon concern, under the agreement for dividing profits, a check was sent by the Sesnon concern to the Northwestern Commercial Company—of the syndicate—for about $6,700.

The crime complained of lay in the charge that Jarvis and Bullock made affidavits in which each swore that no other concern was interested in the bid he made. The evidence of alleged perjury was forwarded to the Attorney General by the Delegate, and he is informed that special agents from the department were sent to Alaska presumably to investigate the matter, but nothing else was done.

"On May 24, 1910," the Delegate told the committee, "I sent to Attorney General Wickersham a copy of the affidavit, calling his attention to the fact that the Government had been defrauded of $50,000 by perjury and a combination of these two corporations. I asked him to make an investigation and prosecute those people for the crime committed. I received a letter of acknowledgment May 31, 1910, and we had considerable further correspondence, and on June 13, 1911, more than a year later, I received a letter from the Attorney General, stating that the statute of limitation had expired."

Directly Attacks Attorney General.

The correspondence, including the final letter of the Attorney General, was read into the record.

"I read the last letter," continued the Delegate, "to show that the Attorney General now says that the Statute of Limitations has run against the prosecution of these men who committed perjury and defrauded the Government. They submitted false affidavits to the Government and committed fraud in April and May, 1908, and the Statute of Limitations did not expire until May, 1911. I sent all the evidence to the Attorney General a year before, and he failed and refused to prosecute these people for robbing the Treasury and he permitted the Statute of Limitations to run in their favor.

"I want the committee to have all the facts, so that it may know whether the Attorney General has deliberately shielded these people from prosecution for crime or not. It is fair to him and fair to me. I say that he has."

"Did you send the Attorney General evidence enough and indicate where witnesses could be found to warrant an indictment?" asked Representative Webb of North Carolina.

"Undoubtedly," replied the territorial delegate, "and I furnished him with evidence of other crimes. The Alaska syndicate is an organized crime."

"I refer to the Alaska syndicate composed of J. Pierpont Morgan, the Guggenheim brothers, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Jacob H. Schiff, and Graves."

"Who do you mean by the Guggenheim brothers?" asked Mr. Norris.

"Who is Graves?" asked Mr. Graham.

"He represents Close Brothers, the English syndicate and other English capitalists."

"Capt. Jarvis," added the delegate, "was the confidential agent of Morgan in charge of the syndicate's interests in Seattle. He committed suicide immediately following the introduction of this resolution you are now considering. He knew that this resolution would bring out the facts."

Tampered With Murder Witness.

An extraordinary exhibit bearing on the suicide of Capt. Jarvis and the charge of tampering with Grand Jurors and Government witnesses, was submitted by the delegate in the form of a photographic copy of a letter purporting to have been sent by an attorney for the Alaska syndicate to Capt. Jarvis. It bore on the Hasey

BRITAIN BY TREATY KEEPS US AS FRIENDS

RIGHTS IN INDIA RECOGNIZED

Peace and Commercial Interests in China and Eastern Asia to be Maintained.

LONDON, July 14.—The Anglo-Japanese alliance has been modified to exclude the United States from Great Britain's possible enemies and the life of the alliance has been extended nearly six years by the new version of the treaty, which Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and Count Kato, the Japanese Ambassador at London, signed yesterday. The original agreement, which was signed Aug. 12, 1905, included eight articles and a preamble. The only practical difference between that and the new version is embodied in Article IV., which reads:

"Should either high contracting party conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail upon such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such treavy of arbitration is in force."

The preamble states:

"The Government of Great Britain and the Government of Japan, having in view the important changes which have taken place in the situation since the conclusion of the Anglo-Japanese agreement of Aug. 12, 1905, and believing that a revision of that agreement responding to such changes would contribute to the general stability and repose, have agreed upon the following stipulations to replace the agreement above mentioned."

Then follow the objects of the alliance as set forth in the previous draft. These include the consolidation and maintenance of general peace in the regions of Eastern Asia and India, the preservation of the common interests of all the powers in China, and the maintenance of the territorial rights of the contracting parties in the regions of Eastern Asia and India and the defense of their special interests in those regions.

Articles 3, 4, and 6 of the treaty of 1905 are omitted in the revised version.

Article 3 of the old version stipulated that, Japan "possessing political, military, and economic interests in Korea, Great Britain recognizes Japan's right to take such measures for the guidance, control, and protection of Korea as she may deem proper and necessary to safeguard and advance those interests, providing the measures so taken are not contrary to the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations."

Article 4 related to the recognition by Japan of Great Britain's rights to protect her Indian possessions.

Article 5 refers to the war between Japan and Russia at that date and Great Britain's neutrality.

The revision of the treaty is known to have been largely the result of discussion of foreign affairs at the imperial conference and of the wishes of the colonies, particularly Australia. That it was consummated so soon was a surprise to the diplomats. The extension of the time of the alliance is another surprise.

LEAP FROM AUTO ON TRACK.

Doctor and Wife Reach Safe Place Just as Train Smashes Their Car.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEVILLE, N. J., July 14.—Dr. Widner E. Doremus of 16 Midland Avenue, Arlington, N. J., with his wife, was on his way to East Orange to-night to pay a call, and was driving his touring car through here. He slowed down at the approach to the grade crossing of the Newark branch of the Erie Railroad in Rutger Street.

The automobile was fairly on the tracks and moving at a very slow pace when Dr. Doremus realized that a train was bearing down on the automobile. The physician shouted to his wife to jump, and seeing her safely out of the car, he leaped himself. They had scarcely run to the side of the tracks when the locomotive of the train smashed into the auto and carried it for 100 yards down the track before it smashed it into kindling wood.

HAVANA HEARS OF BIG PLOT.

War Department Tells Gomez of One to Provoke Intervention, Is Report.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, July 14.—A most sensational story became circulated this afternoon to the effect that a member of the United States War Department has forwarded to President Gomez a full report of the plans of the conspirators here and in New York to provoke another intervention, intending to eliminate President Gomez and have Zayas appointed in his place.

Consul General Rodgers Ferrara confirms the story, saying:

"The present campaign of vilification has been prepared by two well-known enemies of the Cuban Republic, one of whom is at present here and the other in New York. I've ample documentary evidence against them."

This is taken to mean that the men referred to are San Miguel, editor of The Lucha, who is in New York, and Vice President Zayas, who is here.

Secretary Knox has been thanked for his note assuring Cuba that Washington does not intend another intervention.

WOMAN WHO SUES THE RICH HAS QUIT

Mrs. Almer V. Sturtevant, known on the stage as Josephine Joy, has left her sister's home in Passaic Park, N. J., according to statements made there last night, following the publication in THE TIMES yesterday of the story told by her to Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, and subsequently repeated to a TIMES reporter as to suits brought and in contemplation by her against Willis Betts Sterling of Erie, Penn., and other men of wealth.

The doorbell was answered last night by a young woman who said she was Mrs. George H. Haig, Mrs. Sturtevant's sister.

"Is Mrs. Sturtevant in?" asked the reporter.

"Is she coming back?"

"I can't tell you."

"Do you expect her back?"

"I don't know."

"Is Mr. Sturtevant here?"

"No, he has stepped out, too."

Mrs. Sturtevant's reported departure was foreshadowed in her letters to Mrs. Jenkins, published in yesterday's TIMES. Another letter, written by Mrs. Sturtevant on Thursday, was received by Mrs. Jenkins yesterday and turned over to THE TIMES reporter. It read:

> Helen Jenkins: My dear, are you refusing to help me in my trouble? God knows you, too, are having your own troubles, and ought to sympathize with me. My sister has returned, so I don't like to 'phone at the house, but I am nearly insane. I don't know what's going to happen next.
>
> If you will let me know where I can see you I'll go to New York and see you. I told my husband about our acquaintance, and he at first didn't say much, but last night our case was the topic of conversation here, and my sister and her husband, I know, wish we could get out of Passaic for a few weeks until this awful notoriety and the case is over.
>
> Can you help me with $500, if you can't the $2,500? If you would only trust me! And believe me when I say that I'll never!! forget you, if you help me, and will repay you and do anything nearly in the world to show our gratitude.
>
> Write me, please. Every day counts. Surely such a pretty and sweet little woman won't refuse such an urgent appeal from a fellow-girl in trouble?
>
> Please, Mrs. Jenkins, be kind to me. I'm so, so miserable. 'Phone me any time of day and I'll be glad to hear your voice. Call for Mrs. S. J. S.

Before her reported departure from the Haig cottage Mrs. Sturtevant was interviewed by reporters for several newspapers, who quoted her as saying, among other things:

"I thought I recognized in Mrs. Jenkins a sister spirit. She had had trials like mine, and I am certain I would help a girl out if our situations were reversed. I thought she might be able to use a clever woman, too. I thought she was a sweet, trusting little woman, and I didn't think she'd tell such things to those dreadful detectives. But she did, and now I'll never get another job on the stage, and it's all up.

"I met Mrs. Jenkins in her automobile at the Passaic Park station of the Erie by appointment. Just before she got to me she let down two men. I said to her: 'Are those detectives or reporters?' 'Oh, dear no!' she said to me. 'I am protected by the Government, and you can feel yourself perfectly safe in my company.' Now I learn that those men were Richard Parr and his brother.

"Mrs. Jenkins seemed a sweet, sympathetic little woman while we talked in her automobile. She said she would help me out any time I got into serious difficulty. 'What a remarkable woman you are, my dear!' she said when I left her. 'You ought to get along well anywhere. I will help you.'

"Had you known Mrs. Jenkins before you telegrapher and wrote to her to come and see you, that you had valuable information for her?" asked the reporter.

"No, I had never met her," she replied, "and I know you are going to ask me why I should appeal for help to a woman I didn't know. I figured from all that I had read about her in the papers that she was a kind, sympathetic person and would help a sister in distress, just as I would if I had money. But, oh, she's a serpent—she's a dreadful woman to sic those men onto me."

"Did you have any security to offer her for the loan of $2,500?" one reporter asked Mrs. Sturtevant. You know she says you asked her to introduce her to rich men so you could make money by suing them.

"Only the security of my word," he quotes her as replying. "That would have been enough for me. I told her I was talented; that I had temporarily lost my voice, but that I would get it back, and I could make $150 a week on the stage and would repay her. And, oh, yes, I was about to forget, I had an option on an invention to offer her. You see, I have a gentleman friend who's an inventor, and he's made a patent for imitating leather so you can't tell the difference. I've got an option on that patent, but I haven't been able to raise the money to put it through.

"All Winter I went to downtown business men in New York, but they turned me off with their secretaries or else proposed some stock-selling scheme which was all profit to themselves. I went to the Standard Oil and tried to see Mr. Rockefeller—no, not the old one, the young one—but he wouldn't see me.

"So, when I read of Mr. Allen's troubles and his regard for Mrs. Jenkins the word 'leather' caught my eye, Mr. Allen being a leather manufacturer, and I wanted Mrs. Jenkins to introduce me to him, because I thought he might be interested in the patent. But when she called in her automobile and I told her that she just laughed and said 'Little girl, no woman on earth could get near to that man now.'"

To the reporters yesterday Mrs. Sturtevant denied her previous statement that she had obtained $25,000 from a rich Boston broker by threatening to sue him. She denied also that she had told Mrs. Jenkins she contemplated a suit against another rich man that promised well. The statement about Willis Betts Sterling, whom her husband is suing for alienation of her affections, she admitted.

At the office of the trust company in this city at which Mr. Sturtevant was employed one of the officials said yesterday that no such person worked there.

"Hasn't he been employed here?" was asked.

"We don't care to answer any inquiries," said the bank official. "We have no such person here."

Inquiry among theatrical managers yesterday confirmed practically all the details given by Mrs. Sturtevant of her career, ranging from understudy to Fritzi Scheff to a vaudeville singer at $150 a week.

"I offered her ten weeks last Fall at $150 a week," said one manager, "but she refused it. She had an automobile then and seemed to be in no need of money. During the Winter the principal part in the 'Girl in the Taxi' was of-

Special to The New York Times.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, Thousand Islands, July 14.—In the death this week of A. J. Berry, colored, a porter for thirty-five years at the Thousand Island House, Alexandria Bay, a familiar figure in this region passed away. Berry left an estate of about $100,000 which he had obtained by saving his tips and invested them.

PHILADELPHIA BY DIRIGIBLE.

Australian Aeronaut Hopes to Do It from Broadway and 28th St. To-day.

A. J. Roberts, an Australian aeronaut who has done some experimenting for the British Army, will try this afternoon to fly his dirigible from Broadway and Twenty-eighth Street to Keith's Theatre, Philadelphia. He expects to start at 3 o'clock, and hopes to complete his trip before 6 o'clock.

The trip is in connection with Old Times' Week in Philadelphia. Keith & Proctor's Theatre on Broadway is the original home of the Old Timers, and Mr. Roberts will bear to the Philadelphia house its greetings.

RECORD REAL ESTATE PRICE.

$500,000 Paid for Chicago Plot 25 by 90 Feet—High Lease Also.

CHICAGO, July 14.—A record-breaking price was paid for real estate in Chicago yesterday, when a large department store bought a parcel of land 25 by 90 feet on State Street, near Washington, for $500,000. This is at the rate of $25,000 a front foot and $277.77 a square foot.

The same concern also acquired by lease a lot fronting 24 feet on State Street, and 150½ feet deep. The annual rent is approximately $30,000, which, capitalized on a 4 per cent. basis, the usual rule in downtown property, gives a leasing value of $750,000, which is at the rate of $31,250 a front foot.

GIFTS TO OLD EMPLOYES.

Saunders Sons of Yonkers Divide $35,000 Among 27 Workers.

Among twenty-seven employes who have worked for twenty years or more in the firm of D. Saunders Sons, Yonkers tool manufacturers, $35,000 was distributed yesterday. The gifts came as a surprise and were in the nature of a memorial to the memory of Leslie Saunders, the late head of the firm, who was a philanthropist. They are in line with the bequests of the late Mrs. Eva S. Cochran, who left $1,000 each to more than 100 employes who had served for twenty years in the Smith Carpet Works here.

Each of the Saunders employes get $1,000 except five who had worked in the Saunders shop for nearly forty years. They received something more than $2,000 apiece.

WATERSPOUT ALARMS SHIPS.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 14.—A waterspout that broke all records in size, shape, and movement in Maryland waters, formed off the great steel works at Sparrows Point during a storm this morning at 10 o'clock, and caused consternation among the hundreds of small craft on the Patapsco River. It swept with fearful velocity out into Chesapeake Bay.

Power boats in the vicinity sped to either side. It passed near several large steamboats. Had it struck any of the small craft it would undoubtedly have swamped them.

The same peculiar whirling wind that formed the waterspout held up telephone connections between Sparrows Point and the Maritime Exchange for fully an hour.

A big lighter was torn from her moorings and swept down the bay close to the waterspout. It was the first spout seen in this vicinity since 1903. It seemed to contain thousands of tons of water. A hailstorm followed its disappearance down the bay.

As seen from the marine department of the steel works, the engineers say it appeared to be 100 feet in diameter and 300 feet high, connecting the waters with the heavy lowering storm cloud.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT LIMON, Costa Rica, July 14.—Thirty-two passengers and several members of the crew of the steamer Irma drowned or were crushed to death when the vessel was sunk by the Diamante, a slightly larger craft. The news reached here to-day from Bluefields.

The wreck occurred during a violent storm. The vessels were in the estuary of the San Juan River.

It was about 8 o'clock at night, but most of the passengers were below on account of the weather. This fact accounts for the heavy loss of life, as practically no person under decks got out alive, so quickly did the steamer go down.

The death list probably will exceed forty. Officers who were interviewed differ as to the size of the crew, but this seems due to the fact that several new men joined the crew at Greytown.

The Irma was moving against the current and was heavily laden. The Diamante carried light freights and only sixteen passengers. Both were hugging the right shore.

The Irma made a quick but ineffectual effort to swerve to port. The Diamante struck her amidships with great force, plunging her nose deep into the side of the Irma. The Diamante's bow was badly battered, but she proved seaworthy. The panic aboard the Diamante was nearly as great as that upon the Irma, and a stroke of lightning which seemed to strike the masts added to the terror.

Among those drowned were three Nicaraguan coffee growers, two with their wives, forming a party which recently returned from Europe. They were going to Castillo on business before proceeding to their homes.

The Diamante is listed as a three-masted vessel, 2,445 tons net, built in 1892 by Armstrong & Mitchell, Newcastle, and owned by the Deutsch-Amerika Company, Hamburg, Germany.

MARS FATALLY HURT IN AEROPLANE FALL

WIFE FIRST TO HIS SIDE

Her Condition Also Serious—Noted for His Daring, and Made World Aviation Tour.

Special to The New York Times.

ERIE, Penn., July 14.—"Bud" Mars, the aviator, was mortally hurt this afternoon at an aviation meet held in this city under the auspices of a newspaper, and to-night is sinking rapidly at the Hamot Hospital. The attendants have given up all hope for his recovery.

Mars made two flights this afternoon. The first was successful and was witnessed by thousands that packed the aviation field, but the second proved his undoing. Just as he was about to descend he suddenly lost control of his big machine. The horrified spectators saw him work his levers rapidly and then the aeroplane plunged downward from a height of several hundred feet.

A moan went up from men and women alike, and then all was silence until the big machine hit the ground. Then a cry of anguish rang out and a woman rushed forward. It was Mars's wife. She was so shocked by the accident that her condition is serious to-night.

The machine was completely wrecked and Mars was crushed under it.

Drs. Boughton and Gigliotti, who were present as spectators, were soon at the side of the injured man. Willing hands cleared away the wreckage and Mars was carried to an improvised field hospital.

It was fully thirty minutes before an ambulance arrived, and during that time the hot rays of the sun beat down with terrific force on the injured aviator. Then a large touring car drove up containing Mrs. Charles H. Strong, and her daughter, Mrs. Thora Strong Ronalds. Seeing the plight of the aviator, Mrs. Strong ordered him placed in her machine. The auto was just leaving the aviation field when the ambulance arrived and the injured man was transferred to it and hurried to the hospital, his wife accompanying him and holding his hand until he reached the institution.

Before she became too ill from the shock to talk Mrs. Mars said to-night that her husband knew atmospheric conditions were unfavorable before he started on the flight which ended in his fall.

"Before starting on the second flight," said Mrs. Mars, "Bud said that something was wrong with the atmosphere at the lower end of the field. He said it gave him serious trouble on the first flight.

"The day was ideal and I did not have any fear for him. I was surprised, however, to notice that after he ascended the second time he flew directly to the lower end of the field, where he had found conditions unfavorable. I never took my eyes off him. He began to descend, and I was relieved, for I thought the danger was all over then.

"The next moment I saw him working desperately with the controller, but it would not respond apparently, and the machine darted toward the earth. I started forward, shut my eyes, and screamed. I don't remember what happened next. The doctors tell me he is very badly hurt."

To-night Dr. Boughton issued a statement from the hospital to the effect that the aviator's chest was badly injured, that he had sustained concussion of the brain, and suffered internal injuries, while he is also bruised from head to foot.

Capt. Thomas Baldwin, the veteran aeronaut, under whose direction the exhibition was held to-day, was present on the aviation field, but did not attempt a flight.

"BUD" MARS'S CAREER.

A Daring Balloonist at Sixteen—Carried Aviation to the Orient.

James C. Mars, or "Bud" Mars, as he was known to all followers of aviation, was one of the most picturesque and daring of the fliers, and in little more than a year had made his name famous as an aeroplanist in many parts of the world.

It was shortly after the Los Angeles aviation meet, early in 1910, where Mars made several sensational balloon flights, soaring to tremendous heights, that he went to Hammondsport, N. Y., and became a pupil of Glenn H. Curtiss. Less than six weeks after that he was on the road giving exhibition flights in an aeroplane and startling thousands by his daring.

Last December Mars started for the Orient. He returned early in June, after having made 250 flights and leaving the populace of country after country agape with wonder. He was the first to carry aviation to the Far East.

Mars spent his childhood days on the shore of Lake Michigan, but early went to Chicago to win his fortune. He tried the theatre, and from that drifted to the circus, making his first appearance in a trapeze act, and later becoming the understudy of a high diver. For some months he was a "spectacular attraction" and won a name for fearlessness and daring.

He next came before the public as a pupil of Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, the balloonist, and soon was appearing at exhibitions as "Mars, the Lion-Nerved Dare Devil." He was then 16 years old, and ever since he had made his living by the conquest of the air. He early experimented with the "glider," which he christened the "Fool Killer," and with this contrivance gave exhibitions. In 1902 he joined with Capt. Baldwin in building one of the first dirigible balloons, the California Arrow, which made remarkable flights at the St. Louis Exposition.

Mars became associated with Israel Ludlow during the Jamestown Exposition, and they built a number of huge men-carrying kites, with which they made experiments over Hampton Roads. The Government showed great interest in these experiments, and placed the torpedo boat destroyer Gwin at the disposal of the aeronauts. On windy days the boat would make a run flying the kite at the end of a hawser. It was this practice that made Mars a master of the art of balancing.

After the Jamestown Exposition Mars formed the United Balloon Corporation, having interested nearly all the aeronauts in the country and several capitalists in the venture. The financial depression of 1907 wiped the corporation out and Mars's own fortune, too.

It was in the Fall of 1909 that Mars became official pilot of the Oakland (Cal.) Aero Club. It was while making his balloon flights at Los Angeles, early in 1910, that Mars was attracted by the possibilities of the aeroplane, and his reputation for bravery attracted the attention of Mr. Curtiss.

Mars made his first professional aeroplane flight in Memphis, Tenn., sharing the honors of the day with Curtiss. He had a narrow escape from death that day as his aeroplane bumped into an automobile.

"I have had friends tell me I am foolhardy," said Mars commenting on his escape; "others have gone further and said I was idiotic in the risks I take. Possibly, but Providence looks after fools and idiots and other incompetents, doesn't He? I came down on the tonneau of that automobile."

In August, 1910, Mars made a number of spectacular flights at the Sheepshead Bay race track, and on Aug. 27 almost came to grief in an attempt to fly from the course across the Narrows. He was carried to sea by a strong wind, and when opposite the Atlantic Yacht Club his machine collapsed. He was then 1,000 feet in the air. He was picked up by a tug little the worse for his experience and taken to Sea Gate.

It was by his trip to the Orient, shortly after the Belmont Park meet last Fall that Mars made his name known all over the world. The party that started on this trip included Capt. Baldwin, Mars, two agents, three mechanics, Tod Shriver and his wife and Mrs. Mars. They showed in this country at Norfolk, Denver, Phoenix, and Stockton, and left San Francisco in December. Capt. Baldwin stopped in Japan.

"I suppose we met with our greatest response in Japan, although there doesn't seem to be a spot on the globe where people don't go plain crazy over aviation," said Mars, in speaking of his tour. "Well, it was the first aeroplane they had ever seen in the air. The army owned four machines, but they hadn't learned how to operate them. I taught two of them how to fly and they were very happy over it."

In Japon Mars flew at Osaka, Kobe, Nagoya, Tokio, and Yokohama, and at Osaka there was the biggest crowd that ever witnessed an aviation performance. At least 750,000 people saw the flight.

"The people just ate it up," said Mars, "the upper class and the rabble alike. They wanted to know how soon they could have a fleet of them."

In Japan, as well as in the other countries where he flew, Mars and his party were treated royally. In one of his flights in Japan he reached an altitude of 6,500 feet, a bit of daring that won for him the admiration of the populace.

In China, Mars flew at Peking and at Tientsin, and at first his flights threw the people into a panic. In India and in the islands under the English domination Mars and his party received every sort of honor that the native potentates could bestow. He also flew at Manila, in Honolulu, Sumatra, Java, Singapore, Calcutta, Siam, Korea, Siberia, Russia, and Poland. At Bankok, in Siam, Mars took the King of Siam as a passenger for a twelve-mile flight. His last flight abroad was made at Warsaw late in May.

DATES FOR VOTES ON BILLS.

Senate Agrees to Action on Reciprocity, Wool Tariff, and Three Others.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—What practically amounts to a definite date for the adjournment of Congress was decided upon this afternoon, when the Senate by unanimous consent agreed to vote on the five most important bills pending before that body. Canadian reciprocity will be disposed of on Saturday, July 22; the Woolen bill on Thursday, July 27; the Free List bill on Tuesday, Aug. 1; the Congressional Reapportionment bill on Thursday, Aug. 3, and the New Mexico-Arizona Statehood bill on the legislative day of Monday, Aug. 7. A "legislative day" may be indefinitely prolonged by recess, but Mr. Penrose this afternoon said he thought the Statehood bill would hardly take over two days, and predicted adjournment on Aug. 9 or Aug. 10.

The agreement to-day followed a long series of conferences among leaders of the regulars, the insurgents, and the Democrats.

When the matter came up in the Senate Mr. Penrose stated that the acceptance of the proposed agreement would greatly clear the air and improve the changes of both the popular elections and publicity measures.

After the agreement had been entered on the minutes Mr. Borah amused the Senate by stating that a "most serious difficulty" confronted the Senate conferrees on the popular elections resolution. Though at the Senate's request the resolution had nominally been in conference for three weeks no meeting had taken place with the House managers because it could not be ascertained whether the etiquette of the conference required the Senate managers to invite the House members to confer or the House members to invite the Senate managers. If the matter is not settled soon he said he would move to instruct the Senate managers to take the initiative. His jocular remarks drew from Mr. Nelson the statement that the Senators had merely followed precedents in waiting the action of the House, and Mr. Reed explained that only the absence from Washington of the Chairman of the House Committee, Mr. Rucker, had delayed a conference. He intimated that a meeting would be arranged to-morrow.

Of the measures included in the agreement it is known certainly that reciprocity will pass unamended. The Statehood bill is expected to pass with a provision submitting to the people of Arizona the recall of Judges. The Reapportionment bill has a good chance of passage.

Talk to-day indicates a feeling that the woolen measure in some form will probably pass and that there is a possibility of some sort of free list bill getting through.

BAILEY MAY GIVE UP POST.

Disagrees with Democrats of Finance Committee on Tariff.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Because of variance between his views and the views of some of his Democratic colleagues on tariff legislation, Senator Bailey of Texas is said to be thinking of asking to be relieved from duty on the Finance Committee, for a time at least. He declined to-day to say whether he would resign from the committee.

Mr. Bailey has been suffering from an inflamed eye, which he fears might prevent his being able to give sufficient attention to tariff legislation.

OIL PIPE LINES INQUIRY.

Commerce Commission Decides to Inquire Into Their Conduct.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—An investigation of pipe lines, their rates, classifications, and regulations, was ordered today by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Informal complaints have been made to the commission that certain pipe lines are being operated in an unlawful manner and to the prejudice of the interests of oil shippers.

No date has been set for the beginning of the inquiry, but already the commission, through its agents, has acquired considerable information relating to the operation of the lines. Pipe lines, as common carriers, are subject to the provisions of the Inter-State Commerce act. It is alleged that the rates and regulations of many of them are discriminatory and unduly preferential to certain shippers and in direct violation of the law.

Sixty-two corporations transport oil by pipe lines. It is expected the inquiry will continue for several months.

SINGING SUFFRAGISTS NOW.

Set Their Speeches to Music and Outwit Los Angeles Authorities.

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—Woman suffragists who were informed a day or two ago that they could not conduct their "doughnut campaign" in city parks if they delivered "votes for women" speeches got around the prohibitive ordinance last night by setting their speeches to music and singing them.

The opening of their "doughnut campaign," as their picnic meetings are called, occurred in Hollenbeck Park, under the auspices of the Wage Earning Woman's Suffrage League. It was, in effect, a defiance of the police and the Park Board.

Atwood's Flight to the White House

TAFT GREETS ATWOOD AFTER RAINY FLIGHT

DOWNPOUR PART OF WAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Harry N. Atwood, the young Boston aviator, winner of THE NEW YORK TIMES Trophy, made the last leg of his Boston to Washington flight to-day, in which he has covered 576 miles, by sailing in from College Park in the aeroplane Moth, which he bought yesterday from Charles K. Hamilton, and alighting on the south lawn of the White House just at the edge of the driveway, and fairly in line with the middle of the south portico, on which stood President Taft, Secretary Hilles, and Major Butt, the President's military aid.

Atwood stepped from the machine, and was escorted to the portico, where the President presented him with the gold medal of the Aero Club of Washington. Atwood's mother, who had come on from Boston, was an interested spectator. Then Atwood went back to his machine, swung it around, started it up, and sailed away out of the White House grounds.

The programme of the day called for a luncheon to Atwood by the Washington Chamber of Commerce before the flight. It was at first arranged that Atwood should attend the luncheon, which was set for noon, and then go out to College Park by automobile and return by aeroplane. But Atwood decided on a different plan for himself. After spending part of the morning with his mother, who had just arrived in Washington, he went out to the aviation field and stayed there until nearly noon. The weather was threatening, with a heavy overcast sky, and there was much uncertainty as to whether or not the flight could be made. But Atwood finally determined to attempt it, regardless of the weather.

It had begun to rain and wet weather does not present the best conditions for aeroplane work. The wind was blowing more than twenty miles an hour and adding to the difficulties. Atwood was not daunted, however. He tuned up the Moth, and with the rain driving down with such force as seriously to limit his range of vision, he made the start from College Park at nine minutes before 12 o'clock. He circled the field a little to gain altitude, and when he had reached about a thousand feet he set his course for Washington, following the line of the Potomac River. He came at top speed and soon shot out of the rain, which was only a local shower. But he had been in it long enough to be thoroughly drenched.

In just nine minutes from the time he began his flight he descended on the polo field in Potomac Park. An automobile was waiting for him there and he hurried to his hotel, changed his soaked clothing, and went to the Chamber of Commerce luncheon. It was twenty minutes past 12 when he was presented to Capt. Oyster, President of the Chamber of Commerce. That was one minute less than half an hour from College Park, including a mile or more by automobile and a shift of clothing.

It had been arranged that the President should receive Atwood at the White House about 2:30. But Mr. Taft had been delayed by engagements in the Executive offices, and did not go to his own luncheon until after 2 o'clock. Atwood came over to the Executive offices soon after 2 o'clock and telephoned to the White House to learn just when the President would be ready. It was finally arranged by Gen. Oliver, Assistant Secretary of War, that as the President left the table a signal should be shown on top of the War Department Building. Atwood then hurried down to the polo field, where his machine has been under police guard, and prepared for the last and most difficult part of his flight.

A great crowd had been attracted by the arrival of the aeroplane at noon, and the streets near the White House and all the oval south of the Executive Mansion were filled with people waiting for the spectacular landing on the White House lawn. Directly in front of the south portico of the White House there is an open space through the trees, which elsewhere fill the grounds. This open space is broken at the middle distance by a large fountain, and at the southern edge of the grounds there are trees again. The open space gives a view from the south portico directly down to the Washington Monument. It was through this open lane in the trees that Atwood was to attempt his landing.

Just as the President rose from the table at about 2:40 o'clock one of the messengers telephoned to Gen. Oliver, and the signal was shown on top of the War Department Building. Atwood was waiting in the machine, and at the instant gave the word to let go. The Moth rose quickly, and at high speed Atwood began manoeuvring for elevation. He circled the big field once, and then swung around, facing the White House. As he sailed directly north toward the Executive Mansion the President, with Mr. Hilles and Major Butt, came out on the portico. Atwood was just above the tree tops at the south edge of the grounds as the President reached the railing on the portico.

The young aviator shut off the engine and prepared to descend, but the brisk wind held him back a little, and he saw that he was not going to clear the trees. He started the engine again and shot up over the tree tops. Then with the power shut off he glided gently and evenly down the lane between the trees, directly above the big fountain, and landed on the thick, soft turf. His machine came to a stop within thirty feet of where the President stood.

Gathered on the lawn were Gen. Oliver, Gen. Murray, several other army officers, the young aviator's mother, several members of the Chamber of Commerce, and the members of the Aero Club of Washington. Gen. Oliver was the first to greet Atwood as he stepped from the machine, and then his mother. Gen. Oliver took him at once up the steps to the portico where the President stood. The President shook hands with Atwood and congratulated him on the successful flight. Then on behalf of the Aero Club he presented its medal. Atwood thanked the President and the club, and then presented his mother to the President.

Mrs. Atwood was beaming with pleasure over the success of her son, and told the President it was the proudest day of her life. Then she asked the young man to take her back to the polo field with him in the machine. Atwood promptly and firmly declined to do that. He was in a great hurry, as he had to go to New York by an early afternoon train.

Almost immediately after thanking the President and the Aero Club for the medal, he went back to his machine and prepared for the flight to the polo field. There is a slight descent from the spot where it rested toward the south edge of the grounds. He started straight for the fountain with the machine sliding easily over the turf.

For a few moments it looked as if he would not be able to rise from the ground and would strike the stone coping around the fountain. But just as he neared the fountain the machine began to lift, and he sailed over the fountain by a good twenty feet. He rose sharply above the tree tops, and, with the crowd applauding heartily, sailed out of sight toward the polo field. Arriving there he left his machine under police guard and hurried back to his hotel, whence he left in a few minutes for New York.

HIS NEW YORK-CHICAGO FLIGHT.

Atwood, Here, Discusses Plans for It —Will Take Ten Days.

Harry N. Atwood, the Boston aviator who won THE TIMES trophy for the flight from Boston to Washington, and who yesterday called on President Taft in his aeroplane, arrived in New York last night to discuss with Mr. Curtis of the Burgess Co. & Curtis of Marblehead, Mass., the advisability of making an aeroplane flight from New York to Chicago. The probabilities are that Mr. Atwood will make such a flight in the near future, but he said last night that nothing definite would be decided for several days at least.

Mr. Curtis arrived from Boston last night and held a long conference with Mr. Atwood in the Hotel Manhattan, during which they discussed the proposed flight from various standpoints. Mr. Atwood is anxious to add such an achievement as the New York to Chicago flight to his record and whether or not he attempts it will depend on certain developments that are expected to come to a head soon.

"There is nothing positive that I can say about a New York to Chicago flight at this time," Mr. Atwood said last night, "and I won't be in a position to make any definite announcements, one way or the other, for several days yet. The flight is entirely feasible and with anything like good weather conditions I believe it can be successfully accomplished."

In the event he does decide to make the flight, Atwood's route would probably be over the New York Central Line to Buffalo, and from Buffalo to Chicago over the Lake Shore tracks. He would expect to take up about ten days in making the flight, and would make stops in the more important cities en route.

Speaking of his flight from College Park, Md., to Washington, on Thursday, Atwood said that he was above the city for forty minutes, during which time he circled over every important building in the capital. He came within five feet of the top of Washington Monument, sailing down from an altitude of more than 2,000 feet.

President Taft, the aviator said, received him most cordially yesterday, and congratulated him upon being the first aviator to arrive in Washington via the all-atmospheric route.

Atwood also qualified for his pilot's license at College Park yesterday by making the second of the two endurance tests required under the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. The first endurance test, as well as the required altitude flight, were made at Governors Island a week ago last Monday, so that only the second of the two endurance tests remained to be made.

A surprise that made Atwood happy yesterday was the gift of a silver cigarette case from the army officers stationed on Governors Island.

Atwood will return to Washington today, but will be back in New York in a few days with his aeroplane. This time he will bring the machine back by rail, and it will probably be reassembled on Governors Island, from which point he will probably start in the event a New York to Chicago flight is arranged.

BOY KILLED BY TRAIN; CHUM'S LEGS CUT OFF

WOMEN SEE IT AND FAINT

Lads Were Stealing Rides, and Stumbled as They Jumped Off—Maimed Boy Cannot Recover.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 14.—Boyce Penrose Gardner, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gardner of 6,821 Dix Avenue, and Harry Bowman of 2,552 North Thirty-third Street, Philadelphia, attempted early this evening to jump on a freight train in Atlantic Avenue, bound for Ventnor. Gardner fell under the train and was instantly killed and Bowman had both legs cut off. It is feared he will die before morning.

The boys had been playing in a lot near Florida Avenue, two blocks above the Hotel Walton, where they were spending the Summer with their mothers, when the train approached. Those who saw the lads, both of whom were about 14 years old, said they got on the cars all right, but when they attempted to jump off at Texas Avenue in front of the Walton Hotel both slipped. Young Gardner fell directly underneath the wheels. His body was ground to a pulp and his head was cut off.

When Bowman tried to get off he stumbled and fell underneath the cars, feet first. The wheels of the train passed over both legs between the ankle and knee.

The porch of the Walton was crowded with women dressed for dinner, and several fainted. Mrs. Gardener came down stairs a moment after the accident.

The avenue was filled with people, and in an instant a large crowd gathered. Ambulances and the police patrol were called, but before they arrived an automobile was pressed into service by a policeman. Bowman was rushed to the hospital, where his death is said to be expected any moment. The conductor of the train, A. T. Law, was detained by the police for a short time, but was freed before the train pulled away.

fered to her, but again she declined. Her action seemed erratic to me, but of course I could not question it.

Special to The New York Times.

ERIE, Penn., July 14.—W. B. Sterling of this city, who is being sued by Almer V. Sturtevant for alienation of his wife's affections, was smiling when newspaper men tried to interview him tonight.

"I have absolutely nothing to say," said Mr. Sterling. "Say I am out of town."

LOEB BEFORE THE GRAND JURY.

He Is Supposed to Have Denied the Rumors Circulated About Parr.

William Loeb, Jr., Collector of the Port, was a witness yesterday before the Federal Grand Jury which is investigating charges of smuggling against Nathan Allen, the middle-aged and wealthy admirer of Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, and against John R. Collins of Memphis, Tenn., President of the Southern Coal Company.

Mr. Loeb has taken no active part in the actual investigation of the case, such as would give him personal knowledge of the facts. It was reported about the Criminal Court Building that he had been called to answer questions as to the activities of Deputy Surveyor Richard Parr. Broad intimations have been made by enemies of Mr. Parr that he and Mrs. Jenkins were engaged in a plot to blackmail the rich Kenosha leather man. Whenever these have been brought to the attention of Mr. Loeb he has scouted them, saying that no move in the matter had been made by Mr. Parr except after consultation with him.

Another witness before the Grand Jury yesterday was an employe of Tiffany & Co. According to Mrs. Jenkins's story, the $100,000 necklace which figures in the case was bought from Tiffany & Co. in London, and as Mr. Allen did not have sufficient funds with him to pay for it, it was delivered on cable advices from Tiffany & Co. in New York that his credit was unlimited, and was charged to him on the books here.

Mr. Parr says Allen paid for the necklace here and that later it was returned to the jewelers in London and credited back to him. It is also alleged that when Mr. Allen again returned to this country from Europe he brought in and paid duty on a necklace corresponding closely to the first one, the valuation on which was $70,200.

LORIMER CONTROLLED HOUSE, SAYS DENEEN

Governor Tells Committee That Senator's Friends Organized It When He Was Elected.

HOW HOPKINS WAS BEATEN

Ten Men Voted for Foss Until the Last Ballot—Deneen Explains Split with Lorimer.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—For nearly six hours to-day Gov. Charles S. Deneen of Illinois was cross-examined by counsel for Senator Lorimer concerning the testimony the Governor gave yesterday to the Senate committee which is investigating the election of Senator Lorimer. It is expected that to-morrow the Governor will be cross-examined about events on the day Lorimer was elected.

Nearly every phase of Illinois politics was entered into by Attorney Elbridge Hanecy in cross-examining the witness. The testimony constitutes a history of political alignments in Illinois from the time Mr. Deneen was first elected State's Attorney for Cook County.

Mr. Hanecy sought to show that it was Deneen who organized the Legislatures during his term as Governor and not Lorimer, but Mr. Deneen was certain that he himself did not dictate the Chairmen of committees, and that Lorimer had attended a conference somewhere wherein it was agreed to have the minority Republicans and Democrats organize the House, which voted for Lorimer.

Mr. Hanecy sought to show that if fifteen Deneen men had voted for Hopkins on the first day's balloting for Senator, Hopkins would have been elected. Mr. Deneen was not willing to say that all these fifteen were full-fledged Deneen men.

Mr. Deneen could not recall, he said, exactly when his friends decided or first discussed the question of postponing the election of Hopkins, but said he felt it was some time after the balloting for Senator had begun.

The witness explained that all that was done to postpone Hopkins's election was to hav about ten men vote for Foss. On the last ballot, he said, they returned to Hopkins.

Mr. Hanecy asked Gov. Deneen about the organization of the Legislature in 1909, when Shurtless was elected Speaker by Democratic and Republican votes, and he inquired if the witness "wanted to be understood as testifying that Senator Lorimer in Springfield or Chicago or Washington, or any place on earth, had anything to do with anybody who organized the Legislature."

"I think he was some place where they agreed to the organization as put through," replied the Governor.

Chairman Dillingham insisted that the witness state any knowledge he might have regarding the organization, which is one of the much-mooted questions in the inquiry.

"I have no knowledge," declared Mr. Deneen. "I wasn't present when the agreement was reached."

"They don't wear armor plate out there," declared Mr. Deneen in discussing his relation to politicians in Illinois. He said he had been very much surprised at some of the testimony given about the bad feeling personally in the State. He added that while he and Senator Lorimer had differed on questions, such as details of the waterway project, they always had been friendly personally.

NATIONAL CITY CO. INQUIRY.

Wickersham Wants to Know About Concern Formed in This City.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The Department of Justice is inquiring into the National City Company, the $10,000,000 security corporation recently conceived by the National City Bank interests of New York, to ascertain if it will be in violation of the Federal statutes. Attorney General Wickersham is awaiting complete information before determining on action.

The courts have specifically ruled against one National bank acquiring the stock of another. Government officials consider that the National City Bank circular of June 28 contains a more or less tacit admission that the National City Company is going to engage in business in such stocks.

Stockholders of the National City Bank received a special dividend of 40 per cent. on July 10, to enable them to subscribe to a beneficial interest in the newly formed National City Company, which has a capital of $10,000,000.

In the circular referred to, President Vanderlip said: "After careful consideration the officers and Directors are of the opinion that it will be of material advantage to the shareholders of the bank to unite in establishing a corporation so organized that it may make investments and transact other business which, though often very profitable, may not be within the express corporate powers of a National bank."

MAJOR A TAFT CAMPAIGNER.

House to Investigate Ray's Leave of Absence—Record Withheld.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The long unexplained leave of absence given to Major Beecher B. Ray of the Army Pay Corps in the Summer of 1908 is to be made the subject of investigation by the House Committee on Expenditures in the War Department. Major Ray was relieved of his official duties to engage in political work among the railroad men's organization in the interest of the candidacy of President Taft.

In reply to a resolution by Mr. Covington of Mryland, passed by the House on June 15, the War Department prepared a statement of the record of a number of officers of the Pay Corps whose names are kept secret.

When this statement was ready to be forwarded to Congress certain Representatives who had knowledge of the matter were asked to look over the papers. It appeared that four or five officers besides Major Ray were involved. Among those asked to inspect the papers was Mr. Sweet of Michigan, a member of the House Committee on Military Affairs, and who reported out the resolution. It was suggested to him that some of the papers should be left out of the record. Mr. Sweet told the Secretary of War that it would be advisable to send all the papers asked for.

When the papers were handed to Speaker Clark it was found that the only papers omitted by the War Department were certain officials' records in the case of Maj. Ray. The Democratic members are indignant that the War Department should undertake to suppress certain parts of a particular record sought by the House, and are determined upon an investigation.

The report in Major Ray's case cites numerous irregularities in buying transportation for himself and clerk, payment of enlisted men and Philippine Scouts. Charges were made against him by Col. Hamilton S. Wallace, Deputy Paymaster General, which are reported officially. On these reports the Paymaster General made the following indorsement:

"The unusual and irregular transactions of Major Ray mentioned in, the within communication are regarded by the Paymaster General as of a very grave character and as constituting a total disregard of the practices of the Pay Department as founded on law an regulations."

The Washburn-Crosby Company's famous Gold Medal Flour has all the bread, biscuit, cake, and pastry-making qualities of the finest wheat concentrated in it. It bakes more to the pound than other flour, saves money as well as the extra work and worry occasioned by the use of flour of less uniform quality. That is why knowing housewives always demand it.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 14.—Coroner Remsen and District Attorney Wysong of Nassau County arranged to-day to hold on some day next week the inquest in the deaths of Frank P. NAMES WICKERSHAM IN ALASKA SCANDAL murder trial in 1908, wherein an agent of the Alaska syndicate was accused of complicity in the murder of laborers employed by rival interests during the construction of a railroad in Alaska. John A. Carson, the alleged writer, was of Hasey's counsel. The letter reads:

Seattle, Wash., May 6, 1908.

My Dear Captain—The inclosed acount of Mr. M. B. Morrissey has been submitted to me by him. I do not claim to have personal knowledge of all of the items therein mentioned, necessarily I could not have such, but I do know that Mr. Morrissey was taking care of several of the Government witnesses. I saw him take them into restaurants very many times, (it was generally rumored around that the majority of the Government's witnesses were broken,) and I have not the least doubt that Mr. Morrissey cared for them in the manner shown in his account.

In addition to this I wish to express my appreciation of the services rendered by Mr. Morrissey, not only in Juneau, but also at Valdez during the session of the Grand Jury there. I found him very efficient and competent and his acquaintance with many of the Government witnesses and control over them placed him in a position of the greatest possible service in defending this action.

I scarcely need tell you that Mr. Morrissey is an expert accountant employed by Mr. Heney at Cordova. He is anxious to return there promptly to resume his duties and I trust that you will treat him in a very liberal manner. Yours very truly,

JOHN A. CARSON.

Entered Voucher No. 3,408.

The total expenses in these cases for bribery and similar purposes, according to the Delegate, amounted to about $70,000. The particular sheet inclosed by Mr. Carson to the Treasurer of the Syndicate Companies, as set forth in the photographic copy, amounts to about $1,000. Some of the more interesting items are:

Occidental Cafe, for witnesses, $75.
Alaska Grill, for witnesses, $195.
Expense entertaining witnesses and jurymen, $200.

In spite of this alleged expenditure District Attorney Boyce, aided by Marshal Sutherland, obtained a conviction. According to the delegate an appeal was made, but the convicted man was paid to act as scapegoat and accept sentence. Then petition was filed for pardon and the case was moved to Washington. Here Delegate Wickersham again communicated with the Attorney General, and in the end the petition was denied. Of the other persons implicated in the other alleged crimes the delegate says he has heard nothing, and that is why he is pushing his resolution.

In the defense of Hasey, who is described as a well-known "gun man" in Alaska, employed by the "Copper River people," Mr. Wickersham says thousands of dollars were spent by the syndicate companies, not only in attorneys' fees, but in the bribery of Government officials and Government witnesses. He declares he has in his possession a receipt for $3,000 used in bribing a Deputy District Attorney, and the name of this official he has submitted to the Attorney General.

The Attorney General to-night declined to discuss the action of the committee. His friends intimated that the charges were old and that a certain phase of them still was under investigation. They declined to indicate just what that phase was.

Capt. Jarvis committed suicide at the Seattle Athletic Club, Seattle, early on the morning of June 22 by firing a bullet into his brain. A volume of Kipling open at the story "The City of Dreadful Night" was found on a table, and on the back of a letter he had written a brief note: "Tired and worn out." The day before Delegate Wickersham had called for the Alaskan papers.

WILL BARE SECRETS OF FIGHT ON WILEY

members of the committee, in addition to the Chairman, are John C. Floyd of Arkansas, Dannitte H. Mays of Florida, and Robert H. Doughton of North Carolina, Democrats, and Edwin W. Higgins of Connecticut, Burton L. French of Idaho, and Charles H. Sloan of Nebraska, Republicans.

The status of the case against Dr. Wiley, so far as the President's action is concerned, is substantially what it was yesterday. When the Agricultural Department closed this afternoon none of the officials named for discipline had made his reply to the charges of the Personnel Board, with the single exception of Dr. Rusby. His letter to the Secretary first published in THE NEW YORK TIMES had been received by Secretary Wilson. Dr. Rusby's course in giving his letter to a newspaper before sending it to the Secretary has shocked official Washington to the core of its red tape. Nevertheless it is commented on as a wise thing for an independent man to do, and many members of Congress to-day praised Dr. Rusby for his fearlessness and contempt for official proprieties where his personal honor and professional reputation was at stake.

EXPERTS HAVE A HARD TIME.

Believe Officials Are Trying to Drive Out Competent Men.

For years Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Dr. W. D. Bigelow, and Dr. L. F. Kebler have been seriously hampered in their crusade for pure foods and drugs by men of their own office, including some of their superiors, according to the firm belief of more than one Government expert employed in this city by the Chemistry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture.

Dr. H. H. Rusby is not the only food or drug expert who has had trouble getting his money from the Government after the rate of payment had been approved by responsible heads in the Department of Agriculture at Washington. It develops that others here engaged on almost exactly similar terms as those under which Dr. Rusby had entered the Government service believe that a well-thought-out scheme has been applied by some one in the Department of Agriculture to do everything possible to embarrass Dr. Wiley and the pure food advocates in the prosecution of their work, which from the first has meant the prosecution in the criminal courts of many of the "large interests."

The direction which that policy of obstruction has more than once taken, according to an expert other than Dr. Rusby, is to cut or hold up an expert's stipulated pay, and even his legitimate expenses, until he is so disgusted with the service that he is ready to quit. The evident hope was that these tactics would force all such men out of the Government's service, leaving it with no experts at all to check the importations of all manner of impure drugs and foodstuffs at this port, or, by the process of elimination, force the employment of dishonest or incompetent men.

Among those referred to by Dr. Rusby in his interview in THE NEW YORK TIMES of yesterday as having been employed under conditions and terms similar to his own was a coffee expert. This man had first been engaged at a salary of $20 a day for tests of coffee, and $50 a day when a witness for the Government in suits brought by Federal authorities against coffee importers, who were trying to bring in black beans and other cheap substitutes to be imposed upon the American people as good coffee at regular prices. This was precisely the rate of payment promised to Dr. Rusby to ferret out adulterated or spurious drugs offered for entry at this port as the genuine articles.

Troubles of Coffee Expert.

This coffee expert turned out to be William B. Harris, a ceffee dealer at 65 Front Street. Mr. Harris yesterday explained that he had been engaged by Dr. Wiley after he had already done much service for the Government free of charge in bringing to Dr. Wiley's attention many importations of faked or adulterated coffees.

"In October, 1908," said Mr. Harris, "I received a letter from Dr. Wiley asking on what terms I would act as coffee expert here, giving my whole time to the work. I had already acted for the Government in that capacity from the time of the passage of the pure food law until Dr. Wiley wrote me. I replied that I would take the place for $6,000 a year, 300 days to the year, and eight hours a day, that is, at the rate of $20 a day. I was allowed $20 a day, seven hours a day, only for the days or parts of days I had to work."

Here Mr. Harris showed his account books with the Government with entries of half an hour, one hour, and so on, as he had worked on those days, the time being that required for inspections or testings on those days. He might as well have charged three hours where he charged one hour, if he had been a dishonest man, for the Government had not watched over him. Immature coffee and black beans, imported as coffee, were pouring into this port at the time Mr. Harris unofficially entered the Government service.

"Everything went along all right," continued Mr. Harris, "until about the middle of June, 1909, I received a letter stating that I could not be paid at a higher per diem rate pro rata than the maximum annual rate, and that the Secretary of Agriculture had directed that my salary should not exceed $9 a day for testing, but still I was to receive $50 a day for appearing in court as expert witness."

It should be explained that the experts believe that the old law of 1869 limiting pay of scientists, which was the hurdle on which the Committee on Personnel believes it has tripped Dr. Wiley and Dr. Rusby, was dug up by Dr. F. L. Dunlap, subordinate of Dr. Wiley, but supposed aspirant for his place, who is generally believed to be under the influence of Solicitor McCabe. The experts also say that Messrs. McCabe and Dunlap appear to have great influence with Secretary Wilson in such matters.

Pay Held Up By McCabe.

"Not long ago," continued Mr. Harris, "I got a phone message to go to Washington, with the intimation that I would be sent to New Orleans to testify in a Government coffee case. I made arrangements to leave my business for a week, and took the next train to Washington. There I was told to proceed to New Orleans, and I asked what I was to be allowed. This question was put to McCabe, who said $50 a day as witness and my expenses. Dr. Dunlap also wrote me a letter, which I now have, saying I would get $50 a day from the time I left New York until my return, besides, of course, my expenses.

"I went to New Orleans, and in a reasonable time on my return sent my vouchers to the Bureau of Chemistry for payment. Then came back word that Mr. McCabe had refused to allow me $50 a day or anything except my expenses, except for three days actually on the stand in New Orleans. In other words, I was to get nothing for the time I was traveling to and from New Orleans, and if I was sent to San Francisco to testify one day, I would get but the $50 for the day on the stand, and nothing for the two weeks going and returning.

"I have protested in vain. Secretary Wilson has agreed with McCabe, and though this happened months ago I have not even been allowed my actual expenses which do not cover all the money I spent on the trip. I have refused to take the unjust amount which McCabe offers, and I don't like that sort of treatment."

The experts say that it is this sort of harassing attitude toward the Government experts that is making it increasingly hard to obtain or hold competent and honest men for the service, and daily augmenting the chances for the importation of adulterated and impure foodstuffs through the employment of dishonest or incompetent men, or the failure to obtain experts altogether.

Francis H. Leggett & Co., grocers, of this city, joined yesterday the large number of prominent manufacturers, provision dealers, and citizens, who are asking the President not to let Dr. Wiley leave the Government service. This is their telegram:

> To the President, White House, Washington, D. C.:
>
> We believe the conservative and honest food manufacturers of the United States are in sincere sympathy with the work of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, and we believe that no greater act of injustice could be committed than to inflict upon this great champion of pure food any unnecessary worry or sorrow. We hold him to be unimpeachable and incorruptible, and we look upon his services as invaluable to the Nation. FRANCIS H. LEGGETT & CO.

Private expressions in praise of Dr. Wiley's work were everywhere heard yesterday.

GOV. WILSON URGES JERSEY CITY TO ARISE

Cheered by 4,000 as He Calls on the People to Rule by Adopting Commission Plan.

IT'S THEIR CAUSE, NOT HIS

But He Is in Fight to Stay—Reference to Bob Davis's Borrowings Gets a Great Hand.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey carried his fight for city government by commission into Jersey City last night. Four thousand men and women of that stronghold of political machines assembled in the big new high school building and cheered almost every utterance he made in support of that form of government, which, he said, its enemies called new, but was as old almost as government itself.

The fight for and against government by commission is at fever heat in Jersey City. The election takes place next Tuesday, and last night's meeting furnished Gov. Wilson, its chief advocate, his last opportunity to urge its acceptance on a people whom, he said, had been governed so long by a few men that these men had come to think they owned the people and the Government and could borrow its money.

"The commission government will put an end to graft," said the Governor. "Graft is a peculiar plant, which flourishes best in the dark, in cellars, otherwise known as committee rooms. The moment you turn on the sunlight it withers away, and every man connected with it withers also. Publicity is the sunlight which does it. Every man connected with the graft of the Pennsylvania Capitol either died suddenly, committed suicide, or else is now hidden from the light in the State penitentiary.

"There is nothing so terrible as the gaze upon a grafter of his honest fellow-citizens who formerly had confidence in him. There is nothing like watching those in office. One of the advantages of being in a conspicuous position is that it keeps you honest. You can't do any funny things in public. The principle of publicity is the principle of rectitude. Some people had governed so long in this city that they thought they owned the Government's money and could borrow it."

This illusion escaped no one. Not a man in the room who did not know that he meant "Bob" Davis, who, it was said after his death, had borrowed from the County Collector. The applause was almost deafening. Before one wave of applause would subside another rose, and this was repeated several times before Gov. Wilson could proceed.

"This is called the Governor's cause," he went on, "but it is the people's cause, and so long as it is, and is for their benefit, I am honored in having my name connected with it. This is not an experiment. It is not a new thing. In some form it is in operation in all the best governed cities of the world. I challenge any man to contradict or controvert this.

"Governor's cause!" he said, with sarcasm. "It is the people's cause. The commission form is just. It gives the people the control of their own affairs, and if they don't want to control their own affairs I have no more to say about it. I have just returned from Kentucky, where I met many hospitable people. If they had not been so hospitable I might feel fresher than I do.

"On my way back a man got on the train at Huntington, West Va. He knew nothing about my views on commission government. I asked him about Huntington, and he said that with one or two exceptions it had grown faster in the last few years than any city in the country. I asked him why. He replied, 'For the last five years we have had the commission form of government, and the manufacturers seem anxious to come here because they and the people they bring to work in their plants are treated well.'

"It is easy to talk about the commission plan because it is so simple. You can watch five men, but you cannot watch twenty-five. Everything these five do must be done in public. You can see just where they stand on all questions, for you have their aye and their nay votes. No one would say that the streets of Jersey City were in ideal condition."

"No, no," cried many voices together, and every one laughed.

"You have a Water Board and a Finance Board, and they cannot agree as to the streets. One blames the other, and you cannot fix the responsibility, but in the commission plan there are no two boards to disagree. If they don't do the work you have your remedy, the recall. You stand by them with your watch in your hand, and call time on them if they don't do the right thing.

"On my arrival here this afternoon I was handed a paper drawn up by the City Democratic Committee, saying Jersey City had tried the commission years ago and it was a failure. It is not true. Reference was had to the plan put forward in 1871, when the Legislature down at Trenton selected all the members of three boards, or rather they were selected by a little coterie of politicians here, and you had nothing to do with it. There was not a piece of self-government in the whole act. It is a sad thing when men thus deliberately try to deceive the voters. I say this not in anger, but in regret. The commission cause will grow by such conduct. I am in good health now, thank God, and I am going to stay in this fight until the end. I may not succeed, but I will hold the confidence of my fellow men.

"The poor are in the majority, the rich in the minority, and whenever I can I would put government in the hands of poor men. Not that I have blood in my eye for the rich, for some of the rich have consented to receive me, but rich men have special interests which often conflict with the interests of the greater number. I would let the majority, who can be protected only by government, have the power. Rich men can get their lawyers, and can usually protect themselves no matter what happens; government is the only protection poor men have. Under bad government they go unhappy to their work in the morning and discouraged to their homes at night.

"I want you to distinguish to-night between elect and select. So long as the politicians select the candidates it doesn't make any difference whether the people ever go to the polls or not. I am a Democrat from the top of my head to the soles of my feet, and as a party man I believe in organization, because that is the way for men who think alike to get things done; but if a few politicians are to get together and divide up the offices among them it wouldn't make much difference if the people decided the matter by the toss of a penny. Who pays for the conduct of these political campaigns? Those pay who expect to get something personally out of the results, contracts, or some other personal advantage. If you could see a list of the contributors, you would see a list of those who expected some gain."

Gov. Wilson made a special plea to the policemen and firemen to support the commission plan, saying the policemen had come to Trenton in the Winter almost with tears in their eyes, saying they were the footballs of politicians in Jersey City, and asking him to sign a bill for their relief. Now they have a chance to escape the politicians.

Simmons Freed of Murder Charge.

WHITE PLAINS, July 14.—William L. Simmons, who has been under arrest since his wife, Annie, was found dead in her room on June 13, was released on bail to-day. The murder charge against Simmons was dropped, but he is held on a charge of attacking Rose Kerns of Mount Vernon, his relations with whom caused the police to suspect him of murder. The bail was $8,000.

Hyde's Case to Come Up Next Week.

District Attorney Whitman and Assistant District Attorney Clark held a long conference yesterday on the steps to be taken in the prosecution of ex-City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde, whose case was transferred from the Supreme Court to General Sessions by Justice McCall of the Supreme Court on Thursday. Mr. Whitman refused to discuss the case further than to say that the Hyde case would be put on the call calendar for Monday.

MRS. M. J. GOLDSMITH KILLED.

Mrs. John H. Judge of This City Only Slightly Injured Near Cape May.

A dispatch from Cape May printed in yesterday's Times erroneously stated that Mrs. John H. Judge of 27 West Ninety-fourth Street had been killed on Thursday in an automobile accident at Swainton, N. J. Mrs. Martin J. Goldsmith of 59 Crescent Place, University Heights was the woman killed in the accident. Mrs. Judge was only slightly injured.

Mrs. Judge, her son Victor H. Stockell with Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Goldsmith and the two children of the latter were going in an automobile from Mrs. Judge's home at Holly Beach to see the Elk's parade at Atlantic City. Near Swainton, twenty miles from Cape May, two boys on bicycles fell off just as the car was approaching. The automobile was swerved quickly to save them and in making the sharp turn a wheel gave way. The car overturned and all its occupants were thrown out. Mrs. Goldsmith was killed and one of the Goldsmith children, aged eight, was seriously injured, but is now doing well.

Mrs. Goldsmith's body was brought to her home here last night. Her funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Presbyterian Church, University Heights.

ANOTHER SEES NEW COMET.

Dr. Brooks of Geneva the Observer—But May Be an Old One.

GENEVA, N. Y., July 14.—Dr. William R. Brooks, director of Smith Observatory, saw this morning the new comet recently discovered by Lick Observatory. Its position was right ascension 4 hours 40 minutes, declination north 34 degrees 10 minutes.

The comet is in Constellation Auriga, about 11 degrees south of Capella, now in northeastern morning sky. It is moving slowly northwest and is a bright telescopic object, even in moonlight.

SAN JOSE, Cal., July 14.—With reference to the bright comet located not far from the bright star Capella, a representative from Lick Observatory, Mount Hamilton, states:

"We have been observing that comet for several days. We have not named an orbit for it yet, however, and therefore cannot determine whether it is a new comet or an old visitor. It is probably a new one.

"At the University of California they are working on the comet. The orbit has about 4 degrees of tail. It is a telescope object not visible to the naked eye at the present time because of the moonlight."

Sights the Comet Kiess at Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 14.—Prof. Edward C. Pickering of the Harvard College Observatory reported to-day that a photograph of the spectrum of the Comet Kiess had been obtained at Harvard on July 7 with an eight-inch Draper telescope which showed the two bands 3883 and 4737 bright and nearly equal. The former band was much the fainter of the two in Daniels Comet of 1907.

HOW TO SLEEP COOL.

Liverpool Man Read of Our Hot Wave and Sent Along a Recipe.

Police Commissioner Waldo received yesterday from Joseph Evans of No. 8 Malta Road, Marsh Lane, Bootle, Liverpool, who described himself as "only a workingman," a recipe for keeping cool in hot weather. Evans was prompted to send it after reading of the hot wave here. This is his advice:

"For a narrow bed get a piece of wood about the thickness of a broom handle that will reach from the head to the foot, about twelve inches above a person lying in bed. Then get a newspaper and gum or sew the sheets together so that they will reach down the sides of the bed and over the wood. Then place a sheet for blankets over the paper. That is all that is wanted. Leave a space of about eighteen inches clear from the head of the bed, and the person lying under it will find a nice, cool current of air passing through.

"For a full-sized bed the only difference is that it requires two pieces of wood or a cord drawn tight about eighteen inches from each side."

The Commissioner may try this, he says, if a warm spell should hit the town again, and let Evans know how it works.

AUTO TRUCK KILLS OLD MAN.

Merritt A. Jones, Retired Stock Broker, Crushed Under Weight of Stone.

While trying to cross Lafayette Avenue at South Portland Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday Merritt A. Jones, 78 years old, a retired stock broker, of 47 Greene Avenue, was run over and killed by an auto-truck owned by the Heinlein Cut Stone Company of Brooklyn. There was a heavy load of stone on the truck.

WATCHMAN'S SHOT KILLS.

Fires at Italian Who, When Ordered Away, Had Hit Him with a Stone.

PORT WASHINGTON, July 14.—An Italian prowling round the Sands Point Golf Club this afternoon attracted the attention of Hiram Eaton, the watchman. He was ordered to move on, and, stooping, picked up a stone and hurled it at Eaton. It struck him on the head and cut a deep gash in the scalp.

Eaton, dazed by the blow, drew his revolver and aimed at the Italian. He had taken to his heels and the bullet hit him in the centre of the back. He stumbled on a few steps and fell dead. Eaton declares that he intended only to disable the man, but dizzy with the blow shot too high.

He is held by Justice Charles R. Woods pending an investigation. None of the Italians here or at Roslyn know the dead man.

STILL NO MELLON WITNESSES

Court Now Sends Detectives to Seek Curphey and Kirkbride.

When Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions yesterday called for the appearance of Alfred George Curphey and Capt. Thomas W. Kirkbride, the two Englishmen wanted to testify in the Mellon divorce case in Pittsburg, and are out on bail to await extradition, they failed to appear. Detectives were at once sent out to search for the pair.

Assistant District Attorney Johnston again asked that their $2,500 bail be forfeited, but Judge Mulqueen again gave the two elusive witnesses one more week in which to appear. They were supposed to be in court several days ago, but failed to do so. Judge Mulqueen gave them until yesterday.

Detectives have been searching meantime for the missing Englishmen, but without discovering their whereabouts.

TWO MORE DIE OF CHOLERA.

Two Others Ill and Six Under Suspicion, Dr. Doty Reports.

Two more deaths from cholera were reported yesterday by Dr. A. H. Doty, Health Officer of the Port. Both were men who arrived here on July 5 on the steamship Moltke. The men were among those removed from the steerage of the Moltke and taken to Swinburne Island.

Gabriel E. Mastroubuoni, eighteen years old, died on Wednesday, and Lucia Daldone, sixty-nine years old, died on Thursday. Pietro Mussalo and Alfred Flori are now in Swinburne Island Hospital suffering with cholera, and there are six suspicious cases now under observation by Dr. Doty. All were passengers on the Moltke and came from Mediterranean ports.

Easton Loses His Child.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff yesterday dismissed the writ of habeas corpus sworn out by Henry Clement Easton for the possession of his four-year-old daughter, Dorothy, who is in the custody of her grandmother, Mrs. Annie Irene Jewell of 5 East Seventy-eighth Street. Justice Bischoff said that he was persuaded that the father was misguided in his efforts to change the child's condition, and that his solicitude was not due to his regard for his child's well-being, morally and temporally.

ON NEW TRAIL NOW TO STOKES LETTERS

SOME ONE'S STORY UNTRUE

Devery Said He Lifted Tray of Letters from Trunk—The Tray Is Fastened, Say Others.

There was another long hearing yesterday in the case against the four policemen who are charged with having made away with a bundle of letters tied with a pink ribbon, which W. E. D. Stokes wrote to Lillian Graham, and at its conclusion there was a great deal of doubt as to who was telling the truth and what the truth was. One matter was straightened out. First Deputy Police Commissioner McKay dismissed the charge against Lieut. Sullivan and Policeman Walsh of having taken citizens to an apartment where a felony had been committed. This action followed the testimony of Deputy Commissioner George S. Dougherty that there was nothing unusual in the occurrence.

Most of the day was taken up in efforts to confound the testimony of Supt. John Bloom of the Varuna apartments by George Gordon Battle, the attorney for the defendants, who had asked to have the other cases adjourned until Tuesday, so that he may be able to bring in some more witnesses, several of whom have not been mentioned before now. There is a newspaper photographer, for instance, at present away on a vacation, who is supposed to be a valuable witness, and who will be subpoenaed, and a reporter also will be called into court. But the most important testimony is expected to come from Michael Bensund of White Plains. Mr. Battle said that he had been too busy, and his time had been too short to allow him to interrogate this important witness, but he expects to be able to show that Bensund offered certain Stokes letters at the Ansonia. Bensund, it was said, was a private detective.

Walsh is on trial for a special charge, distinct from all the others. This is making the false statement to Commissioner Dillon that he had seen no letters at all in the apartment of Lillian Graham on the evening of June 7 and that he and the other detectives had taken none away except one torn letter. Later he modified this statement to some extent. On the stand yesterday he told how he had spent the hour following his statement to Commissioner Dillon with Flynn and McCormack in the ante-room of the Commissioner's office. They had refreshed his memory about the letters, he said.

There was also a great deal of discussion about the tray of the trunk in which the letters were found. Devery has testified on several occasions that he lifted the tray out and put it on the davenport. Yesterday he said that he put it on the floor a foot or so to the left of the trunk. Then Deputy Commissioner Dillon and Attorney Robert M. Moore took the stand to testify that it was not possible to take the tray from the trunk, as it work on a hinge. The other detective concerned in the case did not see the tray at all.

It developed during the day that Mr. Gleason and Cummings had visited the station house the night of the shooting and had talked with the detectives. James McCormack, a policeman who is not on trial, said on the stand that Miss Graham had stated the morning after the shooting, in the presence of him and Flynn, that the letters were in charge of her attorney, Martin Littleton, and that Miss Conrad had immediately changed the subject to that of her bag which she carried.

At one time during the afternoon Ariel L. Verges, a photographer for the International News Association, took the stand, but his testimony only corroborated that of Bloom, who had said that he took several reporters into the apartment before the detectives came to search the trunk.

Mr. Battle spent most of his time cross-examining Bloom, although the four policemen were on the witness stand a good part of the day.

Bloom was asked when he first met Cummings, the Ansonia house detective, and he said that he thought it was on the 9th.

"What day did you give Cummings the Stokes letter?" asked Mr. Battle.

"I never gave Cummings the Stokes letter," replied Bloom. "He lies when he says I gave him that letter."

"Didn't you see Cummings at the Ansonia on the 12th, and didn't you give him a letter written to Ethel Conrad by Stokes in regard to her engagement on The Mail and Express?"

"No, Sir, that's a lie," replied Bloom. "I didn't see Cummings at the Ansonia. He telephoned me to come over and see him."

Mr. Battle then called Detective Cummings.

"Didn't you receive a letter from Supt. Bloom?"

"Yes, it was the letter published in the daily papers the day after the shooting. Bloom brought the letter to the Ansonia. I asked him where he got it and he refused to tell me. I said to him: 'That's the letter published in the morning papers; did you sell it?' He said 'No.'"

It was finally decided to lump all the charges in the case together, using the same evidence for all, as it all bears on all the cases. Therefore the charges of making false statements, of having improperly searched for evidence, and of having found a package of letters tied with a pink ribbon and having some knowledge of where this package disappeared to are all being heard together. The hearing was adjourned late yesterday afternoon until next Tuesday at 4:30 P. M., when several new witnesses will be heard.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 14.—Michael Bersund, whose name was mentioned to-day at the police investigation in connection with the W. E. D. Stokes letters, has been stopping at the home of Henry Leviness, four miles from this village, for the last ten days, according to Mr. Leviness. Bersund, Leviness says, was recommended to go there by a friend. He says he does not know why the detective is stopping there, or anything about his business. Bersund, according to Leviness, goes to New York at irregular intervals. He went away this afternoon and is expected to return to-morrow. Leviness says he was formerly a cabinetmaker and lived at 169th Street and Alexander Avenue, New York.

Feared Homer Tidman of Boston Has Fallen Over Precipice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 14.—Homer Tidman, aged 18, of Boston, who was staying with his mother and brother at Salvan, near Champery, on a holiday, has been missing in the mountains for three days. He is said to have set out alone to climb the Dent du Midi range, and was traced to a hut, where he carved his name. There are no other traces of him, though a score of guides are daily searching for him. The American Consul at Lausanne is aiding in the search.

It is believed that the boy has fallen over a precipice.

BOSTON, Mass., July 14.—Homer Tidman is not known here. His name does not appear in the directories, nor is he enrolled among the mountain climbers.

CAMORRIST THIEF'S SKILL.

Robs Police Official to Show He Need Not Kill to Thieve.

VITERBO, July 14.—Capt. Fabroni to-day told the jury of the investigation made by Marshal Farris at the home of Maria Stendardo, where, the witness said, a meeting was held for the purpose of planning the murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife. Maria Stendardo is the common-law wife of Nicola Morra, who is accused of being one of the actual assassins. She is the only woman among the prisoners with whom she is alleged to have had great influence from the time that her beauty attracted the attention of those high in the Camorra. It is alleged that her home was the rendezvous for criminals. The witness said that following the murder of the Cuocolos the woman returned to her home carrying stolen goods.

Capt. Fabroni related an episode in connection with the arrest of Antonio Parlati, who was later released. Parlati, wishing to prove that by profession he was a thief rather than a murderer, offered to show his skill, which, he said, made it unnecessary for him to take human life in his operations. He laid a wager with the officers that he could rob Marshal Farris in the presence of Fabroni. Farris laughed at the boast, but ten minutes later, although his tunic was buttoned, discovered that his pocketbook and cigarette case had disappeared.

PUEBLA FEARS MADERISTS.

Federals Control City, Which Is in Dread of Further Hostilities.

PUEBLA, Mexico, July 14.—The Federals are now in control of the city and State, but intense anxiety prevails on the part of the people, who fear an early return from the surrounding country of the Maderists. The latter, it is reported, have been reinforced by men under the command of Tapia, the former leader in the State of Vera Cruz, and Zapata, the troublesome leader at Cuernavaca.

GATES SLIGHTLY BETTER.

Gets 150 Cables of Inquiry from Here—American Nurses Attend Him.

PARIS, July 14.—It was announced by the attending physician to-night that a slight further improvement had been noted in the condition of John W. Gates.

Throughout the day there was a procession of inquirers at the hotel where the financier lies. One hundred and fifty cable messages from American friends had been received and turned over to those in attendance upon the sick man.

The patient suffers no pain, and his mind is clear. Assisting Dr. Gros and his associates are four American nurses.

HAMMOND NOT FOR BERLIN.

Earl Dodge Says He Won't Succeed Dr. Hill as Envoy.

John Hays Hammond, Special Ambassador to the coronation of King George, will not succeed Dr. David Jayne Hill as American Ambassador to Germany, according to William Earl Dodge, Mr. Hammond's secretary, who returned home from London yesterday on the Cunarder Lusitania.

Mr. Dodge did not say that Mr. Hammond had received an offer of the post. He simply replied to a question. Mr. Dodge also said that the story that Mr. Hammond had nudged the King at dinner after the coronation ceremony was too silly to deny.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond have sailed from Europe on the Franconia, bound for Boston.

SAVE MRS. NAPOLITANA.

Death Sentence of Husband Slayer Commuted to Life Imprisonment.

OTTAWA, Ontario, July 14.—The Government to-day commuted Angelina Napolitana's sentence to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Napolitana killed her husband on April 16 last under unusual circumstances. She alleged at her trial, which quickly followed the commission of the crime, that her husband was on the point of forcing her to lead an immoral life for his financial benefit, when, to protect her name and the honor of her four children, she killed him.

She was convicted, despite her plea of justification, and was sentenced to be hanged on Aug. 9 next, about twelve days after she expected to become a mother for the fifth time.

Much pressure was exerted on the Ottawa Government to prevent the execution of the woman.

HONEST IN HIS POVERTY.

Lowly East Sider Turns Over to Police $200 He Found in Gutter.

Lieut. Brady was behind the desk of the Delancey Street Station yesterday when a poorly dressed man walked in and, after fumbling in his pocket, laid a roll of greenbacks on the desk and pushed it toward the Lieutenant.

"I am Israel Neboschik," he said. "I am a poor drygoods dealer. I have a little store in the basement of 163 Rivington Street. I was walking through Clinton Street yesterday and picked up this money in the gutter. It is $200. I am poor and old, and when I first found it I thought how much good it would do me. But then I realized that some poor woman might have lost it and that it might be her lifetime savings. So I am going to leave it with you until you can find its owner."

Then he went out. Lieut. Brady counted the money and put it away in an envelope.

"I don't know how I am going to find the owner of the money," he said last night. "But at least I have found an honest man."

MOTORMAN KILLED, TRAIN STOPS AT ONCE

HIS HEAD HIT SIGNAL POST

The death, in the rush hours yesterday morning, of William A. Stone, a Subway motorman, proved the splendid efficiency of the automatic mechanism used in the Subway for the stopping of trains within less than their own length in a moment of emergency. Stone's train was proceeding at full speed on the downtown tracks, just south of Dyckman Street, when he looked out of the side door of the motor compartment. In doing so his head is believed to have struck against an electric signal post, killing him and throwing his body out of the car to the tracks. Within a few seconds and within three car lengths the train, which was a local of six cars, came to a stop, the current cut off and every brake set.

The train left Dyckman Street at 8:42 A. M. yesterday, bound for the City Hall. As Dyckman Street was the starting station the train was not crowded. There were not more than one hundred and fifty passengers in the six coaches. The train was under full headway, when suddenly there was a grinding of brakes and the train came to a stop with a great jolt, throwing many of the passengers out of their seats. Conductor Stephenson and the guards rushed forward. Stephenson reached the motor compartment first and looked in. Stone was not there, but the side door was open.

The train crew got out and inspected the track. Under the third car they found the body of the motorman. Death had been instantaneous. The position of the body showed that the train had stopped within less than three car lengths. The hard set brakes showed how perfectly the automatic device did its work.

There was a delay of twelve minutes, while the body of Stone was removed from under the train and placed on the front platform of the first car. Inspector Henry, who had arrived from the 137th Street Terminal in the meantime, then took the controller and brought the train to the 168th Street station, where a new motorman took charge.

The facts in the accident were reported to General Manager Hedley, who gave out an explanation of the working of the device which checked a runaway train and perhaps a serious accident when Stone was killed and his hand fell from the controller.

"On all Subway cars," said Mr. Hedley, "we have a device connected with the controller and also with the air brakes which operates the moment the motorman releases his hold on the controller. The motorman, when running the train, must keep his hand on the controller all the time, keeping pressed down a small button that is in the top of the handle of the controller. As long as that button is held down the train keeps in motion, but the moment it is released the automatic mechanism comes into play and the train immediately comes to a stop.

"This unfortunate accident this morning shows the practical efficiency of the device. If anything happens to a motorman, such as a fainting spell, a weak spell, or his sudden death, the hand naturally leaves the controller, the button comes up and the train stops.

"This morning when Stone started his train the side door of the little motor compartment was open and for some reason he is supposed to have looked out and his head struck a signal post, killing him and hurling the body to the tracks. The moment his hand released the controller the automatic mechanism operated."

Mr. Hedley said that the result would have been the same no matter how fast or how slow the train was going at the time. The device, he added, was invented for the Interborough, and was first used on its trains. It is now also used by the Hudson tunnel trains.

SHIFT OF VANDERBILT AVE.

Fear That Proposed Plan Would Wipe Out a Needed Subway Entrance.

William McCarroll, Acting Chairman of the Public Service Commission, sent a letter yesterday to Borough President McAneny in regard to the layout of streets around the new Grand Central Station. The management of the New York Central Railroad proposed to move Vanderbilt Avenue 25 feet to the east, giving up a like amount of ground and taking in exchange a similar space on the westerly side of the street.

The Public Service Commission is interested in the matter because it would wipe out the present entrance to the Subway at the northeast corner of Forty-second Street and Vanderbilt Avenue, and no provision has been made for another entrance, although plans for the connection between the existing Subway and the Steinway tunnel provide for four large elevators from the tunnel to the mezzanine floor of the Subway at a point near this entrance.

FIGHT TO KEEP NEWS STANDS

Dealers Call a Mass Meeting to Protest Against Their Removal.

The newsdealers, determined to put up a stubborn fight to prevent their being driven from the streets, will hold a mass meeting of protest on Monday night in Eldorado Hall, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-second Street. They understand that it is the policy of Borough President McAneny's administration to force their stands from the streets on principle, whether they interfere with the use of sidewalks or not.

Leaders in the newsdealers' association, it is said, do not oppose the removal of the stands where the sidewalks are narrow, but they cite instances where stands do not interfere with pedestrians, but have been located there so many years they are regarded as landmarks, and are a real convenience. These are the stands which the association wishes to be allowed to remain.

There are about 4,000 newsdealers in Manhattan and the Bronx, 1,000 of whom are members of the association which is conducting the fight. Several well known and forcible speakers will express the views of the newsdealers at Monday evening's meeting. The matter will be heard by the Board of Estimate on July 27, and the mass meeting is intended as a warning to newsdealers of what they may expect unless they take steps to protect their interests.

HISCOX CO. CHANGES HANDS.

Chemical Concern Is Awarded to the Rawolle Estate.

Years of litigation over the affairs of the Hiscox Chemical Company, manufacturers of patent medicines, formerly of Long Island City, but now of Patchogue, was ended temporarily yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Garretson, sitting in Long Island City. He directed the transfer of the entire business from the heirs of David Hiscox to Isaacetta Rawolle and Charles J. Buchanan, as executors under the will of Frederick Rawolle.

The Rawolle executors sought to compel the fulfillment by the Hiscox heirs of an agreement between David Hiscox and Frederick Rawolle, who were partners under the name of Hiscox & Co. The partnership was dissolved on May 15, 1890. Justice Garretson finds that the Rawolle executors are entitled to full and exclusive control of the chemical company; have a claim of $126,000 against the estate of David Hiscox and the chemical company; also have a claim for $50,000 on account of notes that were turned over to the defendants; that Everett and Jesse Hiscox, sons of David Hiscox, must account for all profits of the business; are entitled to a judgment of $181,130 against Everett and Jesse Hiscox individually, and also are entitled to about $300,000 now in the hands of the receiver who has been conducting the business. It is understood the defendants will take an appeal.

JEWELRY LOST IN THE SAND.

Owners Seek Through The Times Gems Dropped at Far Rockaway.

Jewelry belonging to an entire party which went into the surf from Roche's Pavilion, Far Rockaway, a week ago to-day, was dropped on the sands and lost, and through The Times Lost and Found column E. V. Cavanagh of Bayview Avenue, Far Rockaway, is offering $500 reward for its return.

When Mr. Cavanagh and his wife and their friends went in bathing last Saturday, Mrs. Cavanagh's sister, Lauretta Masterson, preferred to sit on the beach. The jewelry worn that afternoon by the Cavanagh party was put in a chamois bag, which was intrusted to the care of Miss Masterson.

When her friends came out of the water she rose to join them. Unnoticed, the bag slipped from her lap. The loss was discovered in a moment or two, but a careful search of the sand revealed no trace of it, and it seemed probable that it had been picked up. Mr. Cavanagh notified the police and word was sent to pawnshops in this city and Philadelphia. Now he is offering a reward through The Times.

GAMBLING FEVER ON LINER.

Crowd on the Lusitania Played "Canfield" All the Way Across.

After anchoring off the Ambrose Channel light all night the Cunard liner Lusitania came to her pier early yesterday morning. She brought a host of Americans, many of them returning from the coronation.

The interesting feature of the crossing of the Lusitania was the playing of a card game called Canfield in the smoking room. Some traveler introduced the game the first night out, and after that there was hardly a time when there were not one or more Canfield games going on.

In Canfield, which is a form of the game of solitaire, the player buys the deck of cards from the banker for $52 and receives $5 for each card that is passed to the player's row under the rules. The highest winning is said to have been $200, made by a returning American.

MAKES THE JAIL HER HOME.

Elderly Wanderer Is Waiting for Her Daughter to Come for Her.

Mrs. Katherine Cunnion, more than 70 years old, is waiting in the Queens County Jail in Long Island City for her daughter Katie to take her home. Policeman Malone found her wandering about the streets on Thursday evening. Beyond giving her own name and saying that she has a married daughter Katie she has been unable to give any clue that might lead to her identity.

When arraigned in the Long Island City Police Court Magistrate Fitch kindly inquired of her where she lived, and she replied:

"This is my home; I live here, and I guess I'll go to bed now."

She was turned over to the matron of the jail and was made at home.

DEATH AND INJURY END A FAST RIDE

Arthur Weisbecker, Whose Father Was Killed Speeding, Tried for a Record from Yonkers.

DRIVER KILLED IN WRECK

Owner's Young Wife, Driving in Fear Behind in a Slow Machine, Saves Him from Burning to Death.

When Arthur Weisbecker succeeded to his father's wealth and string of automobiles upon the father's death in an automobile crash three years ago, the friends and neighbors of the family became much concerned lest the fate that overtook the father should some day overtake the son.

They recognized in both the same fondness for fast driving and high-powered cars. Because she did not care for the locomotive that ran over the highways with the speed of an express train making up time, Mrs. Arthur Weisbecker insisted that her husband, who inherited the Harlem marketman's money and his market, should buy for her use a modest touring car.

This car and a road racer figured in a sensational event at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the end of which was the death of a chauffeur, the serious injury of Weisbecker, and the destruction by fire of his racing machine.

Mrs. Weisbecker, who was trying as best she could to keep the car in sight from her automobile as she followed it south on Broadway from the Park Hill Inn near Yonkers, ordered her chauffeur to press the speed lever to the last notch when she caught sight of the sudden flare of light in the roadway two miles ahead of her. She arrived in time to lend assistance to others from her touring car in dragging the unconscious body of her husband out from underneath the burning machine, and to drag out also the dead body of Arthur A. Daley, the family's chauffeur.

Remembering the constant fear in which she had lived since the elder Weisbecker's death, the young wife would not believe that her husband was merely hurt and would recover. She screamed that he was dead so loudly that a policeman came from several blocks away and many heads appeared at the windows of near apartments.

The crash occurred at the corner of Broadway and 238th Street. At that point the Subway runs as an elevated road on the route from Dyckman Street to Van Cortlandt Park. Some sand had been piled beside the road for use in street repairs, and into this the automobile had plunged at a speed meant by Weisbecker to beat all Yonkers-to-New York records. The sand side-wiped the racing car and sent it into a pillar of the Subway line.

The gasoline tank exploded, the car overturned, the tonneau took fire, and but for the fact that Mrs. Weisbecker's machine was coming along behind Weisbecker would probably have been burned to death.

The evening's ride that terminated in the fatal accident started out innocently enough to be a mere dinner party at Coney Island. And the touring car was the one requisitioned by Weisbecker. His guests at the dinner included several men friends. Somewhere along between the fish course and the coffee Weisbecker decided that the touring car was altogether too slow and would never do for the rest of the evening's ride.

Accordingly he dispatched the car to his home at 601 West 116th Street with orders to the chauffeur to return with the racing machine and to ask Mrs. Weisbecker to drive in the touring car to the Park Hill Inn for a late supper. He and his friends, he said, would join her there, and they could all return home together in the cool of the early morning hours.

The ride from Coney to Yonkers was successfully made and a stop watch was kept upon the time made. After the supper at the Park Hill Inn, Yonkers, which was concluded two hours after midnight, Weisbecker suggested to his chauffeur that the time coming out was slower than the time he thought he could make going in, and that he had always wanted to see what he could do in the way of making a record from his home to the Park Hill Inn—a usual run for him and his friends.

The trip, before the accident occurred, had been almost half completed. The body of Daley was taken to the residence of Dr. Edwin C. Fawcett, at 500 West 111th Street, and next to Kingsbridge Police Station. Young Weisbecker, whose knee cap was dislocated, will be confined to his home for several weeks.

RED STAR DOCKERS STRIKE.

May Prevent Finland Leaving Antwerp To-day—Leader Arrested.

ANTWERP, July 14.—The dockers employed on the Red Star steamers struck to-day under the leadership of the strike agitator, Chapelle, who was arrested. The police are now protecting the stewards of the Finland, who are loading that vessel. The authorities are determined to brook no interference, and will resort to stern measures if necessary to put down all disturbances.

The Finland, which is scheduled to sail to-morrow, will probably not leave port. The strikers are boycotting the Red Star Company because of its long resistance to their demands.

DOTY DENIES TALE OF A CHOLERA SCARE

Drinking Water at Quarantine Not Infected Through Carelessness, He Says.

GRAFT HINT IN COAL BILL

While every one was becoming somewhat weary of Charles Dushkind's attempts to drag evidence from a Hoffman Island carpenter named Leavitt at the Quarantine investigation yesterday, the lawyer for the complaining immigrants suddenly opened a line of questions which caused every one in the courtroom to sit up and take notice. He had previously elicited from the carpenter the fact that since the investigation has started Dr. Doty has given some orders for cleaning and repairing at the station.

"Isn't it a fact," he continued, "that when all the buildings on the island were being flushed out, a couple of weeks ago, just after this investigation started, the water used in flushing out the dormitory in which the passengers of the cholera ship Moltke are sleeping flowed back into a drinking water cistern nearby, the cover of which had been carelessly left open?"

The witness, after a number of qualifications, admitted that he had heard something about some such occurrence.

"Didn't the other people on the island drink water out of this cistern after it had been thus contaminated?" Mr. Dushkind asked.

The witness again denied having accurate knowledge on the subject, but said he understood that this was so.

"And have not a number of cases of cholera developed on the island as a result of this cistern cover having been carelessly left off and of the drinking water having become contaminated?" the lawyer asked.

Again Leavitt said he had heard so, but protested vigorously that he was not in a position to know definitely whether his understanding of the matter was correct.

"Didn't Dr. Doty, when he heard what had happened, pay a hurried visit to Hoffman Island at 7 A. M. the day before yesterday and threaten to quarantine the whole island?" the lawyer asked.

The witness answered affirmatively, but still protested his inability to give competent testimony on the subject.

The hearing adjourned at this point, and the reporters immediately crowded around Mr. Dushkind and asked him to tell them all he knew about the alleged cholera outbreak. On questioning him closely they found that he was sensational but vague.

"The cover of a drinking water cistern was carelessly left off a couple of weeks ago," he declared, "and the infected water which had been used in flushing out the dormitory flowed into it. No one discovered it for several days, when half a dozen cases of cholera broke out on the island. Then evidences of cholera contamination were found in the cistern's water. The news of the outbreak so frightened Dr. Doty that he threatened to quarantine the whole island. He caused the half dozen cholera cases to be removed at once."

"No epidemic of cholera has been caused on Hoffman Island recently through any water used for flushing purposes getting into the drinking water through an open cistern cover," Dr. Doty explained somewhat wearily last night. "No flushing water has got into the drinking water and no cistern cover has been left off.

"The incident on which the story, either through ignorance of the employes or malice of other people, has been built is this: About five days ago one of the sewers on the island backed up. We investigated, and found that part of the sewer pipe was broken. We feared that in some way the sewage might pass through the ground and get into a nearby drinking water cistern. So I ordered that the cistern be closed. Absolutely no cases of cholera have developed on the island owing to the contamination of any drinking water.

"Among the Moltke's passengers, however, there have been two deaths from cholera. Six others of the Moltke's passengers have been removed to Swinburne Island, two of whom have cholera and the other four being suspected of having it. There are no cases of cholera on Hoffman Island now."

More evidence of inadequate bookkeeping, if not actual petty grafting in supply buying at Quarantine, was given yesterday before the commission.

Maurice J. Doyle, head bookkeeper, on being recalled to the stand testified that thousands of dollars' worth of the coal used by the Quarantine stations was purchased from a young man named John D. Marston, who had no coal yards or office.

"Here is a voucher dated April 21, 1911, showing a receipt of $599.95 by this man Marston from the Quarantine authorities," Mr. Dushkind said to the witness. "It purports to be for 160 tons of F. B. sea coal at $3.55 a ton. Yet the bill which Marston sent in under the same date, and which is attached to this voucher, is only for thirty-five tons of coal and demands only $124.25. Isn't that so?"

"Yes," replied Doyle.

"Why was $599.95 paid when only $124.25 was asked?"

"Can you find any other bills to account for this seeming overpayment?"

"No."

"This $599.95 was paid without any one approving the bill?"

"It appears that way."

Commissioner Bulger said he was going to make a special point of incorporating this piece of testimony in his report to Gov. Dix, as showing the financial methods of running the Quarantine Station. The hearing will continue this morning.

ITALY'S AGENT HELD.

Varola Charged with Collecting Illegal Duties Here on Parcels Post Matter.

Daniele Varola, manager of the firm of Genchi & Canova, agents of the Italian Government, was arrested yesterday in the offices of that concern, 15 Whitehall Street, by United States Marshal Henkel, charged with collecting illegal customs duties on parcels post matter transmitted from Genoa to New York for distribution throughout the United States. Varola was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields and held in $3,000 bail for examination Tuesday.

The Federal authorities would say little about the case yesterday, but it was intimated that higher officials connected with the Italian service in this country might be involved before the inquiry was ended. The Government alleges that Varola has made a practice for some time of collecting on parcels post matter, on which there was no duty, alleged customs charges ranging from 60 cents to $3 a package. No estimate has been made as yet as to the extent of the fraud charges.

OLD STREET CLOCK TO GO.

Has Stood in Grand Street Forty Years—Will Be Moved To-day.

The fifteen-foot clock which has stood on the northeast corner of Eldridge and Grand Streets for forty years will be removed to-day. The clock is owned by Isidore Leukowitz, a jeweler, who is 78 years old, and started in the jewelry business on the east side in 1860. He is going to move his store to West Seventeenth Street to-day and will take the timepiece with him.

The big clock, with its brass hands and gold lettering, was familiar to every one on the east side. It faced east and west, and thousands of persons, hastening home or to business by the Grand Street ferry, have timed themselves by it for a generation.

ALLGOR AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 14.—James M. Allgor, the spite-fence thorn in the flesh of Rumson Road, who emerged from a short stay in the county jail only a few days ago, was arrested here to-day on a disorderly conduct charge preferred by C. D. Halsey, a New York broker. Justice Sickles held him in $200 bail for a hearing to-morrow morning.

Halsey says that he was getting into the automobile, with which his wife and some friends met him at the station last evening, when Allgor said something to this effect:

"When are you thieves going to bring back the goods you stole from me? I suppose you have been to New York to skin other people."

The goods referred to were probably some lingerie that vanished from the front of Allgor's place a long time ago. Even then he was bitter against his fashionable neighbors because he had failed in his efforts to run an ice cream parlor and a bowling alley in a rather exclusive section of the Jersey coast. The garments displayed were largely feminine apparel, and they were marked with the names, only slightly disguised as to spelling, of certain Rumson Road residents. Allgor was ordered to take them down, but refused, and then an officer carried them off, a thing that Allgor has never forgiven.

Convicted recently of putting libelous placards on his fence, Allgor went to jail rather than pay $200 fine, and then paid the fine rather than stay in jail any longer than the three days of it which he endured.

MEMORY BACK, KILLS SELF.

C. A. Brady, Who Had Suffered from Amnesia, Found Dead in Bathtub.

Charles A. Brady, 30 years old, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas in a bathroom at the home of his brother, Frank S. Brady, 9 Broad Street, Newark, with whom he made his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Brady, with their eight-year-old daughter Mildred, left their apartment on Thursday to spend a few days at Far Rockaway. The key of the apartment was left with the janitor, W. H. Mead, so that he could fill the ice chest yesterday morning.

When Mead entered the apartment he smelled gas and traced it to the bathroom. He opened the door and found Brady's nude body in the tub. He notified the police and summoned Dr. Frederick C. Horsford. Efforts to revive Brady were useless.

Brady disappeared May 11 last and was found in Hoboken on May 20 by R. D. S. Putney, a brother of Brady's fiancée, who lives near Stamford, Conn. Brady's absence was explained to be due to an attack of amnesia. He had forgotten who he was and when he came to his senses he was in Norfolk, Va., where he saw a picture of himself in a New York newspaper and immediately came North.

Up to the time of his disappearance Brady was employed by the Manhattan Letter Company of New York.

THE MOLLERS RECONCILED

And Sugar Man Has Suit to Set Aside Deeds He Gave Wife Dismissed.

Following a reconciliation with his wife after meeting her accidentally, Charles G. Moller, a wealthy retired sugar man, applied in the Supreme Court on Thursday to dismiss his suit to set aside the transfer to her of property valued at $125,000. Justice Page dismissed the suit. Through this action it became known for the first time that there had been estrangement in the Moller family.

Mrs. Moller was Mrs. Jane Brennan and married Mr. Moller last August. The acquaintance dates back to 1904 when, according to Mr. Moller, Mrs. Brennan was a tenant in one of his houses on Madison Avenue. Two months after they were married, Mr. Moller, who is 66 years old, deeded over to his wife two houses, one at 290 and the other at 2,112 Madison Avenue. In his complaint he alleged that he deeded the property to her while in a weakened physical and mental condition, and that she "lured him into a compulsory submission to a marriage ceremony." After the reconciliation, Butts & Vining, counsel for Mrs. Moller, opposed the application to discontinue the suit on the ground that their fees, amounting to $2,000, had not been paid. Mr. Butts set forth in an affidavit that he had advised Mrs. Moller, after an examination of the complaint, that the real object of the suit was to attack her marriage and seek an annulment on the ground that she had another husband living at the time the ceremony was performed.

KEEPING CITY'S MILK COLD.

Board of Health Finds Most of It Under 50 Degrees, as Required.

Health Commissioner Lederle announced yesterday that results of a special effort to keep down the temperature of milk as it comes into the city had proved very satisfactory. The milk is examined not only at the thirteen points of entrance to New York, but in the wagons and upon its delivery to retail stores.

The average temperature of 888 specimens examined in the recent hot spell was 49 degrees Fahrenheit. This is one degree below the temperature that marks the upper limit, beyond which the milk is adulterated, in the meaning of the Sanitary Code. On two of the hottest days this Summer, of 618 specimens examined, only 78 were found to be above that temperature. Before the hot wave began the average temperature was about 45 degrees.

Inspection of milk in stores shows that the custom is fairly well established of surrounding the cans with ice. On June 16 a special investigation was made of milk on sale in retail stores on the east side. More than 250 inspections were made and only 156 quarts confiscated for being above 50 degrees.

Commissioner Lederle feels that the importance of keeping down the temperature of milk cannot be overestimated. He believes that concentration of effort in this inspection work will bear fruit in the reduction of mortality.

DR. PRANARD DUE TO-DAY.

French Housing Authority Comes on the Lorraine—To Attend a Convention

Dr. Charles Pranard of Paris, in charge of the Bureau of Assurance and Social Providence of the French Government, will arrive to-day on the steamship Lorraine to represent his Government in the National Convention of the United States League of Co-Operative Savings and Loan Associations, in Grand Rapids, Mich., on Aug. 2. Before that time he will visit State leagues and deliver an address.

Deputy Naval Officer Thomas J. Skuse, former President of the New York State and Metropolitan Leagues, will welcome Dr. Pranard on behalf of the United States League. Mr. Skuse will board the Lorraine in the Lower Bay, and a special committee will be at the pier.

Dr. Pranard will go to the Waldorf-Astoria and at 3 o'clock will start in touring cars with the committee for Manhattan Beach, where a dinner will be given in his honor. On Monday Dr. Pranard will be the guest of the Tenement House Department, and inspect the congested tenement districts of New York and Brooklyn.

The Co-Operative Savings and Loan Associations are interested in developing an interest in individual home ownership. Throughout the United States they have a membership of more than 2,125,000 men and women, with accumulated savings of more than $1,000,000,000. Through co-operation they develop habits of thrift and provide a plan for home ownership and the removal of mortgages.

To Preach for the Brokers.

Wall Street religious meetings under the auspices of the Evangelistic Committee of New York City will begin at noon on Monday. They will be conducted as in the last three seasons by the Rev. Nelson Page Dame, who will speak daily except Saturday and Sunday, in front of the City Bank.

SAYS DIX IS WRONG ON HARTE TAX BILL

STATE WOULD LOSE REVENUE

Furthermore, Necessity for Appraisals Would Not Be Avoided, According to This Authority on Corporation Law.

Gov. Dix has some radically wrong ideas regarding the Harte tax legislation, according to Frank White, an attorney whose book on corporation law is recognized as an authority, and a lecturer in the Albany Law School. Mr. White said yesterday:

"The message of Gov. Dix to the Legislature recommending the enactment of Senate Bill 1,577, introduced by Mr. Harte, for the amendment of Section 182 of the tax law, is attracting considerable attention among lawyers in this city. It is with the keenest regret that I am constrained to say the Governor's views are apparently based upon a serious misconception as to the provisions of this measure. His message is apt to create a very erroneous impression in the minds of the legislators as to the practical effect of the amendment in case it becomes a law.

"The Governor says, 'It will result in a considerable increase of revenue to the State, collected upon a fair and reasonable basis.'

"Let us consider this statement. At present a corporation paying annual dividends of 3 per cent. and having a capital stock unimpaired is required to pay a tax at the rate of 1½ mills upon its capital stock employed within the State; for instance, a corporation with, we will say, $20,000,000 of capital stock, is required to pay under the existing statute an annual tax of $30,000, and even more if it possesses a surplus. Under the proposed amendment the tax of this same company would be reduced one-half, to $15,000 a year, and all corporations similarly situated would be the beneficiaries of like reductions.

"In respect to the collection of the tax 'upon a fair and reasonable basis,' using the Governor's own words, I desire to say, and most emphatically also, that the proposed amendment will result in the most arbitrary, unjust, and inequitable method of taxation that could well be evolved by the genius of man.

"It will not only result in a vast reduction of the taxes of many of the large, prosperous, and wealthy corporations, but it seeks to shift the burden by placing additional taxes upon the unfortunate, unsuccessful, and debt-burdened corporations of the State; to illustrate, if a corporation has been engaged unsuccessfully in business to such an extent that its capital stock has been materially impaired, the tax will be the same as that of a corporation with unimpaired capital. A corporation whose unsuccessful business operations have resulted in such a material impairment as to make its assets worth only 25 per cent. of the amount of its issued capital stock, and there are many such, would be taxed the same as a corporation with equal issued capital stock unimpaired.

"To make this matter more clear, if possible, I will state it in this way: A corporation with issued capital stock of $100,000, paying no dividend, and with such an impairment of capital as to make its assets worth only $25,000 would be taxed $75, while a corporation of the same capitalization unimpaired and paying 3 per cent. dividends would be taxed the same amount and the result would be a tax upon the unsuccessful corporation, based upon its assets, four times greater than that upon the successful dividend-paying corporation.

"Among other misconceptions created in the Gubernatorial mind by the advocates of this measure is the one that it will avoid the necessity for the annual appraisal of corporate assets. The fact is the proposed measure does not abolish the necessity for the annual appraisal of corporate assets. Thousands of corporations taxed in the State of New York have a part of their capital stock employed in this State and the other part employed elsewhere, and under the Harte amendment it will still be necessary to appraise the amount of assets employed by such corporations within the State and the amount of assets employed elsewhere for the purpose of determining the proportion of capital stock taxable within the State.

"The enactment of the proposed measure will in my opinion cause a large loss of revenue to the State not only by the reduction of the taxes of the wealthy and prosperous corporations, so generously favored by this bill, but also by driving out many other corporations. An inequitable tax law of New Jersey has caused many corporations of that State to abandon their corporate charters there and seek incorporation elsewhere, principally in this State.

"A tax measure, similar in its effect to the Harte bill, was several years ago urgently recommended to the Legislature for enactment by Gov. Odell. After its passage and transmission to the Executive Chamber for the Governor's signature he granted a hearing at which the practical effect of the measure was made apparent, whereupon he vetoed the bill which he had previously recommended."

GIVES MAYOR 60-DAY LEAVE.

Bill Permitting the Designation of Deputy Before Senate.

ALBANY, July 14.—The Senate Cities Committee to-day reported the Cullen bill, authorizing Mayor Gaynor to have a sixty-day vacation.

The measure permits the designation as acting Mayor of any member of the Board of Estimate or the head of any municipal department in New York City.

FOR MANUFACTURING INQUIRY

Miss Dreier, Gompers, Dowling, and Brentano Named by Dix.

ALBANY, July 14.—Pursuant to the provisions of the Wagner bill, recently signed by Gov. Dix, authorizing the appointment of a commission of nine members to investigate the conditions under which manufacture is carried on in first and second class cities of the State, the Governor to-day appointed the following as members of the commission: Samuel Gompers, Miss Mary E. Dreier, Robert E. Dowling, and Simon Brentano of New York.

Two Senators are to be appointed by Lieut. Gov. Conway and three Assemblymen by Speaker Frisbie.

12,384 Died in This State in May.

ALBANY, July 14.—There were 12,384 deaths in this State in May, according to the State Health Department. Of this number 955 died from epidemic diseases, 1,272 from tuberculosis, and 1,839 from other diseases of the respiratory system, including pneumonia. Most of the deaths from epidemic diseases were due to measles, scarlet fever, and diphtheria.

SEEK VOTE WITH LUNCH CART

Suffragettes to Carry War Into the Bronx, with Food for Argument.

The Woman Suffrage Party will go into the lunch wagon business next Tuesday, hoping that the residents of the Thirty-fifth Assembly District, in and around Fordham, who go to eat will depart suffragettes. The lunch wagon will stand at Third and Pelham Avenues, near Fordham College, in the vicinity of the Republican Club of the district.

The women will leave the Suffrage Party headquarters, in the Metropolitan Building, at 10:30 Tuesday morning, and proceed to the wagon, which will be gay with suffrage banners. A meeting will be held near the wagon at noon, when the hungry horde is expected to arrive. Mrs. William Warren Penfield and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw will be among the speakers. Mrs. Gertrude Duncan, W. S. P. leader of the district, will preside, and Mrs. Augusta C. Hughston, in charge of the public demonstration work for the party, will be on hand to see that everything moves smoothly.

The party enrolled 197 new suffragettes, men and women, last week at Clason Point, where in a tent there are daily speeches and special demonstrations Saturdays and Sundays. In Dreamland Walk, Coney Island, where the party works in conjunction with a rescue mission, it is doing a flourishing business in political consciences while the rescue people are saving souls.

WOULD APPOINT STATE HEADS

Wagner's Resolution Empowers Dix to Select Them Instead of Voters.

ALBANY, July 14.—Majority Leader Wagner introduced a resolution by the request of the Short Ballot Association providing that the Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, Attorney General, and State Engineer be appointed by the Governor instead of elected as at present. The Superintendent of Public Works and Superintendent of State Prisons are made constitutional offices appointive by the Governor without confirmation by the Senate.

The measure further provides that the Governor may dismiss at pleasure any State officers appointed by him or by the head of any State department, bureau, or commission other than a judicial officer or one appointed by the Legislature. In the case of the Controller, it is provided that a hearing be held if demanded before removal.

RECALL DIX ELECTION PLEDGE

Certain Queens Citizens Think It Should Apply to Removing Gresser.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 14.—Gov. Dix was reminded of one of his pre-election pledges to-day when he was requested by taxpayers of the Borough of Queens to remove at once Lawrence Gresser, President of that borough. The request was contained in a petition presented by Arthur E. Keating, Charles Pope Caldwell, and William F. Mathews, representing owners of real estate valued at more than $1,000,000.

Samuel H. Ordway, as Commissioner appointed by Gov. Hughes to investigate charges against Mr. Gresser, recently recommended to Gov. Dix the removal of the Queens President. Gov. Dix has announced a hearing on the Commissioner's report for Sept. 12.

SAYS RACING IS DOOMED.

Failure of Gittins Bill Ends Saratoga Events, Declares Official.

ALBANY, July 14.—Horse racing at Saratoga and throughout the State is doomed, according to Andrew Miller, Secretary-Treasurer of the Saratoga Racing Association.

"The practical death of the Gittins bill in the Senate yesterday," said he to-day, "has rung the knell of any events in Saratoga Springs this year, next, or any other, so long as Directors of racing associations are made liable for something over which they have no control—that is, betting."

Another bill which the racing interests believe will pass the Legislature is being drafted, according to report.

$5,043,517 Claim Against State.

ALBANY, July 14.—A claim of $5,043,517 against the State was filed with the Court of Claims to-day by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company for lands taken for the barge canal and alleged damages resulting therefrom in the town of Schaghticoke, Rensselaer County.

McNAMARA TRIAL OCT. 11.

Judge Bordwell First Named a Date When an Election Occurs.

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—After setting Oct. 10 as the date for the opening of the McNamara dynamiting trial Judge Bordwell discovered that an election on State Constitutional amendments would be held on that day. The court, therefore, designated Oct. 11 for the opening of the trial.

The date was set as a compromise between the contending claims of the defense and prosecution.

John D. Fredericks, District Attorney, announced that the prosecution was ready to go to trial at any time.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

G. S. Kelk, Former New York Policeman, Struck Under a Tree.

Special to The New York Times.

CAIRO, N. Y., July 14.—George S. Kelk, aged 65, for thirty-six years a member of the New York police force, was killed by lightning here to-day.

He was in the field mowing hay. Seeing the storm approaching, he took refuge under a large tree. The tree was shattered by lightning, and after the storm his body was found. Death was instantaneous.

ALDERMAN IN CAR ROW.

Drescher, Who Put His Feet on the Seat Ahead, Arrested, but Soon Freed.

Alderman Alexander S. Drescher, who represents the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday upon the complaint of George Walter, a conductor employed by the B. R. T., who said that the Alderman had used profane and insulting language to him when he remonstrated with him for having his feet on an empty seat in a Brooklyn Bridge car.

When the case came up before Magistrate Hermann in the Tombs Court Alderman Drescher explained that the conductor had roughly ordered him to remove his feet, at the same time remarking: "You people act like pigs."

"I took it as a reflection upon the people of my district," said the Alderman, "and I resented it. We did not come to blows, but I told the conductor what I thought of him."

DIVES AFTER WOMAN FROM A FERRYBOAT

No One Aboard Sees the Two Go Into East River, but Tug Crew Picks Them Up.

NURSE TRIES SUICIDE

Chooses Deserted Stern Deck to Drop from—Rescuer Follows—Then Takes Next Boat, Minus Hat and Coat.

Nellie Anderson, a nurse, who lives at 686 Park Avenue, jumped off a Long Island ferryboat yesterday afternoon and was rescued with difficulty by a fellow-passenger, who dived in after her. They were both hauled out of the water by the crew of the tug boat Dictator, which had to abandon the lighter it was towing and do some smart manoeuvring in the stiff tide that was running.

The rush-hour crowd was just beginning to fill the Long Island ferryboats at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Anderson boarded the Flushing at East Thirty-fourth Street. When the boat had got well out into the stream she walked to the stern and jumped into the river.

The only other person in the stern of the ferryboat was William Henry of 24 Main Street, Long Island City. He threw off his hat and coat and jumped in after the woman. Just at the moment the Dictator was coming down the river with a lighter in tow. The crew saw Henry's dive and at once went to the rescue.

Henry found that the woman was fifty feet away from where he had struck the water. He swam up to her and kept her above water. The tug boat soon drew alongside, a rope was thrown to Henry and he was hauled aboard with the woman in his arms.

The Dictator landed both at the Thirty-fourth Street pier and Patrolman Regan of the East Thirty-fourth Street Police Station had Miss Anderson taken to Bellevue Hospital and placed in the prison ward. She declined to make any statement. Henry went to Long Island City on the next ferryboat.

ARREST SIX DOORMEN.

They Barred Police from Suspected Gambling House—A Test Case.

Lieut. Schlunfen and six detectives from Headquarters, after trying vainly to get into a supposed gambling house in West Forty-eighth Street yesterday afternoon, arrested six doormen in succession on a charge of interfering with an officer. The men were taken to the West Side Court, and it was decided there to make a test case of the arrests, and only one complaint was taken, that against Henry Frank of 318 West Forty-seventh Street, and all were paroled by Magistrate Corrigan until next Wednesday.

The men's counsel, Joseph Rosenbach, insisted that the police had no right to arrest the men without warrants. The police said that they were going into the house under Section 315 of the City Charter, which provides that a police officer can enter a suspected place for the purpose of investigation, and that the six men interfered.

Magistrate Corrigan, however, decided that Sections 1,842 of the Penal Code, which makes it a misdemeanor to interfere with an officer in the performance of his duty, covered the case.

The police then asked for an adjournment.

'JOHNNY SPANISH' CONFESSES

Mother and Sweetheart Shriek as Judge Gives Him Seven Years.

Fully realizing that his guilt had been established beyond all manner of doubt, as he said, John Weller, better known as "Johnny Spanish," leader of an east side gang who has been on trial in General Sessions for robbery in the first degree, broke down and confessed yesterday. He was sentenced to seven years and ten months in Sing Sing by Judge Mulqueen.

As Judge Mulqueen pronounced sentence, Welier's white-haired mother and his sweetheart, Mildred Rose, shrieked loudly to the great annoyance of the court.

Seeks New Appraisal of Gibbs Estate.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 14.—H. P. Keith, counsel for the State Controller, has appealed to the Supreme Court in the matter of the appraisal of the Arthur Gibbs estate on the ground that Tax Appraiser William Cornell failed to tax the estate heavily enough. Mr. Keith argues that a different basis of appraisal should be employed.

POLICE COURT HUNT FOR ICE MONOPOLY

Whitman to Call for Books of Three Concerns That Took Over American's Business.

DETECTIVES HAVE EVIDENCE

That Small Dealers Are Discriminated Against and Prices Raised—Waldo Sends Men to Up-River Stations.

The twofold investigation by the police and District Attorney into the present methods of selling ice in this city, which, it is alleged, are in restraint of trade, bore fruit yesterday when District Attorney Whitman announced that he would hold a hearing before a Magistrate to ascertain whether or not the law is being violated. City Magistrate Appleton consented to sit all next week, beginning Tuesday, in the library of the District Attorney's office, and hear evidence.

It is unlikely, according to the District Attorney, that officials of the ice companies will be examined, as under the law this would give them immunity from prosecution. The custodians of the books, records, and papers of the corporations will be summoned, however, and if the hearings sustain the charges the case will be laid before the Grand Jury for immediate action. The hearings will be public and Assistant District Attorneys De Ford and Ellison will represent the people.

According to officials at Police Headquarters the evidence obtained by the police will be startling. The fifty detectives who were sent out on Thursday to learn conditions at first hand made a preliminary report to Commissioner Waldo yesterday. This report, it was said, will show that dealers have been discriminated against, and that prices have been arbitrarily raised and the supply deliberately shortened. Nearly 500 retail dealers have been approached by these detectives and much information of value obtained.

Commissioner Waldo sprang a surprise upon the officials of the Knickerbocker Ice Company by sending a number of detectives up the Hudson to the various ice stations of the company to find out if a scarcity of labor prevails at the stations, as President Oler explained in a letter to the Commissioner. President Oler admitted that there was plenty of ice at these stations, but he attributed the shortage in the city supply to the fact that he couldn't get enough men to handle the ice. The Commissioner said that he could send the company all the men they needed within a few hours if the company was willing to pay them a regular scale of wages.

District Attorney Whitman said his investigation would be most exhaustive.

REFUSES AGAIN TO TESTIFY.

Lichtenstein Millinery Co. Inquiry Halted by Secretary's Action.

William C. Dreier, Secretary of the Lichtenstein Millinery Company, the Fifth Avenue concern which ran afoul of the Federal authorities as a result of the customs investigation, refused again yesterday to testify before the Grand Jury in its inquiry into the smuggling conspiracy with which the name of the Lichtenstein firm has been connected.

Some time ago Mr. Dreier refused to produce books of the company, on the ground that his constitutional privilege of not incriminating himself justified such an action.

The United States Supreme Court held against him, and yesterday he appeared with the books, but refused, on the same grounds, to testify as to entries. He will be the subject of new contempt proceedings, and in the meantime the Lichtenstein investigation will be halted.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

Joseph C. Lincoln is back again on Cape Cod, at Hardwichport, which is within a few miles of Brewster, where he was born. The two towns mentioned, together with Chatham, are the models of the Cape Cod villages described in Mr. Lincoln's books under the names of Trumit and Oreham. Mr. Lincoln is an enthusiastic deep-sea fisherman and spends much of his time upon the water. When freed from the demands of the cod and the haddock, as well as the lobster pots, he may be found touring the country, as he is an enthusiastic automobilist. His forthcoming novel, "Cap'n Warren's Wards," has for its hero one of Mr. Lincoln's Cape Cod characters, and portrays many other distinctive and contrasting types of this section of the country.

Ernest Thompson Seton, now Chief Scout of the Boy Scouts of America, will soon go on a lecture tour. His subject will be the Boy Scouts.

"The first of the Margery and Willie Jones stories," he says, "I wrote in the Philippines, where I lived three years as a Government teacher. The bulk of them were written later in Ohio and Connecticut, but the very last ones in Southern Spain, where I spent the Winter a year ago. It seemed rather laughable to be writing American kid stories in the tower of a Spanish inn, but a year of hard travel and sightseeing in Italy and Sicily had made me hungry for anything American—especially American kids. My tower looked out over a reach of tiled roofs to an old church belfry where a family of storks lived. I used to watch them day after day and think of Hans Andersen. I suppose the sight of a stork will bring back to most Americans the memory of their own childhood and their enjoyment of dear old Hans Andersen."

Mrs. Humphry Ward, when she made her visit here in 1908, met Mrs. Charles Schaffer, author of several books on flowers, and they traveled together into the Canadian Northwest, only to part at the little station whence Mrs. Schaffer started on an expedition of exploration for a lake only known to the Indians hitherto. The lake was found and duly reported to the Geographical Society of Philadelphia. The little pamphlet recording the facts and a few photographs of the lake were sent to Mrs. Ward as one interested. In a few weeks back came a note inclosing this request:

"May I carry the closing of my story 'Lady Merton' to your lovely lake? The coming of your pamphlet gave me the inspiration for the closing chapter."

Consent was given, of course. "Lady Merton" was published, and Lake Maligne, under the title of "Lake Elizabeth," first became known to the world at large.

Justus Miles Forman declares that he prefers to do his literary work at night. He expresses his preference also for writing short stories, "although in novels it is possible to become much better acquainted with your characters." It is not difficult to pick out many of Mr. Forman's pet views in "The Unknown Lady," whose characters are American, English, and French people, into whose lives enter many details of Mr. Forman's own art student life in Paris.

A. C. Benson, according to a recent report, has been appointed Professor of English Literature in the University of Cambridge. It now appears that this honor was not conferred upon him, but instead of it he has been given the Chair of English Fiction in the Royal Society of Literature.

Helen R. Martin, well known for her stories of Pennsylvania Dutch, is spending the Summer in her new home near Harrisburg. The house, in Italian villa style, stands on a bend of the Susquehanna—"the very most beautiful spot on this river, and, I think, on any river," writes Mrs. Martin.

Miss Jean Webster is spending the early Summer in the Berkshires—near Tyringham, Mass.—"walking seven perpendicular miles a day." A new "Patty" book will be published this Fall.

F. Berkeley Smith is now at work in his country home near Paris on a new book. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. Hopkinson Smith, joined him at his French villa a few days ago.

George Madden Martin, (Mrs. Attwood R. Martin,) author of "Emmy Lou" and other novels, has given up the attempt to write during the Summer heat in her Louisville home, and has gone to a lake resort in Canada to finish her novel.

Mrs. Russell Codman, author of "An Ardent American," was Miss Anna Kneeland Crafts, daughter of Prof. James Mason Krafts, former President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a famous chemist. She is the wife of Russell Sturgis, a graduate of Harvard, an enthusiastic sportsman, and a well-known Boston philanthropist. Mrs. Codman lives during the Summer at the North Shore.

Dr. Alvah H. Doty, Health Officer at the port of New York and author of "The Prevention of Infectious Diseases," &c., is optimistic and declares that science is battling successfully with cholera and other infectious diseases so that there is little or no danger of a plague in this country, even though isolated cases of immigrants should evade the barriers set up at Quarantine. His book is so simple and practical that it has been found invaluable not only to Government officials, but in homes and hospitals. Dr. Doty believes strongly in the importance of cleanliness as the most practical method of fighting infectious diseases.

ANNA MALLEEN
by George H. Brennan
"A beautiful little love story. The character drawing is exceptional—this being one of Mr. Brennan's strongest points, placing him well above the average of contemporary novelists. Anna is a beautiful character; but there is a minor character that is a positive work of genius. Rita is made only for love. Mr. Brennan, by mixing the pigments of love and death, has drawn a wonderful picture that is unique, perhaps, in literature." Indianapolis Star

CHARTER CHANGES.

There may be reasons, though none is now evident, why the Mayor should have a separate power of veto upon the granting of franchises for rapid transit construction, a matter upon which, as a member of the Board of Estimate, he would already have passed. This is one of the changes in the charter made by Mr. FOLEY in his revision of that instrument. Other changes provided for in the Foley charter strip the Controller of pretty much all his powers and functions, which are transferred to the Chamberlain, and that officer is made elective. There has always been a want of logic in the relations of the Controller's office and the Chamberlain's office in this city, but it is certainly not necessary to add to the number of officers we are called upon to elect. Real reform would reduce the number.

One change which bears vicious design written all over it is that which deprives the State Civil Service Commission of all power of control over the Municipal Civil Service Commission. We see no good reason why the Mayor should be authorized to name his successor in case of his own absence from the city. That plan might work well now and then, but it is wrong in principle. A fine lot of new jobs are created by this Tammany charter in the belief, of course, that they will have Tammany incumbents. That is a merit only from the Tammany point of view.

The most important change, doubtless, is that which constitutes a Board of Education of seven salaried members, to be appointed by the Mayor and to be removable by him. Some good arguments have been made in favor of a paid Board of Education. In a different community these arguments might prevail. The fundamental vice of the plan, however, is that the moment these places have a salary attached, they will be coveted by Tammany, and Tammany will get them. No Tammany man wants to serve the city for nothing. That has been the bulwark of the school system against political assault, the members of the board now serving gratuitously. Nine-thousand-dollar offices, however, will not escape the attention of Mr. MURPHY and Mr. MURPHY'S successors. Inevitably the schools will be put under political control by this change.

Fortunately there will be time to study the Foley charter. It will be diligently examined by men who are competent to pass upon all its provisions, to foresee its working and detect its hidden meanings, if any such it has.

THE GITTINS RACING BILL.

The Senate by a vote of 22 to 20 has, temporarily at least, refused to pass the bill, introduced by Senator GITTINS, that would enable the directors of racing and gambling establishments to evade responsibility for betting at the tracks and in poolrooms. The other Gittins bill, that would limit the meaning of the word "bookmaking," has been despaired of and abandoned by its sponsors.

There is no public reason why the remaining racing bill, which has been laid on the table, should be called up again. Plainly, the public does not want it passed. There is no party reason why it should be passed. Legislators who voted for the bill on Thursday readily admitted that their action damaged themselves and their party with their constituents. Some, who were influenced in a mysterious way to say that they regarded the bills as "splendid legislation," nevertheless felt constrained to vote against them, as they put it, "to save their faces" at home.

The people do not want the bill passed, the party would call down upon itself public condemnation were it passed. Only private reasons can exist for the measure. Senator BRACKETT of Saratoga, who stood up in its behalf, stated his belief that its passage "does not in any sense mean a return to the old order of things." He added:

> If the racing people honestly seek to keep out gambling, I believe they can do so, and I am sure that they will do their best. That being the case, it is what I regard as a duty to give them an opportunity.

They have the opportunity now. Race tracks are not abolished; racing is not prohibited. If the directors of racing honestly seek to keep out gambling, they may be assured that in their effort they will have the hearty co-operation of the best men and women of this State. Suppose, despite their united vigilance, sporadic cases of betting between individuals should occur. It is a principle of the law that it takes no account of little things. The directors know this. They do not fear prosecution and drastic penalties because Smith may wager with his neighbor Jones a dollar or two on the event of a race. The associations that are opposed to gambling at the tracks are after larger game; they seek to stamp out organized gambling, and this the law now effectually prohibits. If the men engaged in the racing business have a real love for the breeding and exhibition of horses, they may still indulge it, though probably not at so great a pecuniary profit as would accrue by a return to the old order of things.

IRISH PLAYERS.

The announcement that the players of the Irish National Theatre, under the guidance of WILLIAM BUTLER YEATS and Lady GREGORY, will visit the United States next Autumn is most interesting. As they represent an idea, and also an ideal, we hope they will be cordially received, but we have not noticed that the theatrical taste of our people has been tending largely toward the poetical, the mystical, the subtly humorous, or the obscure. Mr. YEATS and his companions will undoubtedly be entertained at tea and at dinner by many of the elect who will expect to be invited to see the performances. It is a pitiful failing of the elect in literature and art to yearn to be deadheads in the theatre.

As for the multitude, we should not care to bet on its acceptance of the dramas of SYNGE, YEATS, and Lady GREGORY. That "smaller public" which is supposed to like fine, subtle, and new things in the way of stage plays continually eludes detection. It was a complaint of the late EDWARD HARRIGAN that the kind of Irish play most popular with Irish-Americans is the one in which an Irishman in a green wig drives a nail into the head of an Irishman in a pink wig. But Mr. HARRIGAN was a born humorist who had his pessimistic moments. We should feel surer of Irish-American support of Irish National players if the plays were to be of the old-fashioned, wholesome, frankly sentimental sort like "The Shaughraun" and "The Colleen Bawn."

Yet there is no doubt that the little Dublin institution has established itself and gained recognition. It has founded, in a small way, a school of drama, and some of its plays have undeniable literary charm. The melancholy, the mystery, the lyrical beauty of Erin are reflected in them, with a suggestion, too, of the humor and the romance. You can never tell what the people will accept in the theatre. Sometimes they receive with great favor things that are fine, true, and new.

WICKERSHAM ON FEES.

The Federal service is a milch cow or a horned rhinoceros according to the way in which you approach it. The yield is richest and comes easiest in the Department of Justice, the head of which is Attorney General WICKERSHAM, who has reported to the President that, because of some puttering about a nine-dollar-a-day salary, Dr. WILEY and Dr. RUSBY of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture should be got rid of, one by resignation and the other by dismissal. HENRY L. STIMSON, as United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, began certain proceedings against the Sugar Trust. As District Attorney he received $10,000 a year. On April 1, 1909, he went to Mr. WICKERSHAM with his resignation. Mr. WICKERSHAM says in his testimony before the House committee:

> He came to me with his resignation, and said he was very anxious to go into private practice and was determined about it. I thought, and I told him I thought, he ought to undertake this special work for the Government. He was not very desirous of doing it, but finally consented to do so.

This special work for the Government was the further prosecution of the Sugar Trust frauds as special assistant to the Attorney General. For these special services Mr. STIMSON received, not $60,000, as has been often published, but $83,820, $69,000 for services and $14,820 for expenses. That is certainly better than $10,000 a year. FRANK B. KELLOGG, the great prosecutor, is another favorite of fortune. According to Exhibit A, presented in the report of the House committee's hearings, Mr. KELLOGG received as special assistant to the Attorney General in prosecuting the Standard Oil and the Union Pacific Railroad cases, $41,000 for services and $7,917 for expenses between the dates of March 5, 1909, and May 31, 1911. This appears to be only a part of the Kellogg milkings, however, for the vouchers examined by the committee on Thursday showed that Mr. KELLOGG had drawn about $75,000 in salary and expenses. In his proceedings against the iniquitous bucket-shop keepers in the District of Columbia Mr. WICKERSHAM testified that he had employed certain special agents. The largest salary paid to any of these agents, he thought, was $12 a day. This is $3 a day more than the services of Dr. RUSBY were thought to be worth.

It is in the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, it seems, that the patient toiler confronts the rhinoceros. Dr. RUSBY is an authority on the nature and purity of drugs who stands so high that he is considered to stand quite alone. He was employed as an expert in the work carried on by Dr. WILEY for the protection of the American people against poisoners, misbranders, adulterators, and all manner of rascals who by their frauds and falsifications have long been permitted without much molestation to cheat or poison them. Dr. RUSBY used to be paid $20 a day for his services and $50 a day for attendance in court. It would be of interest to know what influences secured the passage of the law which cut this compensation down to a maximum per diem compensation of $9, less than Mr. WICKERSHAM pays his first-class bucket-shop sleuths. The documents published in full in THE TIMES Thursday morning showed why the services of Dr. RUSBY could not be had by the bureau for $9 a day. An attempt was made to arrange the schedule of payments so that, while paying to Dr. RUSBY not a cent in excess of the sum at the disposal of the bureau for his compensation as pharmacognosist, he would nevertheless receive a different and higher rate of payment for his appearance as expert witness in court. The defenders of this arrangement say that, at worst, it was only a technical failure to comply with the strict letter of the law, while it is notorious that such things are continually done in many of the departments at Washington. In the view of the stern censors of the Committee on Personnel, however, of which Mr. GEORGE B. MCCABE, well known for his active hostility to Dr. WILEY, is a member, and in the judgment of Attorney General WICKERSHAM this arrangement concerning Dr. RUSBY'S compensation "merits condign punishment," and accordingly the Attorney General indorses the Personnel Committee's recommendations for ridding the Bureau of Chemistry of the men whose immensely valuable services have made it an effective safeguard against the poisoners, the misbranders, and the adulterators.

Mr. WICKERSHAM, it seems to us, has been led like an unresisting babe to lend himself to what there is much reason to believe is a plot to get rid of Dr. WILEY and Dr. RUSBY, to the end that the rascals may continue without molestation their fraudulent career. Condign punishment is to be meted out to these two malefactors, but Mr. STIMSON, who left a Federal office at $10,000 a year and very quickly earned $69,000, besides expenses, under Mr. WICKERSHAM'S appointment to precisely the same service he had officially performed, gets the nomination of his party for Governor of New York and then becomes Secretary of War. Suppose there had been a Democratic President and the United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York had been one of Mr. MURPHY'S men, and suppose he had done as STIMSON did. Every Republican in the land would have shuddered at the awful scandal on the Administration. But Mr. WICKERSHAM testified before the committee that he thought the fee paid to Mr. STIMSON was a reasonable fee for the service performed. We have no doubt of it. It is not to pass censure on the Stimson incident, but to point out the extraordinary contrast between Mr. WICKERSHAM'S procedure in his own department and the austere view he takes of the nine-dollar-a-day salary matter in the Bureau of Chemistry, that we have presented the two in this relation. While $83,000 goes to STIMSON and $75,000 to KELLOGG almost unnoticed, a prodigious fuss is raised and dismissals are recommended because of the little nine-dollar-a-day salary affair in Dr. WILEY'S bureau.

Such things do not happen without calculation and procurement. There was a time, years ago, at the beginning of the inquiry into the Star Route frauds, when the Post Office Department was sentineled all over with spies. A sub-officer or employé who was disliked, distrusted, or feared by the thieves was apt to find the place where he sat mined, as the places of Dr. WILEY and Dr. RUSBY appear to have been mined. There were dismissals and transfers and sudden changes, all with the purpose of shielding the thieves. It was a conspiracy of great power, reaching up to the Senate of the United States and including prominent officers of the Government. This attempt to get rid of Dr. WILEY and Dr. RUSBY somehow recalls the organization of the Star Route thieves in the Post Office Department.

HOW TO GET SUBWAYS.

The way in which we first got an installment of subways is well known. We allowed a responsible bidder to take all the risk, supply the money, and take all the profits. The city got all it bargained for, and more. Nobody imagined such an increase of tax values as followed upon the development of a business twice as large as accommodations were provided for. It might be thought that this established a precedent to be followed. Not so. Those controlling popular thought upon the subject caused the enactment of laws to prevent the repetition of the experience. We are now reaping the results of the alternative method of getting subways, and one of them is embodied in this pregnant sentence taken from the Mayor's statement yesterday:

> I caused real estate values to be raised this year over $800,000,000, thus securing an additional corporate stock (or borrowing) margin of $80,000,000. But only a small part of this can go to subways. The building of all of the subways with city capital is to be a slow affair.

The taxpayers know as well as the Mayor that valuations were increased in order to build subways, not because values were higher. It would seem that this unhappy experience is not ended. If an increase of valuations by $800,000,000 provides only a portion of the necessary resources it is an interesting conjecture whether it will be necessary to raise valuations by a billion more, or perhaps two billions, for the alternative method of building subways by city borrowing and taxation. It will certainly be an expensive process, and the Mayor says it will be a long one. But it will be a great recompense that the Interborough will be punished for its crimes.

The city's share of the burden of the enterprise does not end here. Those who have thought that two subways were twice as profitable as one, and three subways thrice as profitable, and so on, find a difference of opinion among those upon whom falls the responsibility of financing all these new subways. Accordingly, if the quarter billion project is to be executed at all, it is necessary for the city to take a second lien in order to get even a share of the profit. Thoroughgoing reformers would prefer, of course, that the city should take all the risk, and gather in all the profits, but that would take a quarter of a century, let us say, before the real richness of the venture would be disclosed. The city now has $100,000,000 invested in transit undertakings, of which about one-quarter is being utilized. This is the record on which the punishers of the Interborough appeal for a vote of confidence on the rapid-transit situation.

The Mayor proposes to "require" the companies to put in the money, or part of it. He is as indignant as any reformer could wish at the idea of the city guaranteeing them 9 or 10 per cent., allowing about one-third for services as operator above the cost of the capital. There are many who share the Mayor's impatience without just seeing how these things are to be enforced. By mandamus? By confiscatory regulation? It is, of course, forbidden to suggest that the method which worked so surprisingly well in the first place should be reverted to. That would require a long-term franchise, and a chance to make a profit. It is a pity that there cannot be a duplication or an approach to a duplication of "contract number one." No taxpayer ever paid a cent under that contract. The system will be a gift to the city at the hands of the operators and the nickel payers, and the city for seventy-five years meanwhile will be collecting taxes on hundreds of millions of real values, not valuations. It seems a pity that this way out is so completely blocked by the reformers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Publicity Changed Nothing.

A Washington correspondent who is apparently somewhat inappreciative of humor, in telegraphing to one of our neighbors an excellent, though slightly belated, account of the ingenious little conspiracy to deprive the public of the service and protection which Dr. H. W. WILEY has so long given it, very solemnly makes this truly amusing statement:

> It has been the earnest desire of the Administration to keep all the facts in connection with this affair secret until a final decision has been made.

Justly to judge the accuracy of this statement one would have to know precisely what the correspondent meant by "the Administration." If his intention was to designate by that phrase the zealous departmental officials who collected the evidence against Dr. WILEY, and convicted him of the crime which has filled with mingled horror and delight every adulterator and misbrander of foods and drugs whose business the doctor has destroyed or made less profitable—then the earnestness of the desire for secrecy is not to be doubted. For the case they made out was one much too delicate to bear the light of day. Publicity was sure to be fatal to the pallid little thing, and none was more sure of that than those who for obvious or mysterious reasons were interested in its survival.

But "the Administration" is a name too large for these people. The President, certainly, does not think that facts are changed by disclosure of them, no matter how widely, and certainly his "final decision" will be now exactly what it would have been if he had only known, instead of having been explicitly told, how the public views such charges as these, made against a man like Dr. WILEY. Then as now his verdict would doubtless have been, "Not guilty, but perhaps you'd better not do it again," spoken with a smile and a slap on the shoulder, followed by an order to get quickly back into the old fight against poisoners and swindlers.

Institutional Insanity Illustrated.

Of course there will come from St. Luke's Hospital an explanation why it was that a man taken there late Thursday night, suffering from that very serious injury, a fractured knee, was turned away untreated and told to go to a police station.

As it happens, the man was one of the best-known merchants doing business on 125th Street, not less able than willing to pay for medical services. He had been hurt when his automobile ran into an unlighted excavation, and had already been carried five or six miles in another automobile, so that his need for instant attention was pressing. These are facts, however, that have no bearing on the refusal of admission to the hospital, except as they remove a few conceivable excuses for sending a wounded man away from a place where he obviously belonged to one where as obviously he could not get the services he needed.

The only way to account for these and similar episodes—they occur with something like regularity at all hospitals—is by assuming the existence in these institutions of a tendency to afflict their managers and employés with what may be called institutional insanity. The diagnostic mark of this mania is a delusional belief that hospitals are erected and maintained as ends-in-themselves, not as a device for treating, and if possible curing, sick and hurt people. The victims of the mania are obsessed by the notion that hospital rules and regulations are made to be observed, whereas, of course, their purpose is quite different and they ought to be broken whenever keeping them interferes with the attainment of the quite different purpose.

Institutional insanity is apparently unavoidable and incurable—in institutions. Its manifestations are rather more irritating in hospitals than in other institutions, but it invades them all, and fully accounts for the general public's dislike of them all and its horror of going into them. The same or a very like malady affects municipal, State, and Federal officials to a considerable extent. They forget that they are the servants of the people, not masters or superiors, and treat them with something of kindly condescension at best and with fierce contempt at worst.

Like all insanity, these forms of it should excite sympathy, not anger, and those of us fortunate enough to escape the infection should be more gentle than we are with our afflicted brothers.

Montauk Point a "Bluff"!

According to The Scientific American, the periodic revival and elaborate exploitation of plans for creating a great terminal harbor at Montauk Point should be regarded with a certain degree of incredulity. The object of such talk, according to this authority, is not to bring about the shortening of transatlantic voyages by two or three hours, but to obtain permission for lengthening the Hudson River piers by exciting fears that the removal of some of the city's commerce to the end of Long Island may hurt a number of established and important interests.

Though a strong advocate of pier extension, The Scientific American feels sure that favorable action by the Federal Government cannot be forced by what it calls "a palpable bluff." To justify its use of that cruel phrase, it declares that nobody wants to escape two or three hours on a modern steamer, with all its luxuries and conveniences, especially as the change would mean arrival at a place where nobody desires to go and involves a lot of railway riding and additional trouble with baggage. The army engineers know all this, and that New York's port will for large reasons always remain New York's own harbor.

These remarks will grieve not a few eminent advocates of the Montauk scheme, but the words do have a dreadful plausibility.

Black vs. White in the Sun.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Surely you can't go back of this on black or white for hot weather. Lay a foot square piece of black cloth and same of white upon a grass plot in the sun for a week or any other given period and note the moist, healthy earth and grass under the black cloth and the dried, withered earth and grass under the white one, and only one conclusion seems possible. Black is cooler than white, or the ground and grass would not be fresh and moist under it.

HARRY E. SMITH.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The discussion over the relative merits of black and white for comfort in Summer attire seems to have failed to take into consideration the following circumstances:

During the greater part of the day and night, even at the equator, the human body is hotter than the surrounding air. A person living in a hot climate should therefore be dressed in such a way as to facilitate radiation from his body. The best way to accomplish this is to dress in black. For the same reason a swarthy skin is an asset in hot climates. In the bright sunlight dark coloring is disadvantageous, but as men and animals are less in bright sunlight than in the shade, this disadvantage is more apparent than real.

In colder climates the body, instead of being clothed to radiate heat, should be clothed to retain it. This is best accomplished by wearing white. The polar bear and other white animals of the frozen North thus derive great advantage from their snowy coats, apart from the protection afforded them from their enemies. Of course, in sunlight the white would be a disadvantage, but only half the body can be in sunlight at once, and for the greater part of the year none of it is in sunlight.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Another Perspirer" doubts L. S. Tredwell's statement referring to Omaha's 110 degrees in 1868. Here's one from St. Louis in 1903, which I had the misfortune to pass through. For two weeks during that Summer, viz.: the latter part of July and the early part of August, the thermometer registered from 106 to 110 degrees out around the Fair Ground district.

Salt the Bites.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A sure relief for mosquito, flea, and wasp bites, and the bites of other insects, is to moisten the spot bitten, then rub salt on it. Nothing more effective, as the sting fully and finally disappears a minute after the application.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just been reading in THE TIMES the paragraph headed "The Hottest Third of July." It struck me very forcibly, as on that exact day, and one day preceding, here in Santa Fé, we had found it necessary to make fires in the house, in order to be comfortable, on account of the cold.

Spoils Far Rockaway's Bathing Beach.

In these enlightened days special privilege of the sort that bears upon the many for the benefit of the few has apparently been accorded a deserved unpopularity and a consequent curbing, hence I wonder at this instance of seeming special privilege within the boundaries of our own Greater New York:

At Far Rockaway a land development concern is creating "villa sites" by pumping mud, drawn from the bottom of Jamaica Bay, on to the marshy flats that lie between Edgemere and Far Rockaway. This mud is deposited in a semi-liquid state, and as solid soil is sought, the surplus of muddy water is drained through a sluiceway into the sea. The result is the practical ruination of bathing at Far Rockaway, where the beach is resorted to by thousands for relief during the hot weather. Protests are said to have been recorded, but the work of this selfish land enterprise goes on, heedless of the comfort of the public. Is there no way of invoking an authority to stop this imposition?

The bathing season is limited, and during its short course our beaches, necessary as they are for the people's welfare, should be preserved from such violation.

They Helped Americans Win.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of to-day you make the statement that "Yale and Harvard have some reason to rejoice in defeat in the field games with the athletes of Oxford and Cambridge, upheld as they were by the American Rhodes scholar, Putnam of Kansas. The Englishmen, probably, mourn their victory. What right had this Western Yankee to 'butt in' and win for them the contest they couldn't win for themselves?"

May I ask whether you indulged in the same sentiments on the various occasions on which the Scotchman, Charlie Barr, successfully defended the America's Cup against a British boat manned by an all-British crew? May I also ask what would become of the various hockey teams of the prominent athletic clubs of this city were the Canadian contingents withdrawn from them? May I also ask what right have these blue-noses to "butt in" and win hockey matches for these teams that they apparently cannot win without them?

NARRAGANSETT LID ON TIGHT.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., July 14.—The partial reopening of the now famous quarters of the Narragansett Club, which was the scene of a sensational raid here last season, when John G. Cross led a posse of deputies in an attack upon the resort, has given rise to various rumors in regard to the revival of gambling at the Pier.

Within the last few days signs of an awakening have been apparent in the club. The wooden shutters placed over the alcoves of the upper part of the building have been removed and general renovation has appeared to be in process. Potted plants and shrubs can be seen from the street, and it looks as if the place was being prepared for the reception of visitors.

Rumors have been current of late that some apparatus, including paraphernalia used in playing for stakes, have been spirited at night into town here, but these reports cannot be verified. It is known, however, that a large pair of extra heavy doors arrived here recently, and that they were taken inside the club rooms.

Only the attachés of the place are visible, and as yet no managers have arrived. On a tour of inspection by two habitués of the Pier last night, the former quarters of the chief club here devoted to play for high stakes appeared to be deserted. The upper stories of the building were darkened and no lights were visible in any quarter.

It is alleged that down the street another place has been fitted up with a view to furnishing entertainment for the "high rollers" who come to town, and that certain precautions for the protection of the place have been taken and private means of entrance and exit arranged for the accommodation of patrons.

In front of the place is an imposing cigarette store, with a vast array of cigarettes, all one brand, in the show window. This place was closed last night, and it was quite evident that no sport of any kind was in progress in that establishment.

At still a third place two New Yorkers dropped in last night and asked for some information in the way of entertainment. They were told that the "lid" was on there. It did not require very shrewd powers of observation to note that the cottage was entertaining many motor supper parties, but no other sort of pastime was evident. The Pier at night just now has the appearance of a deserted village.

James D. Caswell, Chief of Police of Narragansett Pier, who figured in the raid of last season, denied to-day to a reporter for THE TIMES that any gambling places were open.

"There is no gambling on at the Pier to my knowledge," he said with considerable emphasis, "and if there was I certainly would take action in the matter.

"The licenses of several places have been revoked," he continued, "and these include the Baur Social Club, the Pequot Club, and the Highland Associates on Congdon Street."

PLAN FOR CATHOLIC RETREATS

Will Be Held Throughout the Year at Fox Hill Villa, Staten Island.

The Catholic Laymen's League for Retreats and Social Studies will take title to Fox Hill villa, near Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, on July 27 next, and expects to hold its first retreat for men there about Aug. 11. The house will accommodate forty to fifty guests.

The social studies classes will, it is announced, begin about Oct. 15. It is now planned that these studies will be conducted in the rooms of the Fordham University Law School, which are to be changed from the present Vesey Street address to new and larger quarters in Nassau Street.

The plan of the retreats is that they begin at 5 P. M. on Friday and end early on Monday morning, so that men lose only one business day, and in Summer that day is a half holiday. The retreats will be kept up throughout the year, every Friday to Monday.

The mainspring of the enterprise is the Rev. Terence J. Shealy, S. J., for some time connected with Fordham University, where the first retreats were held. He will conduct the retreats or most of them. Associated with him are some of the most vigorous of Catholic laymen, especially among the younger element. They include Thomas F. Woodlock, who is President of the league; Frank S. Whalen, Richard H. Clarke, Jr., Thomas M. Mulry, Andrew J. Shipman, Charles P. Davis, Stephen H. Horgan, and Sidney J. Finlay.

Has it occurred to the managers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad that the terrible accident which took place at Bridgeport might have been due to the sudden inability of the engineer, who is not here to explain or defend himself, to attend to his duties? Who knows but that the man was stricken at his post, possibly overcome by death, caused by apoplexy, or unconscious condition from heat or fatigue? It seems incredible that a man of experience or in his right mind could have taken the fearful chances of the open switch at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Is it not running a great risk to place the responsibility of hundreds of lives in the hands of one man?

Should not such places be filled by engineer and assistant, in case of need? We are taking such chances every day in many ways. Is not human life too precious to be so handled?

AN ENQUIRER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Upon reading your editorial on the "Bridgeport Massacre," and your correspondent's letter suggesting two engineers, allow me to call your attention to the Northern Railroad of New Jersey, which has been equipped with automatic mechanical train stops, attached to signals, which have been in operation for over four years.

The "Bridgeport Massacre" would have been averted by the use of this device, for the simple reason that where the human failed the distance signal, 1,000 feet in advance of this open switch, set as it was, would have brought this train to a full stop within this distance.

The Best Young Men.

The serious-minded man is surely at a premium, and I have never observed that he was in disfavor in any society where women (not school girls, whose judgment has not yet matured,) congregate.

If you can produce any quantity of these young or older men, who you think are so unpopular, bring them along and scatter them in your home city and I'll warrant they'll not be in the field long, and they run a pretty good chance of getting a good wife in this same busy city among the girls whom you blame so badly.

We know of, is a spot
Not meant to be a stamping-ground,

A bit of nature where

A fresh and growing thing
Of woods and waters, plants and flowers

But in New York it's different,
And if you want to know
And what he says is so.

RESEARCH BUREAU STOPS MOTT AWARD

ASSESSORS FORCED PAYMENT

Board Is Stirred by the Unexpected Opposition and Gives Its Authority for Settlement It Effected.

The Board of Assessors was stirred yesterday over the announcement that the Bureau of Municipal Research had instituted a taxpayer's suit to save the city from paying an award of $102,500 plus thirteen years' interest at six per cent., made by the board to Jordan L. Mott for damage to property on the Harlem River at Third Avenue by a change of grade. According to Joseph P. Hennessy, President of the Board of Assessors, the board merely settled a claim which had encumbered the department for years and had a decision of a former corporation counsel to guide it. The Bureau of Municipal Research, Mr. Hennessy said, only last March gave it as an opinion that Mr. Mott had been damaged to the amount of $65,500 because of the change in grade and at that time it did not say anything about a grade not being made or that the award had been outlawed, the two grounds on which the bureau now bases its suit.

"The statement of the Municipal Research Bureau," said Mr. Hennessy, "deals largely with ancient history and does not concern the present board in the slightest way. The Bureau of Research, as I understand it, professes to object to the award on two grounds; first, that there was no change of grade, and, second, that if there was a change of grade the claim is outlawed. The Board of Assessors has no desire to enter into controversy with the Bureau of Research and will not do so further than to make this statement, as it answers for its action to the Mayor and the Mayor only.

"No later than March 1 last, the Board of Assessors received a letter from the Bureau of Municipal Research relative to the Mott claim—written after the proceeding was closed—from which the following is quoted:

> We desire to inform you that in our opinion the amount of damage suffered by this claimant is not in excess of $67,500, and that this figure has been arrived at and is supported by expert advice.

"This letter was signed by Henry L. Bruere, Director, and was silent on the question of grade and as to the claim being outlawed. Subsequently, frequent inquiry was made by the Bureau of Research as to when the award would be made, and as to other particulars also. The Board of Assessors is recognized by the courts as a quasi judicial body, and to be subjected to inquisition under the circumstances pending its action by an unofficial body carries with it its own comment. As to the question of grade, former Corporation Counsel George L. Rives, under date of March 6, 1902, wrote to a former Board of Assessors in connection with the claim of Catherine Schuh, arising out of the Third Avenue Bridge approach as follows:

> I am of the opinion that the construction of this elevated approach in the centre of the avenue, although it does not include the entire width of the avenue within its bounds, constitutes a change of grade within the meaning and intent of the act authorizing the construction of the bridge and its approaches, and that it is the duty of your board to estimate and award to the claimant such damage as you may find she has sustained by reason of such change of grade.

"It will be noticed that this opinion was rendered more than nine years ago, and it remained for this board to take action. It is no concern whatever of this board whether the award is paid or not. The board has done what it believed its duty in the matter, and will be very well satisfied to have the issues raised by the Bureau of Research passed upon by the courts. To have decided that there was no change of grade would be not only to disregard the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, but would be to flout common sense also. The city acquired title in fee to the bed of Third Avenue opposite the Mott premises, and if the overhead structure does not constitute a change of grade, it would be hard to say what would constitute a change of grade. The authority for making the award is to be found in Chapter 413, Laws of 1892, as amended by Chapter 715, Laws of 1896, and Chapter 600, Laws of 1897.

"As to the question of thirteen years' interest at 6 per cent. on the award of $102,500, referred to by the Bureau of Research, this board is in no way responsible. In the year and a half of its existence it has disposed of nearly 100 cases of like character. In any event the question of interest fixed by special statute is something that the Board of Assessors has nothing whatever to do with, and was not included in the certificate of award, as shown by the following extract from the certificate:

> Thereafter, having duly considered the same, we do, upon the evidence presented and having personally examined the premises as to the claim here filed, hereby determine the damage sustained by the said Jordan L. Mott by reason of the said change of grade to the sum of one hundred and two thousand five hundred dollars ($102,500), said sum to be paid by the city of New York to the said Jordan L. Mott as and for the damage to said property known as lot 3 in block 2,319, by reason of such change of grade which took place Aug. 1, 1898.

Just to show that the board feels that Mayor Gaynor is satisfied with its work, Mr. Hennessy gave out copies of a letter he received from the Mayor a few days ago. It reads:

> Office of the Mayor, July 12, 1911.
> Sir: I am very much gratified by the report of the Board of Assessors. That the work of the board was all cleared up on June 30 last attests the industry and fidelity of the board during the last year and six months. Please convey my thanks to your associates, which I also send to you. Very truly yours,
>

Corporation Counsel Watson has already accepted service in the suit on behalf of Controller Prendergast, and the case is expected to reach the courts early in the Fall.

MORE POWER FOR CITY COURT

Can Take Cases Involving Up to $6,000 After Sept. 1.

The Governor and the Mayor have approved a recent act of the Legislature which increases the general jurisdiction of the City Court to cases involving $6,000 or less. The limit now is $2,000. The act takes effect on Sept. 1 next.

In addition the act confers naturalization powers on the City Court similar to those now held by the Supreme Court. It is the first time that there has been an increase in the jurisdiction of the City Court since 1881. This court (formerly the Marine Court) had naturalization jurisdiction as far back as 1852. Whereas formerly in this court it took almost three years to reach a case for trial, litigants can have cases tried within four months, if ready, and a case put on the short cause calendar, up to the limit of jurisdiction, $6,000, may be reached for trial in a month.

THEATRICAL FOLK BACK FROM EUROPE

WILL STAR WILKIE BARD

Frazee Has Contract for Next London Gaiety Piece—Henry R. Winthrop Silent on Directorship of New Theatre.

A number of theatrical people returned yesterday on the Lusitania. Among them was Mark A. Leuscher of Werba & Leuscher, who has been away just five weeks. He engaged Wilkie Bard, the English music hall star, and closed contracts for several European musical plays.

He was met in Paris by George Marion and they saw a performance of "The Jolly Peasant," Leo Fall's Viennese operetta, in which Mr. Marion is to star next year. The costume designs have been made by Hugo Baruch & Co. of Berlin, and Composer Fall has agreed to furnish four new musical numbers for the piece, which will be produced in October.

In Berlin they saw the first performance of "Die Verbotene Kuss," the new opera by Heinrich Reinhardt, who wrote "The Spring Maid," and also heard Paul Lincke's new opera, "Gree Gree," on both of which the company obtained options. Mr. Bard will probably star in the first of these.

Mr. Leuscher also obtained an option on the services of Marie George for the firm's production of Granichstädten's "Bub oder Mädel," also a Viennese work. Miss George formerly appeared in New York, but she has been in London for several seasons. Beatrice von Brunner, a young American girl who is appearing in London, is also under an optional contract for the same production.

Alice Lloyd's starring vehicle is to be chosen from four manuscripts by Leslie Stuart, Paul Rubens, Paul Lincke, and Hermann Finke.

Mr. Leuscher also brought back two manuscripts for Lillian Russell, "The Opera Ball" and "Her Majesty Mimi." He obtained the American rights for "Polische Wirtschaft," now running in Berlin, in which the firm will be associated with Messrs. Fellner and Dreyfus. Two new character plays for the use of Louis Mann are "The Whirlpool," by Felix Renneau, and "The Player of Oberammergau." Charles Macnaughton has been engaged, and will probably appear in Alice Lloyd's company. Mr. Luescher also arranged for the London production of "The Spring Maid" in connection with F. C. Whitney.

Richard Carle was on board the Lusitania, and so was Mizzi Hajos, who returns to star in the Western company of "The Spring Maid." This company will open in Atlantic City on Aug. 7.

H. H. Frazee, who is associated with George W. Lederer in theatrical productions, was also on board. He came back with a contract for the American production of the next London Gaiety piece. He also had a contract with Victor Hollander, the German composer, who will come here to write the scores of several musical comedies now being prepared. He said that he had a new play for Richard Carle, and that Vesta Victoria is to be starred.

Henry Rogers Winthrop, one of the Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company and The New Theatre, returned after a conference in Europe with Otto Kahn, Paul D. Cravath, and William K. Vanderbilt regarding the policy of these houses for next season. He came back at this time to see Clarence Mackay, and was surprised to learn that Mr. Mackay had sailed for Europe. Regarding the Directorship of The New Theatre he would say nothing.

MISS MARIE ELKINS TO WED.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—Reports have reached Philadelphia of the engagement of Miss Marie Louise Elkins, the daughter of Mrs. William Delaware Neilson, to Christian De Guigne, Jr. Wharton Sinkler, who married a cousin of Miss Elkins, has confirmed the report, although expressing himself as not authorized to announce the engagement.

Miss Elkins's father was the late William L. Elkins, Jr., who died nine years ago leaving an estate of $1,250,000 to be divided between his wife and children, but on Mrs. Elkins's marriage to Mr. Neilson on last May 3 she forfeited all but her third interest in her husband's estate, according to the terms of his will, which was then divided equally between their children, Felton B. Elkins and Marie Louise Elkins.

The elder William Elkins, who was a traction magnate, died in November, 1903, leaving to these grandchildren $1,000,000. So Miss Elkins, who will be 19 years old on Aug. 24, will have all told a fortune of about $2,000,000. Her brother Felton, who reached his majority in March, 1910, inherited an extra quarter of a million from his grandmother, who died a year ago.

Miss Elkins has been living with her mother in California, where her grandfather, Senator Charles N. Felton, makes his home, and where he amassed a large fortune in the gold fields a half century ago. Mr. Felton is 82 years of age. Miss Elkins is now at Mount Pocono with her mother, where she will probably remain throughout the Summer.

Mr. De Guigne, who has recently been their guest, sailed for Europe early this week. He is a brother of the Viscountess de Tristan, and will probably join her in France.

BISHOP AGAINST GOVERNOR.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 14.—Bishop E. D. Mouzon of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in effect read Gov. O. B. Colquitt of Texas out of that body to-day. Gov. Colquitt has been campaigning throughout the State against the Prohibition amendment which will be voted on July 22, and spoke here to-night.

In addressing an audience to-day Bishop Mouzon said: "I am one of the executive officers of the Methodist Church. I deem it appropriate to say this much because a man who is to speak in this city to-night is going about over the State claiming to be a Methodist, professing it with his mouth while denying it with his deeds. There is a rule of the Methodist Church, a rule as old as John Wesley, which forbids in toto the use of intoxicants by members of the Methodist Church except on the prescription of a physician and then only as one would use any other drug. The Methodist Church is a prohibition church."

ARRESTED FOR OLD THEFT.

Charles Warwick Tindell, a clerk, of 2,382 Webster Avenue, The Bronx, was arrested last night by Detectives Wilbur and Cohen at 179th Street and Webster Avenue, on a charge of grand larceny preferred by Austin Baldwin & Co., steamship brokers, of Boston, Mass., with a branch office at 19 Pearl Street, this city. Tindell is accused of taking $3,110.38, but the police say that the amount is over $8,000.

Tindell, the police say, was employed until four years ago in the New York office of Baldwin & Co. as a confidential clerk. Four years ago he was indicted in Boston, but, according to the police, disappeared and was not found until last night.

Tindell is charged by Baldwin & Co. with appropriating various sums which had been given him by the firm in February, March, and July, 1907, to get goods from the Custom House. Instead of doing so it is alleged he devoted it to his own use.

MARK TWAIN ESTATE ABOUT HALF MILLION

PROPERTY IN TWO STATES

Principally in This City and at His Home in Redding, Conn.—Manuscripts Said to be Without Value.

Deputy State Controller Julius Harburger filed with the Surrogates' Court yesterday the tax appraisal of the estate of Samuel L. Clements, (Mark Twain.) Mr. Clemens died at his home in Connecticut on April 21, 1910. He left in this State and Connecticut an estate aggregating $471,136.

By the terms of the will, which was made on Aug. 7, 1909, the author leaves his entire estate to his sole surviving daughter, Mrs. Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch. The witnesses to the will were Albert Bigelow Paine, Harry A. Lounsbury of Redding, Conn., and Charles T. Lark of 571 West 139th Street, this city. The executors of the will were Zoheth S. Freeman and Edward E. Loomis, both of New York, and Jervis Langdon of Elmira.

Mr. Clemens left no real estate in this State, but his personal property here amounted to $296,746. He held among his personal effects 929 shares of stock of five different companies at different times, which turned out to be worthless, as in most cases the companies were out of business.

Included in the estate in Connecticut were 1,750 shares o the Utah Consolidated Mining Company, valued at $80,377; 165 shares of United Fruit Company, valued at $29,370; 400 shares of Anaconda Copper Company, valued at $18,100, and 100 shares of Union Pacific Railroad Company, valued at $18,587.

His property at Redding, Conn., is valued at $70,000. A trunk containing manuscripts was said to be without value. Some of his important holdings in this State were fifty shares of the Mark Twain Company, valued at $200,000 and 100 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph Company, valued at $13,687, and 813 shares of J. Langdon & Co., valued at $21,674.

The author also left books valued at $2,000. An affidavit by Charles Lark, the witness, states that the appraisal value of $200,000 for the shares in the Mark Twain Company was considered too high by Harper & Brothers, who published Mr. Clemens's books, and who placed an upset value of $180,000 on the stock. In commenting upon the appraisal there is also a letter from F. A. Duneka of Harper & Brothers, which says:

"A copyright is a very perishable and usually non-marketable thing, growing of less and less value very rapidly after an author's death.

"While we expect that during the next four years the Mark Twain estate will receive under existing contracts $18,000 a year upon copyright royalty account, yet this amount after the expiration of existing contracts will immediately tend to dwindle and diminish.

"We put an upset valuation of $180,000 upon his copyrights, and even this we regard as excessive."

EVENING DRESS THIEF GUILTY

Against the protests of a lawyer engaged by his father, Karl von Metz Meyer, Brooklyn's evening dress burglar, pleaded guilty yesterday in the King's County Court, to a charge of burglary. Meyer, who is 23 years old, admitted that he had robbed many houses in the Heights section of the borough and even tried to get into the home of Judge Norman S. Dike, before whom he pleaded. While he was carrying on his operations the young man lived in a house opposite that of Judge Dike in Columbia Heights.

Meyer was indicted for robbing the home of Lowell M. Palmer, Jr., 134 Columbia Heights, and when asked to plead answered "guilty." Walker Matteson, a lawyer, of 12 Broadway, Manhattan, who said he represented the father of the prisoner, stepped forward and protested.

"The father," said the lawyer, "is a prominent lawyer in Christiania, Norway. I would very much like to enter a technical plea of not guilty."

"But the young man himself says he is guilty," said Judge Dike.

"But there is a question of sanity here that ought to be investigated," pursued the attorney. "The wires between here and Christiania for the last four days have been kept hot by the family of this young man, and I wish that his plea could be put off for several days."

The court decided, however, to accept the prisoner's plea. The young man said he came to this country three years ago to enter the banking business, but found no opportunity. After wandering in the South he returned to New York, and made some money speculating in stocks. Most of this he lost in the same way, after he had taken up his home in Columbia Heights, last Fall. Out of funds, he began operations last March as an amateur cracksman. He said that he went over back fences and tried the windows of houses, seeking those that might be unfastened.

"You must have tried the back windows of my home," said Judge Dike, "for you got into the house next door. It was a lucky thing for me that my windows were all locked."

The prisoner smiled, but made no reply to this.

"It was a question of getting some money or starving," said he, continuing his story. "There were reasons why I did not wish to beg. All the time I was looking for employment."

"Didn't you realize the danger you were constantly confronted with in these burglaries?" asked the court. "Why, when I found that somebody was operating in the back yards of my neighbors I secured a rifle which I would have used had I found you in my yard."

The young man said he fully realized the danger he faced, but took the chance. He was sent back to jail until Monday, when his case will be disposed of. Judge Dike directed Lawyer Matteson, who seemed much disturbed over the prisoner's action in pleading guilty, to present in the meantime anything he might have concerning the young man.

Still later, he founded The Insurance Record, which he owned at the time of his death. Its editor, P. J. Heilmann, married his older daughter. He himself was editor of The Vigilant, and in all his later years he was interested in insurance publications. For twenty years he was the head of the "literary bureau" of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. During the insurance investigation he found fastened to him the title "Dollar-a-Line Smith," for in his testimony before the Armstrong committee he explained that he had spent $14,000 of the Mutual's money at a dollar a line for nice things about the company and its management printed in out-of-town newspapers.

ACCUSES PARK EMPLOYE.

Michael J. Gannon, a Harlem contractor, brought a charge of extortion against John H. Dunn, a rodman in the Park Department, before Magistrate Appleton in the Harlem Court yesterday. He swore that on May 15 and May 22 Dunn accepted from him two sums of $10, and that he also demanded $5 a day in connection with the dumping of stone at a pier at the foot of 129th Street and the East River.

Gannon testified that he had paid the money over to Dunn in the back room of a saloon on each occasion and that he had gone to Commissioner Stover and complained after he had fallen out with Dunn. He could not remember the exact day of his visit to the Commissioner, but he thought it was the first week in June.

Assistant District Attorney Lee called John Richards, a driver, who testified that he had seen Gannon hand Dunn two bills in the saloon back room on one occasion when neither Dunn nor Gannon knew that he was present.

In his own behalf Dunn swore that though he had been sent to the dump on May 13, it was not till May 17 that he was appointed Inspector. Then, after he had been there a few days, Gannon asked him to go into a saloon for a drink, and had there told him that there was no use in his being a fool and that he should let him do as he pleased with regard to dumping sand and dirt instead of rocks.

"I told him," went on the defendant with emphasis, "that I valued my job and future more than a few dollars from time to time."

Dunn also declared that he had been forced to summon the police to prevent Gannon's drivers from dumping dirt.

Commissioner Stover testified that both Gannon and Dunn had been to see him about the matter, and he was under the impression that Gannon had not come to him until after Dunn had reported that the city's orders were not being carried out.

The court ascertained from the time sheets that Dunn had been at the engineering office on May 15, the day Gannon swore that he paid $10, and then declared that Dunn was absolutely innocent.

Phelan Beale, attorney for Dunn, declared that he would complain of Gannon for perjury, and Mr. Lee said that the District Attorney's office would give such a complaint immediate attention.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—Manager Wallace ran out of real ball players in the final tilt with New York to-day and was compelled to use pitchers and pinch hitters, substitute runners and infielders, but the change worked well and the locals took the game 4 to 3, thus gaining an even break.

Lake opposed Caldwell in the pitcher's box and the latter had the better of a tight pitching duel. Matters ran serenely enough for seven innings, the Yankees holding a three to nothing margin when the eighth session began. While all the thrills were taking place Manager Wallace and Chase shifted batters and pitchers around in a manner to remind one of Fielder Jones's palmy days.

Shotton, Black, and Schweitzer singled in succession, filling the bases. Wallace then made the first move in the little checker game by sending Clarke in to bat in place of Hallinan. When Chase figured this he withdrew Caldwell and shipped Vaughn, a left hand pitcher, into the breach to puzzle Clarke, a port side swatter. When Vaughn strode to the box Wallace countermanded his order to Clarke and sent Krichell in to bat in his place. Vaughn uncorked a wild pitch and Shotton scored victory number one for Wallace. Just when all the fans were saying how clever Wallace was Krichell hit into a double play, his fly being caught by Wolter, who doubled Black at the plate.

The real fireworks were yet to come and the ninth crowded more conflict than had been uncovered at Sportsman's Park in many moons. When the last chance hove around Wallace's men were three to the rear.

Stephens was retired in the ninth inning, but Criss walked. George ran for his brother pitcher and went to third when Wallace, who used to be a pitcher, doubled to right. Powell, another pitcher, batted for pitcher Hamilton and scored George with a sacrifice fly to Wolter, Wallace taking third. Shotton beat out an infield single, Wallace counting and tying the score. Black singled and New York had Pitcher Quinn supplant Pitcher Vaughn. Schweitzer beat out a hit to Knight, filling the bases. Pitcher Pelty who had displaced Hallinan singled to right and Shotton scored the winning run.

The Yanks had tallied three runs during the earlier moments of the game, two in the fourth coming from hits by Hartzell, Cree, and Knight, assisted by a double steal.

Knight's walk in the seventh paved the way for the third run when Chase forced him, but the manager went to third base when Magner singled to centre. Blair forced Magner, Chase counting.

Tigers Sweep Athletics Series.

DETROIT, Mich., July 14.—George Mullin, who has been out of the game for several weeks owing to an operation on his nose, returned to-day and pitched fine ball, allowing Detroit to make a clean sweep of its four-game series with the Athletics. Coombs lacked effectiveness at critical times, and half of Detroit's runs were due to a bad throw by Strunk in the third inning. Hartsel finished the game in left. Bush's fielding featured. BASEBALL NOTES.

On the recommendation of Scout Mickey Finn, the New York Nationals have asked the owners of the Youngstown team of the O. and P. League to place a price on Outfielder Howard Shanks. The Youngstown owners have agreed to name a price to-day. Finn compares Shanks with Elmer Flick in the latter's best days. Manager McAleer of the Washington team had a talk with Shanks last Sunday in regard to going to Washington, but the player does not care to hook up with the Senators.

The work of the Athletics in their first two games in Detroit caused Manager Connie Mack to make a big shift in his line up, but the new combination had no more success in the next two games. McInness and Derrick, who showed up so strongly during the recent series on the Hilltop, have been benched. Harry Davis has been put back on first base, and Danny Murphy was called back to second base, where he always played until he was crowded into the outfield two years ago to make room for Eddie Collins. Strunk, the substitute outfielder, who is a great ground coverer and poor hitter, succeeds Lord in left field, and Lord goes to Murphy's position. Eddie Collins will not be able to get back in the game for at least another week.

The Cincinnati club has obtained waivers from all the National League clubs on Pitcher Jack Rowan, and the big fellow will soon be let out to the minors. The Birmingham club of the Southern League is now angling for his services and will probably get the pitcher from the Reds.

Fred Luderus, the Phillies' first baseman, is receiving all kinds of publicity for his wonderful record of twelve home runs made this season. The record is being widely commented upon, and all the stories convey the information that all the home runs were made on the Philadelphia grounds. Luderus got at least one of these circuit clouts on a foreign field. In the Brooklyn-Philadelphia game at Washington Park on June 20 Luderus opened the second inning with a drive over the right field fence. Cy Barger did the pitching for the Superbas.

Dummy Taylor, for many years with the Giants, and a member of the Buffalo pitching staff for the past few seasons, is slated to be let out by Manager Stallings as soon as a satisfactory deal can be arranged. Taylor has been pitching in poor form all season, and an effort is being made to trade him for a catcher, to fill the vacancy caused by the release of Catcher Beckendorf, formerly of Detroit, to the Nashville Club of the Southern League. Taylor was recently offered to Montreal for "Natty" Nattress, but the offer was turned down.

Billy Lush, who does occasional scout duty for the Giants, has recommended Crowthers, a shortstop on a Connecticut semi-professional team, to Manager McGraw. Lush tried to sign the youngster to a New York contract last week, but Crowthers decided to wait and talk the matter over with Manager McGraw. He has a fine position with an insurance company in Hartford and wants to be more certain of the future before giving it up. In seven games played recently Crowthers made thirteen hits, including two home runs and a double, and fielded forty-eight chances cleanly at shortfield. Two poor throws alone marred his fielding record.

The clamor for earlier games by the patrons of Comiskey's South Side Park in Chicago has at last been heard by the management, and all games in which the White Sox figure at home will hereafter be called at 3 o'clock. A similar change at both New York parks would be decidedly pleasing to a great part of the New York fans, as the games now often run beyond 6 o'clock.

Steeplechase Swimming Events.

Swimming races will be held for boys at the large pool in Steeplechase Park, Coney Island, on Thursday evening. The events are seventy-yard novice, seventy-yard swim, scratch, and a diving contest. These events are open to all, and gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded in each event. Entries close on Wednesday, July 19, with Charles T. Earl, 446 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn.

THREAT OF RAIN KEEPS GIANTS IDLE

Philadelphia Defeats Cincinnati and Goes Into First Place Again.

There was no game at the Polo Grounds yesterday. It wasn't too wet, so it must have been too dusty.

Over in Philadelphia Charley Dooin's men riddled the Cincinnati Reds and broke away from New York, going into first place in the National League pennant race. Dark threatening clouds and the uncovered grand stand at the Polo Grounds led the management to call off the game, when more than 1,000 anxious fans clamored outside the gates. It had rained slightly before game time, but it wasn't enough to moisten the diamond.

Most of the people who went to the ball park knew that they were running a long chance of getting wet, but they were willing to undergo that delightful sensation in order to see the Giants take another game from the Pirates, assuming, of course, that they would.

A daily change in the leadership of the National League is expected nowadays, and New York was willing to take long chances to see the Giants hop into the lead. The management, however, had tender regard for nice Summer ice-cream suits, white frocks, and Nile green parasols. It wouldn't stand to see them spoiled.

It rained real water in Brooklyn, and the game with the Cubs was postponed on account of moist grounds. Everybody around here was boosting for the Dodgers to take another from the men of Chance, so that the postponement added to the keen disappointment of Greater New York. However, there'll come another time.

The Cincinnati team will be at the Polo Grounds to-day, and on account of the sun-blistered, uncovered stands, the game will begin at 4 o'clock instead of 3:30. This arrangement will be in vogue until further notice. The Saturday games in Brooklyn begin at 3 o'clock.

The Pirates go to Philadelphia to-day, and with "Babe" Adams in reserve they are calculated to do things to the Phillies, inasmuch as Mr. Alexander had his usual victory yesterday. But with that gleam of hope for the Giants, the cruel fact still remains that the Cubs go to Boston, and it is almost beyond the borders of the fondest hope to imagine that the Cubs can do anything but win. So looking at it this way and that, it would seem that Sunday morning will see the three teams crowding each other again for the lead. Let the merry battle go on.

Cardinals Lose Last Game to Boston.

BOSTON, July 14.—Manager Bresnahan used four pitchers in to-day's game in an effort to make the series a straight win for St. Louis, but the lead piled up by the locals in the second inning, when Golden and Geyer passed four men and were batted safely three times, proved too great, Boston finally winning 7 to 5. Phillies Leap to the Front.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., July 14.—Philadelphia got undisputed possession of first place in the National League race by beating Cincinnati to-day, the score being 5 to 4. Fromme pitched wonderful ball for four innings, but in the fifth the home team hit the ball hard and knocked him off the rubber. Bates was benched for disputing a decision at first base in the eighth inning. Score:

MOTOR BOATS IN LONG RACE.

Four Speed Craft Leave Huntington for Run to Marblehead.

Four cruising power boats started at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from a point off the Pier at Huntington, L. I., on the 240-mile race to Marblehead, Mass. Nearly a hundred power and sail craft gave the boats a hearty send-off with whistles and other salutes as they sped across Huntington Bay into the Sound.

The Inevitable, owned by Alexander Johnson, representing the Yonkers Yacht Club, was the leader when the starting signal was made by the committee, Henry R. Sutphen, James A. Blair, Jr., and J. M. Shaw, on board Vice Commodore Blackton's yacht Paula. The Thistle, owned by J. H. Wallace, also of the Yonkers Yacht Club, and James Craig's Classic crossed the line with the Inevitable, but the fourth boat, Frank D. Gheen's Kitsix, was seven minutes late in starting.

There had been a fresh northeast wind just before the start, but the water was smooth, and only light wind when the boats got away. Their courses will be through Long Island Sound, the Vineyard Sound, and across Nantucket Shoals and Massachusetts Bay to Marblehead, where the winner expects to arrive in from 17 to 18 hours.

Inevitable, Alex Johnson	55.44	Allows.
Kitsix, F. D. Gheen	51.48	1:21:55
Thistle, J. H. Wallace	49.86	1:59:12

The crews of the boats are: Inevitable, (Yonkers Yacht Club,) Alexander Johnson, Charles G. Davis, J. Ashland, and W. Hamonsky; Kitsix, (Motor Boat Club of America,) F. D. Gheen, Fred Boynton, and W. Roachdenberg; Thistle, (Yonkers Yacht Club,) E. W. Marshall, Albert Blowes, U. A. Greenwood, and Wesley Waterhouse; Classic, (Motor Boat Club of America,) James Craig, Samuel Cochran, Hugo Northoeacle, and Henry Welsh.

FARLEY TO SIFT RUMORS.

Registration Chairman Wants to Know About Amateur Athletes Being Paid.

Determined effort will be made at the meeting of the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association, A. A. U., in the Irish-American A. C. Clubhouse next Monday evening to get at the bottom of the rumors to the effect that certain metropolitan athletes have been paid to compete in events.

To this end Terence Farley, Chairman of the committee, decided last night to summon Robert Edgren of the New York A. C. before the council in an endeavor to have him tell what he knows about this phase of local athletics.

Mr. Farley believes that he will get some interesting statements from Edgren, in view of his repeated insinuations, although no names were mentioned in the stories which caused Farley to take his action.

The rule under which the Registration Committee commands the attendance of Edgren is incorporated in the article on the registration of athletes, and reads as follows:

> Such committee shall have the right in considering and determining questions that affect the amateur status of any athlete to act upon any kind of evidence, circumstantial or direct, and may receive and act upon affidavits, and in its discretion may consider common report sufficient basis for suspension or disqualification, and shall have power to permanently suspend any amateur athlete who neglects or refuses within thirty days to answer questions touching his amateur status to the satisfaction of the committee.

"A man who has knowingly competed with a professional for a prize or token," said Mr. Farley, "is ineligible to compete under A. A. U. rules, and we are going to find out, if it's possible, just who has been transgressing the rules."

Another matter which will come up for adjudication will be the protest of the Post Office Clerks' Association relative to the non-payment of entry fees at a recent set of games held by that body. Most of the clubs entering men assert that they have been informed by the manager of the sports that the fees would be waived, therefore their disinclination to settle the indebtedness. This part of the session promises to add to the warmth of the verbal fireworks, and make the meeting one to be remembered.

POLO AT RUMSON TO-DAY.

Challenge Cups to be Played for on the Grounds of the Country Club.

Beginning this afternoon and lasting to July 26, inclusive, the annual polo tournament of the Rumson Country Club, at Seabright, N. J., will be held. The prizes to be contested for include the Rumson Challenge Cup, presented by M. C. D. Borden, and the Monmouth Challenge Cup, presented by Felix Warburg and Strother Jones.

The first named is for teams of four under the existing handicap when played for, and to become the property of the club winning it three times. A winning club, under the rules, forfeits all claims to the cup unless the club competes for it each year until the final. Individual prizes will be added. The winners to date are: 1907, Rumson; 1908, Squadron A; 1909, Great Neck II.; 1910, Rumson.

For the Monmouth Challenge Cup similar conditions obtain as to the trophies' final possession, but it is for teams whose aggregate handicap does not exceed sixteen goals. It has been won as follows: 1907, Rumson; 1908, New Haven; 1909, Great Neck II.; 1910, Rumson.

This afternoon the Essex Freebooters and the Rumson Country Club will be arrayed against each other for the Rumson Cup, with the latter giving away something in the neighborhood of five goals. On Monday, for the Monmouth Cup, Deal will face the Essex Freebooters. For the same trophy the following day Rumson Country Club and Rumson Freebooters will play.

On Wednesday for the Rumson Cup it will be Deal vs. Westchester Freebooters, and on Thursday the Rumson Freebooters will meet the winners of to-day's match. Next Saturday the final will be played between the winners of July 19 and 20. On Monday, July 24, the Country Club of Westchester Freebooters will play the winners of July 17 in the semi-final with the winners of next Monday for the Monmouth Cup, the final on July 26.

CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS.

Miss Adelaide Browning of Ardsley won her place in the final round of the Hudson River championship women's singles yesterday on the clay courts of the Dunwoodie Country Club at Yonkers. In a match which was filled with brilliant playing, Miss Browning defeated Miss Anna Martin by the score of 6—1, 6—1. As a result of this semi-final Miss Browning couples with Miss Ellen Barry of West Point for the championship title and trophy.

An attempt was made to bring off the championship final of the men's doubles in which King Smith and Ross Burchard of Powelton played Frederick P. Fox and Dr. B. F. Drake of New Rochelle. Fox was two hours late in arriving at the courts, however, so that it was impossible to finish before the driving rain stopped the lawn tennis for the day. When the match was called off Smith and Burchard had won the first set at 7—5 and were leading on the second at 4—1.

The men's singles and doubles of the open tournament of the Siwanoy Country Club, on the courts at Mount Vernon, will begin this afternoon. The tournament is under the direction of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, and will continue throughout next week. H. G. Pond is Chairman of the committee, which also includes G. M. Lord, S. P. Breck, L. R. Lawyer, H. L. Ghormley, and W. W. Clark.

The rain stopped the challenge round for the Achelis Cup at the Seabright Lawn Tennis Club tourney yesterday, but should the weather prove favorable the match between Melville H. Long of California, the challenger, and Nathaniel W. Niles, the holder, will be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock.

Connecticut Tennis Winners.

LITCHFIELD, Conn., July 14.—The doubles championship in the annual State tennis tournament on the courts of the Litchfield Club were won to-day by F. Watrous, New Haven, and W. S. Inman of New York for the singles championship to-morrow.

Kassner Defeats Anderson Easily.

Fighting Joe Kassner had little difficulty in defeating Mark Anderson of Chicago last night in the star bout of ten rounds at the Brighton Beach Athletic Club, Coney Island. The bout was a slugging bee from the start, and both men scored heavily with hard body punches, but Kassner excelled and was entitled to the honors. There was no limit to Anderson's ability to take punishment, and he received more than enough to dispose of any ordinary boxer of his size, but he never once flinched and was always ready to mix matters. In the semi-final scheduled for six rounds Tony Burns disposed of Young Bernstein in the fifth round. Both boys fought hard, but Burns finally found a weak spot and whipped over the sleep-producing blow in the fifth.

FAVORITE GOLFERS LOSE AT WYKAGYL

Favorites were bowled over without ceremony in the first and second match rounds of the invitation golf tournament at the Wykagyl Country Club yesterday. The luck of the draw brought Gardiner W. White of Oakland and Gilman P. Tiffany of Powelton together at the outset, with the result that the gallery was treated to what may prove to be the best match of the tournament. White won by the margin of one up.

Later on White took the measure of B. T. Allen of Fox Hills. The former Staten Island champion hung on for quite a while, being one down at the turn and square at the tenth. Just when it looked as if the Oakland crack might have trouble he suddenly settled to his work, and by reeling off hole after hole in par figures won by a 4 and 3 margin. Par on the homeward journey is 38, but White beat this two strokes.

In the meantime E. M. Wild, the best of the Cranford golfers, was doing his work in most approved fashion. He began by trimming a club mate, R. M. Marston, by 5 up and 4 to play, and then took the measure of H. V. Gaines of Wykagyl to the tune of 5 up and 3 to play. Gaines had previously settled the aspirations of H. A. Steiner of Inwood. One of those to survive the competition was G. E. Widmer of the home club. In the morning he made the 452-yard eleventh hole in 3. A long drive and a full brassey up to the hole side made this possible. The summary:

First Sixteen, First Round.—E. M. Wild, Cranford, beat R. M. Marston, Cranford, 5 up and 4 to play; H. V. Gaines, Wykagyl, beat H. A. Steiner, Inwood, 3 up and 2 to play; G. E. Widmer, Wykagyl, beat F. V. D. Longacre, Saegkill, 3 up and 2 to play; G. P. B. Clarke, Dunwoodie, beat F. R. Hill, Canoe Brook, 4 up and 2 to play; S. N. Pierson, Wee Burn, beat P. S. McLaughlin, Wykagyl, 5 up and 3 to play; C. L. Moreau, Wykagyl, beat Dr. A. T. Haight, Wykagyl, 1 up, (19 holes;) Gardiner W. White, Oakland, beat Gilman P. Tiffany, Powelton, 1 up; B. T. Allen, Fox Hills, beat J. C. Deerick, Wykagyl, 3 up and 2 to play.

Second Round.—Wild beat Gaines, 5 up and 4 to play; Widmer beat Clarke, 2 up and 1 to play; Pierson beat Moreau, 2 up; White beat Allen, 4 up and 3 to play.

Beaten Eight, First Sixteen, First Round.—Marston beat Steiner, 2 up; Hill beat Longacre, 4 up and 3 to play; Haight beat McLaughlin, 3 up and 1 to play; Tiffany beat Deerick, 5 up and 4 to play.

The Woodmere Country Club, at Woodmere, L. I., has extended the privileges of the golf links to H. Sumner Sternberg for a special golf tournament, to be participated in by golfers of the newspaper, advertising, banking, and business interests. In the afternoon there will be approaching, putting, and driving contests for cups.

Elena Beats Irolita Again.

WINTER HARBOR, Me., July 14.—The schooner Elena, owned by Morton F. Plant, took the measure of the Irolita to-day for the eighth time since their succession of races began with the cruise of the Eastern Yacht Club from Long Island Sound. The margin in corrected time to-day was 9 minutes 31 seconds. Other winners were the schooners Taormina and Vagrant and the sloop Adventuress in different classes.

Frankie Burns Beats Sherman.

Eddie Sherman, the "Fighting Chauffeur" of the Bronx, who has been going along in leaps and bounds, struck a tartar last night at the Atlantic Athletic Club at Rockaway Beach when he stacked up against Frankie Burns, the Jersey bantam, and although he managed to last until the end of the ten-round session, was easily outclassed.

The tip-top condition of the New Yorker served him in good stead, as he was punished severely and only stayed the limit by his sheer gameness. In the seventh round Sherman was floored for the count of eight with a hard right to the jaw.

In the early rounds the Manhattanite started off well, and made a favorable impression with the members, but toward the end, after he had been floored, the hard punches to the body which the Jerseyite landed began to tell on him.

The big surprise of the day was when George Orvis beat James L. Taylor by 6 up and 4 to play in the losing eight of the second sixteen.

Fred Herreshoff showed better form to-day and won his matches in the second sixteen handily. F. A. Martin of the first division, who won the Taconic Cup last year, and was looked upon as a sure semi-finalist, fell a victim to D. W. Houston, who captained the Princeton team this Spring. D. H. Mudge, a schoolboy from St. Paul, showed excellent form this morning, but could do nothing in the second round. There will be an eighteen hole handicap medal round to-morrow morning for all not in the semi-finals.

GREAT NECK FIRST WINS POLO MATCH

In a drizzling rain, which developed into a drenching downpour as the game neared its close, the semi-final event for the Blizzard trophies was fought out yesterday between the Great Neck First organization and the members of the Taconic Club, the former winning with a total of 8¾ goals, against 6 earned and 2 allowed by handicap, credited to the latter.

The teams were evenly matched, and from the moment Malcolm Stevenson, the referee, threw the ball into play until the eighth period was far advanced, it was difficult to pick the winner. In fact, the last goal struck by the Great Necks decided the game in their favor by the margin of three-quarters of a goal. For Great Neck Elliott C. Cowdin lined up at No. 1, A. Scott Burden at No. 2, Hamilton Hadden at third place, and J. G. Milburn, Jr., "back." For Taconic N. L. Tilney was "forward," Thomas Le Boutillier at No. 2, J. Watson Webb in the middle of the team, and L. J. Hunt at "back."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company failed yesterday before the Board of United States General Appraisers to secure lower duty on so-called "night lights." They were returned for duty at the rate of 35 per cent. as "tapers," and were claimed dutiable under Paragraph 462 at 25 per cent. ad valorem. In overruling the protest Judge Hay states that no testimony was offered, while an examination of the sample does not warrant a disturbance of the Collector's action. The protest is accordingly overruled.

The board overruled a protest by B. R. Lawrence regarding the classification of paper, which the importer claimed was free of duty under the present tariff as "paper stock." The Collector assessed the goods at 30 per cent. ad valorem as "paper not specially provided for." The classification is upheld by the board.

The American Express Company and the Stone & Downer Company were defeated in an attempt to secure lower duty on surface-coated paper. The merchandise was assessed for duty at the rate of 5 cents a pound and was claimed dutiable at 30 per cent. ad valorem. The Collector's decision is affirmed.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

SHARP DECLINE IN WHEAT

Not in three years had the Stock Exchange had as dull a day as yesterday. On July 3, 1908, when dealings were much curtailed by the absence from the Street of many traders, who had counted on an extra holiday before the Fourth, and stayed away from Wall Street, although the Exchange was kept open, the transactions were somewhat smaller than yesterday, when they amounted to 86,847 shares. With that single exception yesterday's dealings surpassed in dullness any in the Stock Exchange record of the last seven years. This left the market very nearly in a position of absolute neglect. The only movements which attracted any attention were in some of the special issues, for the dealings even in United States Steel were so sporadic that they were exceeded by the transactions in several other usually less active stocks, among them American Cotton Oil. This latter stock showed a net gain of 1¼ points for the day and its strength was shared in, to a moderate extent by the other stocks in the same group. On light trading Union Pacific preferred rose 1⅛ points, even though the talk on which this was apparently based, namely, the possibility of renewed consideration at this time of the Union Pacific's segregation plan, had previously been discredited in quarters best informed regarding Union Pacific affairs.

Estimates of the changes which have occurred this week in the banking position at this centre indicated yesterday that both loans and deposits have been reduced possibly to a sufficient extent to offset the loss in cash, which it was figured the banks have suffered this week as a result of the continued large payments to the Sub-Treasury. To-day is the last day for the payment of subscriptions to the Panama Canal bond issue and next week the cash movements may be expected to resume a more usual course. Transactions involving the substitution of about $1,000,000 Panama 3 per cent. bonds for United States 2s as security for public deposits were completed yesterday. The market for the 2s is reflecting the increased offering of these bonds growing out of the substitution for them of the new 3 per cent. bonds in public deposit accounts. Sales of the 2s have been reported as low as 100¼, which is within one-half point of the low price for these bonds reached something over a year ago.

A movement of very considerable interest occurred in the wheat market yesterday even though it was without material result upon the operations on the Stock Exchange. Because of large receipts of new wheat, the July and other wheat options broke sharply, the decline extending to as much as 3 cents in July with recessions of about 2 cents in later options. The day's receipts of wheat at the principal Western points were nearly five times as large as on the corresponding day last year, and Chicago dispatches told of sales of new wheat at considerable concessions from the current month option price. All of this presented considerable contrast to much recent talk regarding the extent of the damage to Winter wheat and, although these large early arrivals have not necessarily any direct bearing on the size of the crop, they nevertheless have the effect of weakening the position of those who have been operating for higher prices in the wheat market.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

A pessimistic feeling prevailed on the Consolidated Stock Exchange throughout the day, its growth due more than anything else to the dullness in the market which has become more and more pronounced with the progress of the week. The leading stocks were obtainable on the floor during most of the day at concessions compared with the New York Stock Exchange price levels.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

London Market Strong—Paris Bourse Closed—Berlin Prices Firm.

LONDON, July 14.—Money rates and discounts were easy to-day.

The settlement on the Stock Exchange finished satisfactorily and cheap money induced fresh support. All markets strengthened, but profit taking caused moderate recessions with Consols closing ¼ below the best.

Money, 1 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1⅞ per cent.; for three months' bills 1 13-16@1⅞ per cent.

Bullion amounting to £27,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day.

PARIS, July 14.—The Paris Bourse is closed to-day and to-morrow.

BERLIN, July 14.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were firm.

Private rate of discount, 2¼ per cent.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

LA ROSE AT LOW RECORD

On Transactions of 1,500 Shares Sells Off from 4⅛ to 4—Standard Oil Reactionary After Further Rise.

Curb trading was stagnant yesterday, and outside of the cents-per-share mining issues aggregate transactions were in most instances limited to three figures. La Rose Consolidated was, however, an exception, the transactions in the sagging market totaling 1,500 shares, on which the price declined ⅛ from the opening to 4. This is a new low record for the year. Kerr Lake was strong, selling up from 5 to 5⅛ on sales of 400. The coppers for the most part closed even with the opening levels. Standard Oil, which rose 10 points on Thursday, opened 2⅜ points up yesterday, at 664⅜, and rose to 665. The rise was not held, however, and after sales of 145 shares the close was at 660. Except for a decline of 1-16 in Washington-Oregon Railroad & Navigation 4s, which sold off from 92 13-16 to 92¾, and a rise of ⅛ in Southern Bell 5s from 97⅞ to par, the bond trading produced no price changes.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

Prevalence of high temperatures throughout the country have adversely affected business, notably in retail lines. This has also given rise to unsettlement regarding actual crop conditions. The grain markets, after advancing sharply early in the week, reacted on news of abundant rains in many sections of the drought area. Trustworthy advices from the exposed territory show that the injury has probably been exaggerated and that a fairly heavy rainfall in the next four or five weeks will repair much of the damage done. Railroad earnings for the month of June show a decrease of 1.5 per cent., but there are evidences that the great systems are making headway toward lowering operating expenses to a degree commensurate with the smaller volume of business. Foreign trade continues highly favorable, the notable feature being the continued increase of exports over last year. The dry goods trade shows a hesitant tone, although conditions are sound and prices firm; arrangements are being made to attract buyers through the organization of special sales next week. The movement of footwear is satisfactory and the leather market rules notably strong. The outlook for the crops as shown by the Government's July report is certainly reassuring. The indications are for a total wheat crop of more than 702,000,000 bushels, which would be the fourth largest on record, and a corn crop second only to the record production of last year.

Bradstreet's says:

The events of the week have been mainly favorable, including as they do the passing, temporarily at least, of the heated wave, the worst for a decade; the occurrence of rains in drought-stricken sections staying the further deterioration of the corn crop: the maintenance of flattering conditions as to the cotton crop outlook, and the widening of activity in the iron and steel trade. Though midsummer quiet still prevails, trade conditions display a slightly better undertone.

Withal, buyers are conservative about placing orders for future business, and comparatively few salesmen are on the road. In fact, most interests seem to realize that trade will not improve much until near the Fall season, when prospects as to crop yields will be more freely developed. As it is, the situation of the surplus crops appears to be still a reasonably good one. Winter wheat is turning out in good shape, Spring wheat is in fair condition, and corn, though damaged to some extent by drought, still promises a fairly good yield, while cotton is in an especially fine position with a bumper crop suggested. Of course oats, potatoes, and hay are short, and this fact may have an important bearing on food prices later on, and it is significant that the advances scored in June in most food commodities have been maintained in July. At the same time, there is a trifle more doing in industrial lines, even though there is still considerable dullness.

Building trade statistics appear to indicate that that trade turned the corner in June. Operations in Eastern textile mills have been resumed, but the dry goods trade is still unsatisfactory. Coal is not experiencing the tense dullness heretofore noted, and while the market demand shows only moderate improvement, the general tendencies are more favorable. Railway traffic is of larger volume and the number of idle cars shows a moderate decrease.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Last Day for Bond Payments.

To-day is the last day for the payment of the subscriptions due on the $50,000,000 issue of Panama Canal bonds. The Sub-Treasury received $3,149,000 yesterday, bringing the total payments so far made through New York close to $39,000,000. A little more still remains to be paid than was turned into the Treasury yesterday, and presumably most of this will have been paid to the Government by the close of business to-day. Any subscriptions which are not settled to-day will be subject to new allotment by the Treasury Department, although the impression prevails in banking quarters that some grace will probably be allowed to tardy subscribers before any steps will be taken to reallot their bonds. The possibility of some of the bonds not being taken up is interesting those bidders at the public sale whose bids were made just under the lowest successful ones. The belief is that any bonds not taken by the original subscribers will be allotted to the highest unsuccessful bidders at the public sale on June 17.

One of the terms of the subscriptions to the Panama bonds was that interest from the date of payment to Sept. 1 would be paid on the latter date to the original subscribers without regard to any sale of the bonds which might be made before Sept. 1. This at first caused some uncertainty regarding the proper way for adjusting the interest on these bonds, but the rule is now generally being followed of deducting the interest for the period which will elapse up to Sept. 1 from the flat price paid for the bonds. This arrangement does away with the necessity of sellers of the bonds giving due bills for the interest up to Sept. 1. The Stock Exchange now has under advisement the question of accepting the temporary receipts which the Treasury is issuing in lieu of coupon bonds in settlement of "when issued" contracts made on the Exchange. It is expected that a ruling on this point and regarding the adjustment of interest will be made by the Exchange shortly.

Changing Missouri Pacific's Base.

B. F. Bush, the new President of Missouri Pacific, has taken cognizance of the long-standing complaint of Western shippers that the Gould roads were run too much from the New York office, by abolishing the private wires which have connected the New York and St. Louis headquarters. One of the first announcements made by the new President after his election was that he intended to live in St. Louis and direct the affairs of the road from that point. The wires entailed an annual charge of $23,000. One explanation of the decision to destroy direct communication with 165 Broadway was found yesterday in a story that Mr. Bush desired to make it more difficult for the New York office to transmit "suggestions" to him.

Copper Export Figures.

The Copper Producers' Association has discovered why there was such a disparity between the association's and the Government's statistics of copper exports last year. The Government announced the total exports in 1910, as recorded by the customs service, as 696,162,000 pounds, whereas the Producers made the total 722,431,000, a difference of 27,268,000 pounds. It was known that part of the difference could be accounted for by the fact that the Producers' figures are made up as soon as the metal is loaded to go abroad, while the customs totals are not made up until the vessels carrying it have cleared. Now, it has developed that in the Government's figures the exports from the two most important ports have been omitted. These are New York and Baltimore, from which 13,209,000 pounds of copper were sent out.

Better Bank Clearings.

As far as bank clearing figures reflect conditions, the returns from the principal money centres of the country this week indicate improvement. Since Stock Exchange operations were notably less than in the same period last year, the loss at New York alone, amounting to considerably more than 2,000,000 shares, the part borne by commercial operations in the growing total is emphasized. The improvement began with the month after a recession, following earlier gains, which had put the returns down to about 7 per cent. less than the corresponding figures in 1910 and 1909. Last week, according to Dun's Review, the country's aggregate bank clearings were $2,701,327,527, a decrease of only 2.2 per cent. as compared with 1910, and of 0.6 per cent. compared with the same week in 1909. New York was responsible for the decline in aggregate figures, the percentage of loss here being 3.5 per cent., against a gain of 0.3 per cent. for the rest of the country. Dun's points out the significance of the fair showing here in the face of slack business at the Stock Exchange, and says: "This indicates that the payments through the banks due to regular business transactions at this city are growing larger than last year, especially as there was a decrease reported last week of no less than 9.1 per cent."

Business at Low Ebb.

Not even during the stagnation in the Stock market which preceded the long-delayed decisions of the Supreme Court in the anti-trust cases was trading as slack as it was yesterday. The aggregate transactions of 86,947 shares were the smallest with one exception since March 10, 1904, when during the period of suspense over the Northern Securities case, there was a day of 73,633 shares. The exception noted hardly makes a fair comparison. It was July 3, 1908, when traders, having been disappointed in their petition for a triple holiday, decided in large numbers to take it anyway. On that Friday transactions were 73,204 shares.

SHONTS IN NEW ROAD.

Edwin Hawley, who exercises a controlling interest in the Chicago & Alton, and Theodore P. Shonts, President of that road, were elected to the Board of Directors of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway at a meeting of the Executive Committee yesterday.

About a year ago a traffic agreement, to run for twenty-five years, was made between the Alton and the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient. The two roads connect at Kansas City. Arthur E. Stilwell, President of the new road, pointed out that, with the Chesapeake & Ohio reaching from Newport News to Chicago, the Alton from Chicago to Kansas City, and the Orient Road to the Gulf of California, a new transcontinental line would be opened with the completion of the Kansas City & Orient. Mr. Stilwell says that the entrance of Messrs. Hawley and Shonts to the Orient has no significance outside of the common interests which the two roads now have. He would not credit a report that the Hawley group had secured a financial interest in the new line to the Southwest.

The Kansas City, Mexico & Orient is building to Topolobampo, Mexico, where connection will be made with the Hamburg-American Steamship Company for a transpacific service. About 900 of the 1,600 miles have been completed. Mr. Stilwell says that capital for the work projected this year has been provided. Most of the financing has been done abroad.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

New High Records for Traction Issues Made on the Philadelphia Board.

CHICAGO RAILWAYS' YEAR

Earnings for the Twelve Months Ended June 30 Increased $2,631,000 Over 1910.

Yesterday's dealings were unimportant on the Boston and Baltimore exchanges, in sympathy with the dullness in New York. In Philadelphia and Chicago considerable interest developed.

United Railways three-year 5s made another slight advance in Baltimore yesterday, and sold a full point above the subscription price. Cotton Duck 5s were fractionally firmer on reports of improved earnings.

Trading in the Boston market was exceedingly dull again, a couple of hundred shares being about the limit of transactions in any one mining stock. In the miscellaneous department there appeared to be a fair demand for Massachusetts Electric, the stock advancing about a half point on transactions of over 1,000 shares. The balance of the market held dull and without feature throughout the session.

Public utility corporation stocks again showed an upward tendency on the Chicago Stock Exchange Friday. While there was decided advance in prices in most of the securities, it was noted that those of the elevated and surface railroads seemed to be affected by the same conditions which have sent Commonwealth Edison up recently. Lake Street "L" 5s were the leaders in the upward movement, making a gain of over a point during the day. Commonwealth Edison itself was strong, selling ex-dividend.

While the facts have not yet been announced, reports are current that something important is pending relative to the transfer of the Chicago and Oak Park Elevated Company to the merger syndicate. It is understood that Henry A. Blair's trip to New York was largely on that account, and he may make some sort of an announcement when he returns to Chicago next week.

The position of the Chicago and Oak Park Company consolidation has been something of a mystery ever since the deal was taken up. The Northwestern owns slightly more than 51 per cent. of that company's stock, and it is part of its contract in the merger to deliver these holdings to the syndicate. The stock will, of course, control the property, but what is to be done with the minority holdings is not clear. No offer has been made by the syndicate for any of the Oak Park's stock, and the shares probably will be allowed to remain outstanding just the same as the small minority balances of stock in the other companies which did not go into the consolidation plan. In connection with the sales of the $5,000,000 bonds to a New York syndicate, the Chicago Railways Company has prepared a rough statement of operations in the twelve months ended June 30. This shows gross earnings for that period of $15,538,569, against $12,907,992 in the twelve months ended June 30, 1910, an increase of $2,630,867, or 20.4 per cent.

Friday was the liveliest day of the week in traction stocks in the Philadelphia Exchange, and responding to an animated demand both Union and Philadelphia Rapid Transit crossed the previous high records this year. The activity in the traction stocks was said by some to have been the result of pool operations, but the Street was full of bullish literature, and one large Chestnut Street house prepared an exhaustive review of Philadelphia Rapid Transit for publication to-day. The most important turn in the local market was not in stocks, but in bonds, it being the broadest day of the week in this connection. Inter-State Railways 4s were the leaders.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

BANK DIRECTORS PRODDED.

Must Attend to Affairs or Federal Examiners Will Do So.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Directors of National banks who fail to hold meetings frequently and who give other evidences of a lack of personal interest in the affairs of their banks will hereafter find a National bank examiner overhauling their institutions at least four times a year.

Orders were issued to all National bank examiners to-day to request banks in their districts to hold Directors' meetings at least once a month, to maintain a discount committee, an examining committee, and to adopt a permanent system of approving loans and discounts. Those which refuse will be examined in the fashion adopted with banks which are considered unsafe.

INCREASE OF CAPITAL FOR HUNGARIAN BANK

BUSINESS WITH HUNGARY

Remittances from This Country Estimated to be $80,000,000 a Year—More Funds to be Kept Here.

Plans are at the point of consummation for the reorganization of the Hungarian-American Bank along lines which it is hoped will broaden its activities and aid it in taking a larger place in the field it was originally designed to fill. The bank is owned by two of the largest banks in Hungary and officials of these institutions, who have been in New York for some weeks, have concurred in the suggestion of New York interests that the bank be converted into a trust company and its capital increased. It only remains for the visiting bankers to report to their directors on the other side for the plan, details of which have been worked out, to be put into effect.

The first step in the new organization will be to carry out the purpose, announced in 1907, of increasing its capital. When in the Summer of 1907 the bank opened in lower Broadway it had a capital of $400,000, which its promoters announced would shortly be increased to $1,000,000. Of the original capital $200,000 it was announced had been subscribed by the Central Credit Bank of Hungary.

In the Fall of last year the Hungarian Commercial Bank of Budapest became a large stockholder. The offices of the bank were moved uptown to 147 Fifth Avenue, in the new cloak and suit manufacturing district, and steps were taken to enlarge its business. The projected increase in capital was again announced, but the foreign interests went slowly ahead feeling their way to the plan of organization which has just been perfected. In its trust company form the institution will retain the title Hungarian-American. Its capital will be increased to $500,000, with a surplus of the same amount, and not the least important feature of the new organization will be the inclusion of a number of representatives of established banking interests in the Directorate.

It was said yesterday that the bank would continue largely to handle Hungarian business, and the control remains with the two Hungarian banks which last Fall were said to be ready to subscribe to about 80 per cent. of the new stock, which it was then the intention of issuing to bring the capital from $200,000 to $1,000,000.

The Central Credit Bank of Hungary, which was the original backer of the institution, controls the business of about 450 provincial savings banks in that country, whose combined capital is $200,000,000. The Hungarian Commercial Bank of Budapest has combined capital and surplus of $25,000,000.

Under the new organization the trust company will have closer relations with the two institutions, and will, it is said, establish relations with the Postal Savings Bank of Hungary, to which large sums are annually sent by Hungarian immigrants. The remittances to Hungary from this country have been estimated at $80,000,000 a year.

The bank has been handling a considerable share of this business. It is one of the purposes of the Hungarian banks, which between them hold a four-fifths interest in the New York institution, to keep a considerable part of the remittance funds in this country for investment, which will be made possible by the co-operation of the Hungarian Postal Savings Bank.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—Wheat after a little hesitation early became very weak, declining 1½ to 2½ cents a bushel, and closed at about the low point. The near positions showed greatest weakness, and Chicago July was at one time 2½ cents under September. The break was seemingly a case of long wheat and pressure of cash stuff which could not be disposed of. Owing to the very favorable weather for harvest and the good crop of Winter wheat, the movement of wheat has been particularly heavy. Western receipts this week have gained 2,000,000 bushels over last week and 4,000,000 bushels over last year, while shipments have increased only 100,000 bushels, compared with last year. Weather conditions were very favorable for Spring wheat in both the American and the Canadian Northwest, and the official Manitoba report made the condition of wheat in the Western provinces 85, against 82 last year. The decline caught stop orders in quantity in all markets. With the increased movement of Winter wheat an increased business in flour at the West is reported, partly due to the prices made. Except for the milling business cash wheat is dull. A good deal of wheat is being sold, cost, insurance, and freight, the seaboard. Export sales of ten loads of old red wheat were made from New York, cleaning up all the stock of old wheat here. There were a few loads at outports. Exports for the week were 1,801,000 bushels from America, against 1,347,000 bushels the previous week; Argentina 1,544,000 bushels, against 1,400,000 bushels; Australia 640,000 bushels for the week, and India 1,664,000 bushels. Indicated world's exports were 9,400,000 bushels, against 10,400,000 bushels last week and 8,600,00 bushels last year. Cash sales were 80,000 bushels old No. 2 red for Antwerp; 24,000 bushels at outports, and about 200,000 bushels new red Winter wheat, 91c to 92c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, elevator, export rate. No. 2 red was quoted 90½c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.04¾; No. 2 hard Winter, 96¾, and No. 1 Manitoba, $1.

CORN.—The market was strong and active. Prices advanced notwithstanding the weakness in wheat, and trade was heavy. There were further sensational damage reports. Snow claiming present condition of only 74.8 and a crop of 2,700,000,000 bushels, against 80.1 by the Government July 1 and a crop of 2,956,000,000 bushels. There were many complaints. Sentiment was bullish and general commission house buying absorbed offerings on every reaction. Lyle's reports from Kansas and the Southwest do not confirm the serious damage claimed. Cash corn was strong; three loads were reported for export at outports. No. 2 corn was quoted 71c, free on board. American exports for the week 898,000 bushels, against 976,000 bushels the previous week.

OATS.—The market was also strong and fairly active, influenced by the strength in corn and by a Snow report claiming condition of 61.8 and a crop of 700,000,000 to 750,000,000 bushels, against 68.8 the Government figures July 1 and an indicated crop then of 818,000,000 bushels. Standards quoted at 53½c; No. 2 white, 54c; No. 3 white, 53c.

PROVISIONS.—The market was moderately active and lower. Prices were influenced by a weak hog market and claims of slow cash demand, and there was some selling of lard on the weakness in oil.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Liquidation continues of an incessant character, with bears taking advantage of the situation. Sentiment seems decidedly in favor of lower prices, and predictions are numerous that September will go to a discount as compared with later positions. These assertions are based largely on the crop prospects and the possibilities of it being early. Best support at present is mainly in the way of short covering, partly for refiners and from speculative sources, and while consuming orders come to light as prices are shaded the present demand is not particularly encouraging. The extent of the reaction is the main basis for some modification of bearish opinions.

COTTON.

News developments of the day were of a complex character, and consequently fluctuations in the market were irregular. On the whole, however, the disposition was to attach more importance to advices of a bullish aspect, at least, it was claimed that the bearish dispatches related principally to crop conditions, and had been temporarily discounted.

Further showers in the belt over night accounted for the lower opening of from 2 to 10 points, but these declines were gradually recovered. The local bull crowd gave good support to the list, while large spot interests were on the buying side, and the offerings from the South, which were quite persistent, were slowly but steadily absorbed. The close was near the best, partly influenced by a report issued by the Mercantile Crop Reporting Corporation.

This compilation of replies pointed to a condition of the crop of 83.4 per cent., against 87.5 last month. The yield is figured at 12,961,000 bales, against 13,408,000 bales, indicated last month. Deterioration of from 8 to 15 per cent. occured in North Carolina, Texas, and Oklahoma, while other States maintained or slightly improved their prospects over June. Bulls stated that as this report was promulgated at a much later date than the Governments figures, correspondents were better enabled to gauge deterioration from the recent drought, while, on the other hand, rainfall since the commencement of the week has probably not been taken into account.

The general belief is that crop prospects are favorable in the main, and recent precipitation will be of immense benefit to the plant. Boll weevil reports are becoming more numerous, with some intimations that prevailing weather conditions are conducive to the spread of this pest, but latest advices pertaining to the insect are very conflicting. The official forecast for overnight was for further showers, except in Southern Texas, although some New Orleans weather sharps wired a contrary forecast, claiming that the Western belt was in for clearing conditions. It is the assumption in some quarters that if the wet spell is at an end scattered points in Texas will again send complaints, but naturally as a result of precipitation the past week their influence is not expected to be great at first.

Week-end statistics were somewhat more favorable to the holders of cotton, with a decrease in the visible supply of American cotton of 112,000 bales, against a reduction last year of 93,000 bales. The total is 1,119,000 bales, against 1,141,000 bales last year. Spinners' takings for the week were 131,000 bales, against 144,000 bales last week, and 124,000 bales in 1910. Into sight for the season is 11,641,000 bales, against 10,199,000 bales last year.

STILL FEAR FOREST FIRES.

TORONTO, Ont., July 14.—A dispatch from Golden City says that the greatest loss of life may have occurred in the towns, and not in the great expanse of bush. It is stated that forty bodies have been recovered from Porcupine Lake.

A dispatch from Haileybury says that Matheson, a town of 900, is circled by fire, which may prove disastrous should a gale spring up. At Earlton, 190 miles north of North Bay, several houses burned. Fires are raging on the Quebec side of Lake Temiskaming, and a large number of settlers in the country around Sudbury have been burned out and had to flee for their lives.

R. H. Webber of Lockport, N. Y., one of the survivors, escaped from the Dome mine, where 100 were burned to death, by wading into the lake up to his neck. The wave of heat sweeping over the water burned his face badly. "There were 400 persons standing in the lake," said he, "and I saw twenty drown."

George Lisk, a prospector near the west Dome, saw his brother and partner burn to death. Penned in on all sides by the flames, they sought safety in a small stream. As the fire swept over the stream Lisk saw his two companions die, while he rolled on his back in the shallow water close to the bank.

The loss in the Porcupine district is upward of $2,000,000. The loss to individuals in the sweeping away of opportunities for which they had fought through years of hardship and loneliness cannot be estimated.

Men, women, and children from the burned district are being carried free of charge by the Canadian Pacific Railroad and Grand Trunk Railway to their destinations. Those more or less severely injured are taken to hospitals in Haileybury, Cobalt, Liskeard, and North Bay. All these hospitals are filled with sufferers.

DETROIT, Mich., July 14.—Believing that approaching forest fires endanger the City of East Tawas, Supt. C. W. Luce of the Detroit and Mackinac Railroad ordered section gangs to proceed to points north of the city in an endeavor to check the flames.

One hundred railroad employes ordered out last night by Supt. Luce are fighting the fires which are again burning fiercely between Tawas and Onaway. Two engines equipped with powerful pumps have been ordered there. All cars have been ordered removed from the threatened division.

BOSTON, July 14.—In the Moosehead Lake region of Maine many thousands of acres of timber lands have been destroyed by a fire which to-day defied all efforts to bring it under control. Some sporting camps were threatened by the flames, but few people or buildings were in danger.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

An important building project for the Fifth Avenue locality just south of Thirty-fourth Street, which includes the prospective purchase of the property from 5 to 11 West Thirtieth Street, was among the features of the realty market yesterday. This proposition is said to be backed by a large syndicate, having for its ostensible object the erection of a nineteen-story building, the offices of which are to be largely tenanted by members of the jewelry trade.

An option has been obtained on the property by George Neiman on behalf of the syndicate. Plans for the new skyscraper have been drawn, and it is also said that the proposed building is practically financed. The property is now occupied by three old residences and a five-story loft facing the Burlington apartment house and the Holland house.

Apartment house investment buying continued active on the upper west side, one of the newest of the big houses lately completed in the Cathedral Heights section, the Amele Hall, at 536 West 111th Street, having been purchased by the New Amsterdam Holding Company, a new concern, of which Franklin M. Haines is President.

The property was bought from the Riverside Viaduct Realty Company, Joseph Newmark President. The building is an eight-story structure, covering a plot 83.4 by 100.11, and adjoins the building on the southeast corner of Broadway.

In part payment the buyers give the Franklin M. Haines residence, with two acres of ground, on Philipse Place in North Yonkers.

Buys 23d Street Plot For Loft.

The heirs of Richard Lawrence have sold to Mrs. Dora Wheeler Keith 117 East Twenty-third Street, which, in conjunction with her present holding, 115 East Twenty-third Street, gives her control of a plot 56 by 110.

On this there will be erected a twelve-story and basement mercantile building, which will be ready for occupancy Oct. 1, 1912.

In connection with the above, a loan of $265,000, at 5½ per cent., having five years to run, has been placed with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The negotiations were conducted by Messrs. M. & L. Hess and Messrs. Keith & Abbott, attorneys for Mrs. D. W. Keith. The property has been held by the Lawrence estate since 1862.

Another Dyckman Plot Sold.

Bertha De Lanoy has sold to the Post Construction Company a plot 100 by 100 on the north side of 204th (formerly Hawthorne) Street, 100 feet west of Sherman Avenue. The buyers are completing a row of four five-story flats on Post Avenue, just south of 207th Street. The 204th Street plot will be improved with apartments in the near future.

Deal On Upper Fifth Avenue.

William Goldstone, who purchased the three-story dwelling 2,139 Fifth Avenue from the Boulevard Construction Company Thursday has resold the same to Selma Alexander, with the adjoining property, 2,141 and 2,143 Fifth Avenue, and 2 and 4 East 131st Street, at the southeast corner of these thoroughfares, and also 2,133 and 2,135 Fifth Avenue, one house separating the two parcels.

The Fifth Avenue dwellings are on lots 16.6 by 75 and the 131st Street houses 17.6 by 99.11. Mr. Goldstone took in part payment the two six-story new law houses, with store, 407 and 411 East 100th Street, each on plot 37.1 by 100.11.

Mrs. Alexander has also bought from Sarah E. Lay the intervening house, 2,137 Fifth Avenue, a three-story dwelling, on lot 16.6 by 75. With this purchase she now controls a plot fronting 99.11 feet on Fifth Avenue and 110 feet on 131st Street. Heller & Sussman were the brokers in the deals.

William Fanshawe has sold his property at Monmouth Beach to Mr. Brady, son of Anthony Brady. The price is said to be $60,000.

The houses will have a frontage of 200 feet, and a depth of 87 feet, and will be known as Phipps Houses No. 3. The main feature will be the provision of a playground for children in the basement of the buildings, which have been estimated to cost $170,000.

Plans have been filed for moving back the sidewalk 7.6 feet in front of the premises at the southwest corner of Lafayette Street and Astor Place, as ordered by the city, to allow for the widening of the street. This is the first plan filed for this improvement. It will cost the O. B. Potter Trust, owners of the premises, $4,200 to make the change. Francis H. Kimball is the architect.

BLOW UP SHIP FOR PICTURES.

To furnish a particularly thrilling climax in a moving-picture spectacle, a sixty-ton schooner was blown up just before noon yesterday in Great South Bay, off Bayberry Point, Islip, L. I. One hundred and fifty pounds of dynamite were used, and the boat was reduced to junk and wreckage.

The shore near the scene of the dynamiting was lined with people who had heard of the impending explosion. All the spectators agreed that it was the best shipwreck they had ever seen.

DEMOCRATIC DONKEY QUITS THE BIG RACE

THEN THE ELEPHANT STOPS

Fred Thompson, owner of Luna Park, anxiously awaited news yesterday morning of the race between Judy and Jennie, the elephant and donkey, from Luna Park to the White House in Washington. Some time after the usual hour for getting his daily report the telephone bell rang sharply. Thompson answered.

"At Darby."

"Who's ahead? How's that donkey? Tell me quickly. How is Jennie?"

Thompson dropped the receiver, but a park attendant seized it and took the rest of the message. He cheered the owner of Luna Park with this announcement:

It was true. The great race was off. Neither animal was able to go further than Darby, Penn. Lame anad tired, Judy and Jennie were prostrated with a simultaneousness that would have raised the cry of collusion with animals less public spirited.

It was this way: The Jennie who entered the race was not the Jennie who was to have run. That Jennie passed away last Saturday, the day the race started, and a circus donkey that had never worn shoes took her place. At Princeton, her four little hoofs had spread so that they were obliged to shoe her, and for the rest of the race the unwonted footwear pained her past endurance. At Darby she balked.

"Thus far and no further," said Jennie the Second.

Judy looked at her with covert envy. Walker persuaded the elephant to take a few more steps. She sulked. She hesitated. She stopped.

"I won't," said Judy wickedly. "Wire the news to La Follette."

Judy, too, was lame. Ever since the night at New Brunswick, where, for lack of a livery stable large enough, Judy had spent the night ignominiously in a blacksmith's shop, and while walking in her sleep had run a nail in her foot, she had been far from a well elephant. The most skilled treatment had not fitted her hoof for travel, and she just wouldn't go on. Hereafter, the press agents said last night, Darby will probably be known as the place where the great race was called off.

To-day the two, with their faithful attendants, will return from Philadelphia aboard a Clyde liner. They passed through that city yesterday morning without waking it.

ROBBED THE DEAD

But Changed Watches on One Body So Clumsily That He Convicted Himself.

Edward Fennessey of 875 Broadway, Bayonne, pleaded guilty in the Common Pleas Court, Jersey City, yesterday to robbing bodies of their valuables while he worked about a morgue.

When the Atlantic City express on the Jersey Central ran into an open draw in Newark Bay several years ago and the engine went to the bottom, the body of Engineer William E. Toomey was not found for several days. Fennessey was one of the men sent from a local morgue to take charge of it. Going through the clothes of the dead engineer Fennessey found a silver watch, which he pocketed.

In time, after he had paid $3 to a jeweler to have the water pumped out of the works, the watch became very accurate. Fennessey became so pleased with it that he scratched his name inside the case. A few days ago he exchanged this watch for a gold one in the clothes of the body of one Bogert, who was killed on the Jersey Central. The name in the silver watch was found and Fennessey was convicted.

Mrs. W. G. Rockefeller Home.

Mrs. William G. Rockefeller and her two sons returned from abroad yesterday on the Cunard liner Lusitania. They spent two weeks in Europe. Mr. Rockefeller met his family at the pier and all went to the Rockefeller home at Greenwich, Conn.

Salary Loan Advertisements Rejected.
